Kennedy Enters Race; Demo Reaction Divided

McCarthy Cool To 'Harmony'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Robert F. Kennedy threw the Democratic Party into turmoil today by announcing his candidacy to wrest the presidency from Lyndon B. Johnson and change his "disastrous, divisive policies" — hopefully with Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy's help.

"The fight is just beginning, and I believe that I can win," said Kennedy. He announced he would run in the Nebraska, Oregon and California primaries alongside McCarthy, and would campaign for the Minnesota peace candidate in other states.

McCARTHY 'HARMONY'

Standing in almost the exact spot in the Senate Caucus Room where his late brother embarked on his successful quest for the presidency in 1960, Kennedy proposed to work "in harmony" with McCarthy in hopes of presenting the Democratic National Convention in August with the "strongest possible standard bearer."

It was obvious that Kennedy regarded himself as that man. But McCarthy, after viewing the announcement on television at Green Bay, Wis., rejected any sort of campaign "deal" with Kennedy.

'I'M STILL BEST'

"I think I am still the best potential candidate in the field," McCarthy said. "I can win."

He welcomed Kennedy's offer of active support in the Wisconsin primary but said he thought he could win without it.

"I'm not prepared to deal with anybody," McCarthy said coolly. If his cause became hopeless at the convention, he said, he would release his delegates and "they would be free to make their own decisions."

Noting his single-handed win of 42 per cent of the Democratic vote in New Hampshire, McCarthy added pointedly:

'DANCED IN MOONLIGHT'

"It got a little lonely in New Hampshire. I could have used a little help...I walked alone. They were afraid to come down onto the playing field. They stayed on the hill and lit bonfires and danced in the moonlight...They stayed out and threw messages

PFC. JEFFREY A. TURNER

Mill Valley Youth Dies In Vietnam

Pfc. Jeffrey A. Turner, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood C. Turner of Mill Valley, was killed south of Da Nang on March 11. He was an infantryman who had been in Vietnam a month.

His name was on a casualty list of 12 California servicemen released yesterday by the Defense Department.

He was the 19th soldier from Marin County killed in the war.

The parents and a brother, Paul, 15, live at 389A Woodside Avenue.

Turner, who was born in San Francisco and attended elementary schools there, graduated from Tamalpais High School in 1966. He worked for about a year in a market, and was drafted into the Army in August, 1967.

He took basic training at Fort Bliss, Texas, and advanced training at Fort Polk, Louisiana.

Following a 20-day leave, he took eight weeks of training at Fort Lewis, Washington, and then was shipped to Vietnam.

His parents said he was with the 196th Infantry Division and was killed in an attack on a base south of Da Nang.

Supersecret Gold Conclave Begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's six allies in the London gold pool converged on Washington today for a two-day conference seeking to solve the gravest global money crisis in 40 years.

As the central bankers assembled, a congressional drive developed to force a greater fiscal austerity on this country—and thus to generate, it was hoped, greater confidence in the dollar.

The plan calls for not only the deflationary 10 per cent tax surcharge asked by President Johnson, but a multibillion-dollar slash in Johnson's fiscal 1969 spending budget—a cut imposed on him by act of Congress.

The crisis was generally regarded as the most severe since the stock market collapse of 1929.

Airtight security was assured for the weekend conference of the central bankers of the United States, Britain, Belgium, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland.

The session was to start at a 1 p.m. luncheon. The only communique, a board spokesan said, will be issued at the meeting's close sometime tomorrow afternoon.

Congressional leaders echoed official assurances the $35-an-ounce price for gold will be maintained. Chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., of the Senate Banking Committee predicted "it will be the speculators who suffer the greatest injury."

The senior Republican on the committee, Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, concurred. "We have more than $11 billion in gold," he said, "and I do not think private speculators can raise enough money to drain that out."

'We'll Win' In Vietnam, Talks Or No, LBJ Holds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson today said he was planning to propose cuts in federal spending in a new effort to get a tax increase because of the world monetary situation. Informed sources said later they would run about $3-4 billion in fiscal 1969.

The President also strongly defended his Vietnam policies in a wide ranging speech to a group of businessmen trying to find jobs for poor youths in city ghettos this summer. At the same time reliable sources said that moderate troop increases would be sent to Vietnam, but they would not be anywhere near the 200,000 figure that has been widely reported and speculated upon.

BUDGET CUTS

And, they said, that the President would work with congressional leaders to try to trim spending authorizations totaling about $9 billion from his budget for the fiscal year that begins July 1. This would mean actual spending cuts for that fiscal year of about $3 billion to $4 billion, they added.

Speaking to the businessmen while Robert Kennedy was announcing his presidential candidacy across the Capitol, Johnson said the United States "must meet our commitments in the world in Vietnam. And we shall and we are going to win."

The President told about 1,000 businessmen who are members of his National Alliance of Businessmen: "I don't want a man to go back home and think otherwise."

FLIES TO RANCH

After the speech Johnson flew to his Texas ranch. He is expected to remain there at least through Tuesday which is his daughter, Lynda Bird's 24th birthday.

In the speech, the Chief Executive, who quipped about Kennedy's decision to oppose him, said he would defer some lower priority spending items because of the fiscal situation.

He vowed that the burdens at home and abroad would not be allowed to "push us into fiscal chaos."

Johnson returned to the subject of Vietnam saying he hoped a settlement could be reached at the negotiating table but assured his listeners it will be reached "on the battlefield if we must."

The Chief Executive got a light round of applause and a hearty laugh from his audience when he noted that Kennedy

Department Heads Reply To Grand Jury

Two Marin County department heads were critical of the grand jury assessments today, but a third said he thought the jury had done a pretty good job on his department.

Letters to the board of supervisors have been written by Dr. Clyde G. Miller, director of Community Mental Health Services; Walter H. Busher, chief probation officer, and Robert D. Elliott, county personnel director.

Dr. Miller said he offered the jury a lot of information about his department, but it seemed to be interested only in the controls which the department has on patient fees.

He said a mental health services department couldn't operate like a lending department, investigating the assets of people clearly eligible for services. Going into the income tax records of people seeking mental health services "would not promote mental health, but seriously interfere with it," he said.

"The number of individuals who would have great assets and low annual income would be very, very small," he said. "The cost of obtaining that data from the patient would probably be much more than the amount saved."

Personnel Director Robert D. Elliott, on the other hand, said he thought the grand jury had been "unusually objective" in its report on his department and that some of its constructive recommendations are being put into practice.

He said pre-employment investigation will be broadened as a result of the jury's recom-

Inferno Sweeps Freighter, Barges

POINT-A-LA-HACHE, La. (UPI)—A freighter rounded a bend in the Mississippi River Saturday and collided in a ball of flame with two fuel barges.

Eleven persons were killed and 30 injured.

The victims were all believed crewmen aboard the vessels and passengers on the freighter, African Star, many of them tourists from the United States, New Zealand, and Australia.

The freighter was cutting across the bend in the pre-dawn darkness about 50 miles downriver from New Orleans when the collision occurred. Flames erupted from the fuel barges and washed across the desk of the freighter.

Seaman Lauro Cisternio, 47, of New York City said he was going into the wheel house at about 4:40 a.m. EST when he heard five blasts on the ship whistle, signaling a general alarm. It was followed by four blasts from a tug pushing the barges.

"Before the blast signal had stopped the whole ship began to shake," Cisternio said. "Fire was spilling over the starboard side. Six men on deck began running away from it and they were engulfed in flame."

Coast Guard helicopters hovering over the burning vessels plucked dead and injured from the flames. Several injured were taken to a New Orleans hospital. Five ambulances conveyed burned and moaning survivors to New Orleans hospitals.

A woman who lives nearby said she heard "a tremendous explosion" and got out of bed to see flames shooting high in the night.

"I went across the road and could see people coming up the levee," she said. "They were moaning and terribly burned. I turned around and went back home. It was too horrible."

The African Star was headed down the river toward the Gulf of Mexico about 30 miles away, and then for Australia.

"It wasn't two minutes before the ship was afire," Deputy Sheriff W. J. Autin said. "They saw the ship coming, but could not get away."

Residents in the area came out to watch the rescue operations as the tongues of flame lighted up the night and the oily surface of the Mississippi.

The captain of the African Star was hoisted by helicopter from the ship and taken to a New Orleans hospital. He was believed to have survived.

Unruh Claims Kennedy Will Win Primary

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Robert F. Kennedy's presidential campaign was launched in California by Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh today with a prediction that the senator "can and will" carry the state's Democratic presidential primary.

Unruh, the late John F. Kennedy's Southern California campaign manager, predicted such a victory would make it possible for the New York senator to capture the Democratic National Convention.

Unruh told a news conference he expects "a heavy number of delegates to abandon a slate pledged to President Johnson in the primary, and support Kennedy."

He added that there will possibly be defections from a third California delegation, pledged to Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn.

"I think Senator Kennedy will definitely win in a two-cornered race, a three-cornered race or a five-cornered race," Unruh said.

Unruh said that Kennedy supporters next week will stage "a massive petition - signing endeavor" to obtain the 30,716 names needed to put the Kennedy slate on the ballot.

They have until April 5 to ob-

HAPPY FAREWELL — Dentist Philip Blaiberg, history's first heart transplant survivor, smiles up at Dr. Christiaan Bernard, who headed the team performing the operation, outside the hospital in Cape Town, South Africa, today. Blaiberg went home today to continue his recovery. (AP Cablephoto)

'I AM VERY WELL INDEED'

Heart Transplant Survivor Blaiberg Gets Out Of Hospital

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Philip Blaiberg, the only person to survive a heart transplant operation, strode confidently out of Groote Schuur Hospital and into the bright sunshine today.

"I am very well indeed," he told a waiting crowd of newsmen, nurses and onlookers. "I an delighted to be going home and home is the main thing in my thoughts. Thank you all very much for coming to welcome me."

A FOND KISS

One of the nurses who looked after the 58-year-old retired Cape Town dentist for 74 days asked him with a smile: "Can I kiss you?"

"Certainly," he replied.

With Blaiberg was Dr. Christiaan Barnard, who directed the delicate transplant surgery on Blaiberg Jan. 2 and on the world's first heart transplant patient, Louis Washkansky, who died 18 days after surgery.

Blaiberg shook hands with Barnard and said several times in a choked voice, "Thank you very much, thank you very much." Then Blaiberg and his wife, Eileen, stepped into a large black limousine for the drive home.

Shortly before his dismissal, Blaiberg received a thorough medical examination by the transplant team and was declared fit to leave the hospital.

RELEASE DELAYED

Blaiberg's discharge had been expected earlier than this. Shortly after the operation, in fact, Barnard spoke in terms of three weeks before the stockily built, bald-headed man could go home.

The way is clear now for Barnard to perform his next heart transplant, which he has said would be soon, although he has no specific patient in mind yet.

Blaiberg's diseased and failing heart was replaced by the heart taken from the body of a mulatto, Clive Haupt, 24, who died of a brain hemorrhage.

The retired dentist made steady progress except for one period when his doctors discovered indications that his body was rejecting the new heart, and raised the dosage of drugs to counter this.

Blaiberg spent his entire hospital recuperation period in a sterilized suite.

GERMS PERIL

Barnard had been anxious to get him out of the hospital as soon as possible because the doctor says the kind of germs found in hospitals are far more resistant to treatment than any which Blaiberg is likely to pick up outside.

Blaiberg will remain in semi-isolation at the apartment block where he lives in suburban Kenilworth for about a month while he readjusts to normal conditions.

He will have to go to Groote Schuur three times a week for at least the next month for constant checks and further treatment.

U.C. Regents Eye Priority On Increased Admissions

IRVINE (AP)—The hopes of 7,000 students to enter the University of California next fall are in doubt because of budget cuts sought by Gov. Ronald Reagan, University President Charles Hitch says.

The U.C. president proposed "a holding action" on undergraduate applications received after the regular March 1 deadline. In a report yesterday to the Board of Regents, he called for no immediate, sweeping enrollment limit.

"The whole issue is extremely complex and requires further study," Hitch said.

He said Reagan's proposed $280 million operating budget for the nine campuses next year provides almost no money for enrollment increases.

U.C. is requesting $31 million to serve about 96,000 full-time students expected in September. The current enrollment is about 80,000.

NO ACTION

The regents took no formal vote on Hitch's report. But Chairman Theodore R. Meyer said "there was unanimous acquiescence in the president's proposal, and I believe no action was necessary."

Last month they voted 16-4 to limit enrollment rather than reduce educational quality if the governor's budget could not be increased.

That policy would permit the first limit on admissions for qualified undergraduate students in the university's 100-year history.

HITCH'S PLANS

Hitch rejected any "mechanical formula approach" to limiting enrollment. But he outlined the following policies:

Acceptance of all undergraduate applications made before the March 1 deadline.

A waiting list of late-applying undergraduates, estimated at 7,000. The top priority would go to resident transfer students from junior colleges. Second would come other resident undergraduates and the last priority would be non-residents.

"We may have to establish tentative quotas for graduate enrollment," Hitch said. He recommended more studies of the possibility that new draft regulations would reduce graduate applications.

The regents held a three-hour session bethind closed doors yesterday morning and met for only an hour and 20 minutes in open session in the afternoon.

RIGHTS KILLING GUILTY VERDICT

Mississippi Jury Votes First Conviction In History; Klansmen Trials To Continue

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI) — Mississippi prosecutors, armed with their first conviction for civil rights slaying in state history, prepared today for the trial of the second of 12 white men charged with the 1966 firebomb murder of Negro leader Vernon Dahmer.

A circuit court jury deliberated two hours and five minutes last night before convicting Cecil Victor Sessum, a 10th grade dropout and reputed leader of a Ku Klux Klan attack on Dahmer's rural home near here. Judge Stanton Hall sentenced Sessum to life imprisonment.

STATE WITNESS

Sessum was convicted largely on the testimony of Billy Roy Pitts, a former Klansman who turned state's evidence after pleading guilty last week to murder and arson. Pitts, also sentenced to life imprisonment, testified that Sessum led the Jan. 10, 1966, firebomb attack on Dahmer's home.

The second in the series of trials starts Monday when jury selection begins in the state's case against Henry Edward Deboxtel, 31, of Laurel, an oil field worker, high school dropout and father of five.

The testimony of Pitts, expected to be a key witness in most of the remaining trials, was sharply attacked by defense attorney Lawrence Arrington, who also represents Deboxtel and several other defendants. In summation, he said Pitts testified as he had been told to by federal authorities.

"If you rehearse a parrot long enough, he'll learn to say anything," he said.

Arrington also maintained the federal government wanted a conviction to aid President Johnson's reelection drive.

"If there's no conviction, you may see that little man from Alabama (George Wallace) up there running the show," he said.

Deserters Spurn Plea To Return

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — An American newsman who came to Sweden to try to persuade U.S. armed forces deserters to return to their units said yesterday that those who go back before tomorrow will get lighter sentences.

William Russell, editor of the Army Times in Frankfurt, made the statement at a news conference arranged by the U.S. Deserters Committee in Sweden, then was thrown out of the meeting.

Russell got into the news conference as a reporter. But rather than answering questions he took the floor to appeal to GIs to return to their units.

In Heidelberg, West Germany, a U.S. Army spokesman said it had not authorized Russell to say that deserters returning before tomorrow would get light sentences.

Russell spoke only for about two minutes before he was shouted down by GIs who accused him of working for the U.S. government.

The Army Times is a private newspaper.

Russell said he wanted to help deserters "because I know they are unhappy in Sweden because of the pro-Communist and anti-American feelings here."

Vatican Tries To Clear Rule On Masonry

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Vatican said today it was not planning to "change profoundly" its prohibition on Catholics joining the Order of Free Masons.

Well-informed Vatican sources said the denial was issued because of some confusion that has arisen following reports earlier this week that the Vatican has changed its attitude toward the Masons.

These sources said Catholics who join the European Grand Orient form of Masonry, established especially in Italy, France, Germany and Austria, are still automatically excommunicated from the church.

But they said Catholics may join Masonic organizations that are not considered anti-religious, such as those in the United States and Britain.

The official Vatican statement said competent departments of the Holy See were authorized to deny "as without foundation" reports that the church "has in mind to change profoundly the current canonic discipline regarding Masonry."

Since 1738 the church has condemned Free Masonry as anti-Catholic and atheistic.

On Monday, Vatican sources said the Vatican's Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith "has let it be known Catholics joining Free Mason orders are no longer automatically excommunicated."

They said the code of canon law, now being revised, would be changed to modify the church's position on Masonry and clarify the distinction between various forms of Masonry.

Reagan Takes Over Chair Of Convention Delegation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan is personally heading his favorite son presidential delegation now in efforts to insure that it has a strong voice at the Republican National Convention.

Reagan's office announced last night that the governor would take over chairmanship of the 86-member delegation from William French Smith, a Los Angeles attorney. French, in turn, is now deputy chairman and serves as Reagan's chief aide.

"This is no indication at all of the governor's expanding into the real presidential race," said his press secretary, Paul Beck.

Reagan has declared again and again, "I am not a candidate" for the presidency, and is heading the delegation only for the sake of California GOP unity.

Reagan as chairman "gives us a better bargaining position at the convention . . . so we can get what we want in terms of a platform," Beck said.

The news release from the governor's office quoted Smith as saying: "We feel that only direct leadership by Governor Reagan can assure California of playing a major role at the national convention."

He said the chairmanship switch was "in response to urgings by members of the delegation, including myself."

MARIN APPOINTEE

In a related move, Reagan asked the delegation to name Thomas C. Reed of Ross and Eleanor Ring of Coronado as California's members of the Republican National Committee, the nationwide policy making group.

Reed headed Reagan's gubernatorial campaign in Northern California and more recently was the governor's appointments secretary — Reagan's "political eyes and ears," as the news release said.

Reed and Mrs. Ring would replace Gardiner Johnson of Piedmont and Ann Bowler of Long Beach who Reagan praised for their "dedicated service."

Reagan said he disclosed his national committee choices "to clear the air and assure continued harmony within the delegation."

Heart Fund Sunday Gifts Beat 1967

Volunteers who canvassed the county on Feb. 17 left envelopes for families who were not home, she said. These are still being mailed with contributions to the Heart Fund.

Tainter, who has no fixed address, was ordered to appear in court May 24 for a prleiminary hearing on the charges.

Britain's Brown Quits Over Gold

LONDON AP) — A political whirlwind churned in London today after the world gold crisis brought on the resignation of volatile George Brown as foreign secretary and the appointment of mind-mannered Michael Stewart.

Brown

It was believed unlikely that British foreign policy will change much under Stewart but the impact at home was sharp with opposition cries for the resignation of Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

The last straw for the 53-year-old Brown was not being consulted by Wilson in the decision to close the London gold market yesterday at Washington's suggestion.

Stewart

Why Wilson could not contact Brown was a mystery.

All signs pointed to a long-standing personality clash between Brown and Wilson to whom he lost the leadership of the Labor Party in 1963.

Stewart, a shy, quiet man, caught the public eye so little when he was last at the Foreign Office that political cartoonists had to label his caricatures. He has won many admirers, for the eloquence, logic and encyclopedic knowledge he brings to parliamentary debates.

Wallace Session

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Supporters of third-party candidate George C. Wallace met here today to nominate the former Alabama governor as the American Independent Party's candidate for president.

Wallace's nomination was a foregone conclusion and the convention was expected to be routine and brief.

The convention is the second of a three-step process spelled out in Utah's election laws to place the name of a third-party candidate on the state's ballot.

Following the convention, Wallace's supporters will have to obtain 500 signatures of registered voters on a petition before the Secretary of State's office will certify the party for a spot on the state's ballot.

U.S. Income Jumps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department says personal income of Americans increased by $7.5 billion in February—the biggest jump in more than two years.

The rise brought total income to a seasonally adjusted level of $658.5 billion.

A strong gain in wages and salaries in the private sector of the economy—$5.750 billion—paced the increase, the department said. Employment and hours worked registered large gains

Payroll increases were divided about equally between durable and nondurable industries, with apparel, textiles, transportation equipment and lumber leading the gains.

Castro Crackdown

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro said yesterday he was closing the state lottery and closing bars "because we cannot promote drunkenness."

Castro also said no more packages from the United States would be accepted by Cuba.

He said the nationalization of all private business was under way.

Castro said also Cuba would "definitely suspend" the receiving of all packages from the United States because the contents of the parcels usually are products which "insolently demonstrate the affluence" of the sender and "anger the revolutionists of Cuba."

Garbage Talks Fail

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Negotiators in San Francisco failed yesterday to reach agreement that would avert an East Bay strike of garbage collectors scheduled for Monday.

Some 400 members of Teamster Local 315 are expected to strike 12 scavenger companies serving Concord, Walnut Creek, Pleasant Hills, Antioch, Rodeo, Pittsburg, Brentwood, Diablo, Martinez, Lafayette, Orinda and adjacent areas in Contra Costa County.

Hopkins Suit Killed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The State Court of Appeal rejected the fraud claim yesterday of a North Carolina woman who claimed to be a descendant and heir of 19th century tycoon Mark Hopkins.

The court applied the statute of limitations to the claim of Mrs. Estelle Latta of Durham, N.C. She lost a suit based on similar charges filed in 1959.

She claimed the Mark Hopkins who accumulated a $200 million estate was really a North Carolina bachelor instead of the New Yorker whose widow received the state.

Leaky Valves, Strike Threat Bug Apollo

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—With the flight of the second Saturn 5 rocket postponed four days to April 1, a strike by a machinists union today loomed as a new threat to the moonport launch operations timetable.

The Saturn's latest delay was called yesterday when project officials decided that leaky valves in the rocket's Apollo 6 spacecraft would take about three and one-half days to fix.

The shot originally was set for March 21, but several minor troubles delayed it to March 25. Then, lagging launch preparations pushed the takeoff day to March 28.

While engineers were attempting to correct the latest difficulty, the International Association of Machinists (IAM) went on strike against the Bendix Corp., in a contract dispute.

Bendix supplies launch support services for the space agency at the moonport and one of the company's main jobs now is to support the pre-launch Apollo 6 payload.

Bendix and space agency spokesman said the strike was not expected to interfere with the moon rocket's launch preparations

But a company spokesman said it was too early to predict what impact the strike would have on the rest of the firm's launch support activities here. The IAM represents about 700 Bendix employees at the Space Center.

In another development yesterday, Apollo mission director William C. Schneider said in Washington that the first manned Apollo flight has been advanced to the third quarter of the year—somewhere between the first of July and the end of September.

Previously, the space agency had said the launch of astronauts Walter Schirra, Donn Eisele and Walter Cunningham was set for the fourth quarter of the year.

Schneider refused at a news briefing to be pinned down to a specific target date for the launch, but he did say "it looks like its right around the middle of the third quarter." That would put the 10-day orbital mission in mid-August.

KENNEDY

over the fence."

Kennedy said he informed President Johnson of his decision in advance, through an unnamed intermediary. Johnson, he said, "did not indicate pleasure or displeasure." He sent his brother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to Wisconsin last night to tell the news to McCarthy.

Although Kennedy stressed his decision reflected no "personal animosity or disrespect" toward Johnson, the constant breach between the two was perhaps made permanent by Kennedy's formal challenge.

Kennedy even refused to commit himself to supporting Johnson if the President is renominated at Chicago. He told newsmen he would have to make any such decision at convention time.

"I run," said Kennedy, "because I am convinced that this country is on a perilous course and because I have such strong feelings about what must be done that I am obliged to do all I can."

"I run to seek new policies — policies to close the gaps between black and white, rich and poor, young and old, in this country and around the world," he added.

And, in a remark certain to herald one of the bloodiest pre-convention battles in the Democratic Party in decades, Kennedy declared: "I run because it is now unmistakably clear that we can change these disastrous, divisive policies only by changing the men who make them."

He called for more jobs and education to alleviate Negro unrest in the cities.

On Vietnam, he proposed de-escalation of the war, requiring the South Vietnamese to assume a greater share of the fighting —including drafting of 18 and 19-year-olds and willingness to negotiate with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

Kennedy also said he would stop bombing North Vietnam in an attempt to encourage peace talks, reserving the right to take "retaliatory action" if Hanoi took advantage of the halt.

In an obvious reference to Richard M. Nixon, Kennedy said: "I don't say that if I'm President the war in Vietnam will be finished... but I think we can do better."

Kennedy promised that in no state would he campaign against McCarthy. "My aim is to both support and expand his valiant campaign ...not to divide the strength of those forces seeking a change, but to increase it," he said.

"Both of us are campaigning to give our forces and our party an opportunity to select the strongest possible standard bearer for the November election," he added.

Kennedy urged his friends to help McCarthy win the Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts primaries next month.

At Portland, Ore., Nixon predicted Kennedy would wage a "very aggressive campaign" for the nomination but that "Johnson can have the nomination if he wants it."

As for himself, Nixon said that if he runs alone in Oregon against Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, he would win the May 28 primary and have the GOP nomination sewed up.

In Manhattan, Rockefeller said Kennedy's decision would not affect his plans. "As I have said before, I will make my own decision between now and March 22," said the governor, referring to the deadline for the Oregon primary.

Funds Fail For Unwed Mother Aid

A special education and counseling project for pregnant, unwed teen-agers in Marin County may be lost unless fresh financial aid is found.

The program, run through the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council, is operating on a budget of $21,438, but the federal portion, a total of $17,733, runs out March 31.

EOC officials and program director Collie Gaines of Marin City are scheduled at 7:30 p.m. Monday to ask the special education committee of the Marin County Board of Education to consider recommending that the county schools office sponsor the program. The county would then replace the lost funds.

The EOC said the federal Office of Economic Opportunity designated the program as a pilot and demonstration project when it first gave funds. This meant that the EOC would have to find a local agency to take it over when federal funding expired.

The project has served 52 teen-age girls since it began in February, 1966. All but three returned to high school, the EOC said. Nine were graduated from high school, two of them going on to college and five into jobs. Fifty of the girls kept their children, while two of the children were placed for adoption.

The girls receive classroom work, skills training, pre and post-natal care and counseling. Most of the teen-agers live in Marin City, although others have come from Tiburon, San Anselmo, Mill Valley, Sausalito and Kentfield.

Emphasis is on trying to return the girl to school and to unite the couple. The project is headquartered at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City.

Kennedy supporters, he said, will be at the convention of the 30,000-member California Democratic Council this weekend, looking for support. The council endorsed McCarthy last night.

Unruh said there shouldn't be any bitterness between Kennedy and McCarthy backers "if everyone keeps his cool."

He said a private poll shows McCarthy "doing quite well" in California. But he said he didn't think McCarthy could win the California primary.

Unruh said he was supporting Kennedy because of "the deterioration of our position in Vietnam . . . and the despair that besets our country from within."

so heavily dominated by Communists that GIs call it "pink village."

The light infantry troops moved in behind a curtain of artillery, surrounded the village and began blazing away at its Viet Cong defenders.

Much of the focus of the war today remained in the Saigon area where the "Operation Resolved to Win" task force of more than 40,000 Americans and South Vietnamese killed another 151 Viet Cong in several sharp clashes which included tank action.

U.S. losses as of last night in the Saigon area search-and-kill mission were 27 Americans killed and 213 wounded. No specific South Vietnamese casualties were given, but official government spokesmen said they were light.

In air action, U.S. Air Force B52 Stratofortresses flew 10 missions against North Vietnamese positions threatening Khe Sanh.

Dredge District Rules Outlined For Bel Marin

Formation of a dredging assessment district was outlined Thursday to the Bel Marin Keys Community Service District board by James F. Wiese of the Marin County Public Works Department and Deputy County Counsel Thomas Hendricks.

They recommended that boundaries of the community service be outlined and that property owners adjoining Bel Marin Keys be asked to join the district, according to Mrs. James Zoeller, district secretary.

The public works department would then work with the proposed district to see how much dredging would be needed, Wiese told the board.

The board set 8 p.m. March 25 for a special meeting at the community center to discuss a silting problem at the end of Caribe Isle, she said.

Marin City Bus To Start Monday

A new school bus service for Tamalpais High School students living in Marin City will start Monday morning, school officials said yesterday.

The 60-passenger bus will leave from St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church at 7:55 a.m. and will make a second trip if necessary.

An earlier announcement said the bus would start operating late next week, but school officials were notified of the change yesterday afternoon.

A $10,000 grant from the San Francisco Foundation financed the bus project after complaints that many students could not afford the commercial bus fare to school.

Novato Boy, 8, Gets $100,000 Lawsuit Offer

An 8-year-old Novato boy has apparently won a $100,000 settlement from the federal government for injuries suffered on an Air Force base five years ago.

A petition filed in Marin Superior Court yesterday asks court approval of the settlement between Craig Allen Owens of 1135 Palmer Drive and the government.

The boy, son of Frank Allen Owens, suffered multiple injuries when struck by a power mower, driven by a Japanese national, at Yokota Air Force Base, Japan, in 1963, according to the petition.

The government denies liability, but has offered the $100,000 in exchange for a promise of no future legal action by the boy, the petition says.

Young Craig suffered a shortened right leg as a result of the accident, according to the petition.

The settlement would give $19,000 to the San Francisco law firm of Holman and McCarty, which represented the boy, and $81,000 for a trust fund for Craig.

Burglars Hit Three Places

Three burglaries were reported today by sheriff's officers.

Jean Ann Irving, 611 Wakerobin Lane, Terra Linda, told deputies Thursday she was awakened early that morning by loud voices. She said she investigated, found no one near the house, and returned to bed. She later discovered someone had entered her kitchen and taken a wallet containing $15, she said.

Ingrid Tengroth of 100 Ricardo Road, Strawberry, reported Wednesday that someone jimmied her front door, then entered and stole a $50 portable radio.

Burglars removed a rear window of the concession stand trailer of Marie Ackerman at Stinson Beach State Park, she reported Tuesday. Taken was an undertermined amount of cigarettes and candy.

Two Arrested On Pot Charges

A Fairfax man was arrested on charges of selling and possessing marijuana last night after agents of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau said they had earlier purchased about two ounces of marijuana from him.

The agents and Fairfax police said they found more marijuana when they searched the home of Alfred James Quiroz, 23, of 31-A Willow Avenue. They arrested Quiroz and Fabian Mariscal Contreras, 24, of the same address, whom they charged with possession of marijuana.

They were booked at the county jail, where bail was set for Quiroz at $3,750 and $1,250 for Contreras.

Teen-Age Girls Injured In Car

Three teen-age girls were injured, none seriously, when the car in which they were riding overturned, then righted itself, on Lucas Valley Road last night.

California Highway Patrol said the driver, Nancy Lee Harris, 16, of 123 Esmeyer Drive, Terra Linda, said she was driving east near Sequiera Road about 9:50 p.m. when the car apparently struck something in the road.

She lost control, the car veered off the road, overturned, righted itself, and halted in bushes. Miss Harris and two passengers, Claudette Sherbert, 16, of 131 Esmeyer Drive, and Deborah Maland, 17, of 70 Mount Tenaya Drive, San Rafael, all suffered minor injuries and were taken to private physicians for treatment, officers said.

School Official Sued For Divorce

Supt. Phillip Walter Schneider of the Sausalito School District has been sued for divorce by his wife of 25 years.

The Schneiders married in Carson City in 1942. The couple had resided at 91 Glenn Drive, Sausalito, but separated Thursday, Mrs. Schneider said.

She asked $750 a month alimony and $200 a month for their minor child, David.

mendations. The grand jury suggested that the personnel department be responsible for a complete background check on prospective employees and that the sheriff's office make a security check on the applicants.

This information should be kept confidential, said the jury.

Elliott said he also agreed with the grand jury's suggestion that the personnel application be redesigned to meet all requirements pertaining to federal fair employment practices.

Probation Officer Busher said the grand jury's recommendation that the Family Rehabilitation Center program be terminated has already been carried out, but he said the FRC staff, some of whose members protested the closing of the center, were "not deserving of the burden" of being called "emotional and unstable" by the grand jury.

Busher conceded that the clinical director and staff might have shown some naivete and inexperience when they lashed back at criticism of the program. He said, however, there was no reason to believe the FRC staff was not "sincere in their support and dedication to a program they were engaged to carry out."

Auto Stereo Stolen

David Joseph Shawhan, 20, of 1305 Leafwood Drive, Apt. 5, Novato, reported Thursday to police that an auto stereo and tapes valued at $165 were taken from his car between 8:45 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Wednesday while the car was parked in the carport of the apartment house. Entry was gained by forcing open the left wing window, police reported.

Fatal Beating Tale Revealed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A transcript of a grand jury hearing and disclosed that a youth admitted to police he hit a legislative secretary several times on the head with a wrench during a burglary.

The victim, Mrs. Miriam H. Martin, was found beaten to death on the floor of her North Highlands home Jan. 23. She was secretary to Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-South San Francisco.

The transcript, made public Thursday, said Peter Salaber, 19, North Highlands, told officers he hit her when she surprised him and started screaming.

In the grand jury statement Salabar said Mrs. Martin "came at me with her hands--- and tried to flee. "I'm pretty sure I remember hitting her at least twice . . . and then after that I don't know exactly what happened," he said.

Salaber said that Gregory L. Sinclear, 19, North Highlands, a codefendant, waited outside in a car. Salaber said he carried the wrench to help him break into the home.

Salaber and Sinclear were indicted by the jury last week on burglary and murder charges. Both were acquaintances of the victim's teen-age son.

Independent-Journal

Statement of Policy

Regarding Political Advertising

The Independent-Journal does not aggressively solicit or render copy writing service for political advertisements that are argumentative in content. Political advertisements are construed to be all assertions subject to public controversy, whether or not a public election is involved.

Any political advertisement that is not clearly the personal appeal of the elective candidate or candidates involved must show the name of the sponsoring group together with the name or names of one or more persons officiating for such group and their address.

Political advertisements must be submitted in complete and explicit form, ready for the printers, and clearly marked as to size and date of appearance. All political advertisements are payable in advance. Charges are figured at the regular rate.

Advertising deadlines are 4 p.m., two days preceding publication. As example: Tuesday advertisements must be in Friday at 4 p.m.; Monday advertisements must be in the preceding Friday morning. Any intervening holiday advances the deadline by a day.

No responsibility to show printer's proof is assumed under the above schedule.

If a proof is desired, advertisement must be submitted substantially in advance. Corrections, if any, must be ordered by 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Any changes from original copy will be charged for on basis of printing work involved.

On the last publication day before an election no political advertisement other than a simple statement of advocacy will be printed. As example: "Vote yes on proposition three," or "Elect John Jones," together with facts as to nature and time of election and, if desired, candidate's party affiliation or occupational identity.

Nearing a public election, no advertisement introducing a new controversial subject will be accepted to run later than the fourth publication day preceding the election. If any new statement or issue should be introduced on the fourth publication day preceding the election, attacking the opposing candidate or issue involved, the newspaper may, at its discretion, make allowance under this rule for the opposing side to answer.

Necessity for the newspaper's disinterested handling of political advertisements is readily apparent. These terms and conditions are adhered to in spirit of fairness to all.

COOL CAMPUS — University of California students Joseph A. Guthrie of Greenbrae, Christine Van Wart of Larkspur and Diana J. Ostlind of San Rafael look out from a balcony over the now quieter campus at Berkeley. In the background is Sproul Hall, scene of many protests.

PROTEST DAYS PAST?

Cal Campus Quiet Now

By JOHN F. KEARNEY

Walking across the rain-splattered Berkeley campus of the University of California, a visitor might be forgiven for forgetting this once was called the student protest center of the world.

At noon, a string of petition tables hold the hard-fought line at the foot of Sproul Hall steps, territory occupied and held after the heated battles of the Free Speech Movement.

A corduroy-jacketed students shuffles papers beside a sign that reads in red lettering: "Recall Reagan." From all corners, students pour into the plaza, crisscrossing the wet pavement without pausing to hear the message.

It could have been that final examinations were uppermost in the mind. Alternatively, it could be the calm before a summer storm.

Whatever the reason: to most student protest watchers, the atmosphere at Berkeley is not what it used to be. "They're regrouping and licking their wounds after Oakland," reasoned one top administration official, referring to violence-marred sit-ins at the Oakland Induction Center last October.

Chancellor Roger W. Heyns was more optimistic. "The focus of protest is drifting away from the university administration," he said. "We are becoming less the adversary."

Three Marin students cut attendance at a government economics class the other day to talk about the cooling climate on campus.

Diana J. Ostlind, 20, of San Rafael, a junior in letters and science said: "The administration is pretty level at the moment but if they make things any stricter, it will not be the same. They will have a problem on their hands."

Twenty-year-old Joseph A. Guthrie of Greenbrae, a junior studying social welfare, held that protests involved only a minority of students; the rest were just not interested.

"A small number of kids have to be involved in something, they must have something to do. But protesting is never a continuous movement.

"I have taken part in all that stuff. Vietnam? . . . I feel that many students protest the draft not on the moral question, but simply because they do not want to go," he said.

Diana cut in. "They are just a minority. There have been night protest meetings where no one turns up."

The minority-only view was too simple an answer for William B. Boyd, vice chancellor of student affairs. Although only about 300 students out of a Berkeley enrollment of 29,000 were ever actively engaged in protest organization, there were still a force to be reckoned with, he said.

"It would be a dangerous fallacy to believe that the minority cannot call upon the support of the majority on important matters. This was apparent in the past and could be again in the future."

Berkeley, despite its swinging psychedelic image, continues to be a place to go and learn. To some, the best place in the world.

"Education has become a major part of our lives," said Guthrie, a graduate of Redwood High School. "It is not as if we are here just to get a degree. Learning is something you have consciously to strive after."

Freshman Christine Van Wart, 18, of Larkspur, who is taking French, said she felt the greater emphasis on education was one difference she found on arriving at Berkeley from Redwood. "The pressure is for grades," she said. "Just barely 'making it' is no longer enough."

Back in a corner behind Sather Gate, a poster calling for a student strike against the Vietnam War on April 26 dripped almost unnoticed in the rain.

It did not go unnoticed in the office of Chancellor Heyns, half hidden along a catacomb of corridors in an administrative building known unofficially as "The Pentagon of Berkeley."

Fastidiously cleaning out his pipe, Heyns said he hoped to discuss the students' plans for a strike with them before the fact. He found uncomfortable the administration's continuous reaction posture.

He felt that rules governing the time, place and manner of protests he issued in the fall of 1966 have had the effect of turning what, two years ago, was controversial into the commonplace.

Since the 1964 sit-ins by the FSM against the growing impersonal multiversity image of Cal, efforts have been made to break down some classes into more manageable units and to persuade professors to be more approachable.

Explained Neil J. Smelser, assistant chancellor of educational development: "We have not solved the problem by any means. It is a very slow process and we have not been able to go as far as we would have liked."

Guthrie maintained fellow students were not too worried about large classes. "Learning is a very personal thing. If a student really wants to learn, he will do, no matter what."

Diana Ostlind, a graduate of San Rafael High School, said: "Some professors go on and on and on. I think it is important a student should choose his professors very carefully.

"We have most contact with teaching assistants," she said, "but if you want to talk to a professor you can. Their office hours are very good."

LAW IN ACTION
From the State Bar Of California

Greenbelt Tax Shelters

Some California cities are now planning for the future.

With zoning laws and "greenbelt" planning, local governments seek to keep down "slurbs" and loss of needed farm lands to ugly sprawling developments.

"The more people we crowd into our cities," they say, "the more we need open lands around them."

Lawmakers have encouraged some sheltered farm areas and parklands where high taxes would otherwise turn them into subdivision.

Thus, without the owner's consent no city can annex an area zoned for farming under a master plan.

Another law allows a city or county to buy up land to keep open areas indefinitely. The city can leave the land vacant or improve it by parks or recreation areas.

Cities also do "greenbelt zoning." Unlike other kinds of zoning, the law requires the owner's consent to restrict the land to farm use. If the owner does agree, the county supervisors must approve the greenbelt. For example, Santa Clara County's master plan has "greenbelted" valuable farm lands and given them tax shelters.

Cities and counties may now buy up easements along highways to keep them as an open space, for example, to keep out billboards or other things that might interfere with the open areas.

One way to control land use is by zoning which needs no landowner's consent. Some court cases have held that zoning, besides protecting property values, may be solely to beautify the landscape. These court rulings are relatively new.

A person who breaks zoning laws may face civil or criminal liability. Local governments can also enforce these laws by withholding building permits. And courts may also impose fines on violators. A private person may sue others to stop them from breaking zoning laws if the violation would hurt him.

These greenbelt laws are all part of recent trends to conserve natural resources for the enjoyment of present and future generations.

Citizens should become aware of the zoning laws, and the need to be vigilant, both in the interest of the public and in their own interest as property owners.

(Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.)

Tiburon Panels To Meet Monday

Tiburon board of Adjustment and Design Review will not meet on Monday, according to Phil V. Scott, secretary.

The design board usually meets on the third Tuesday.

It will consider a lone agenda item of a sign permit for the No. One Main Street Gift Shop, asked for by Mrs. Frances Graham, at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

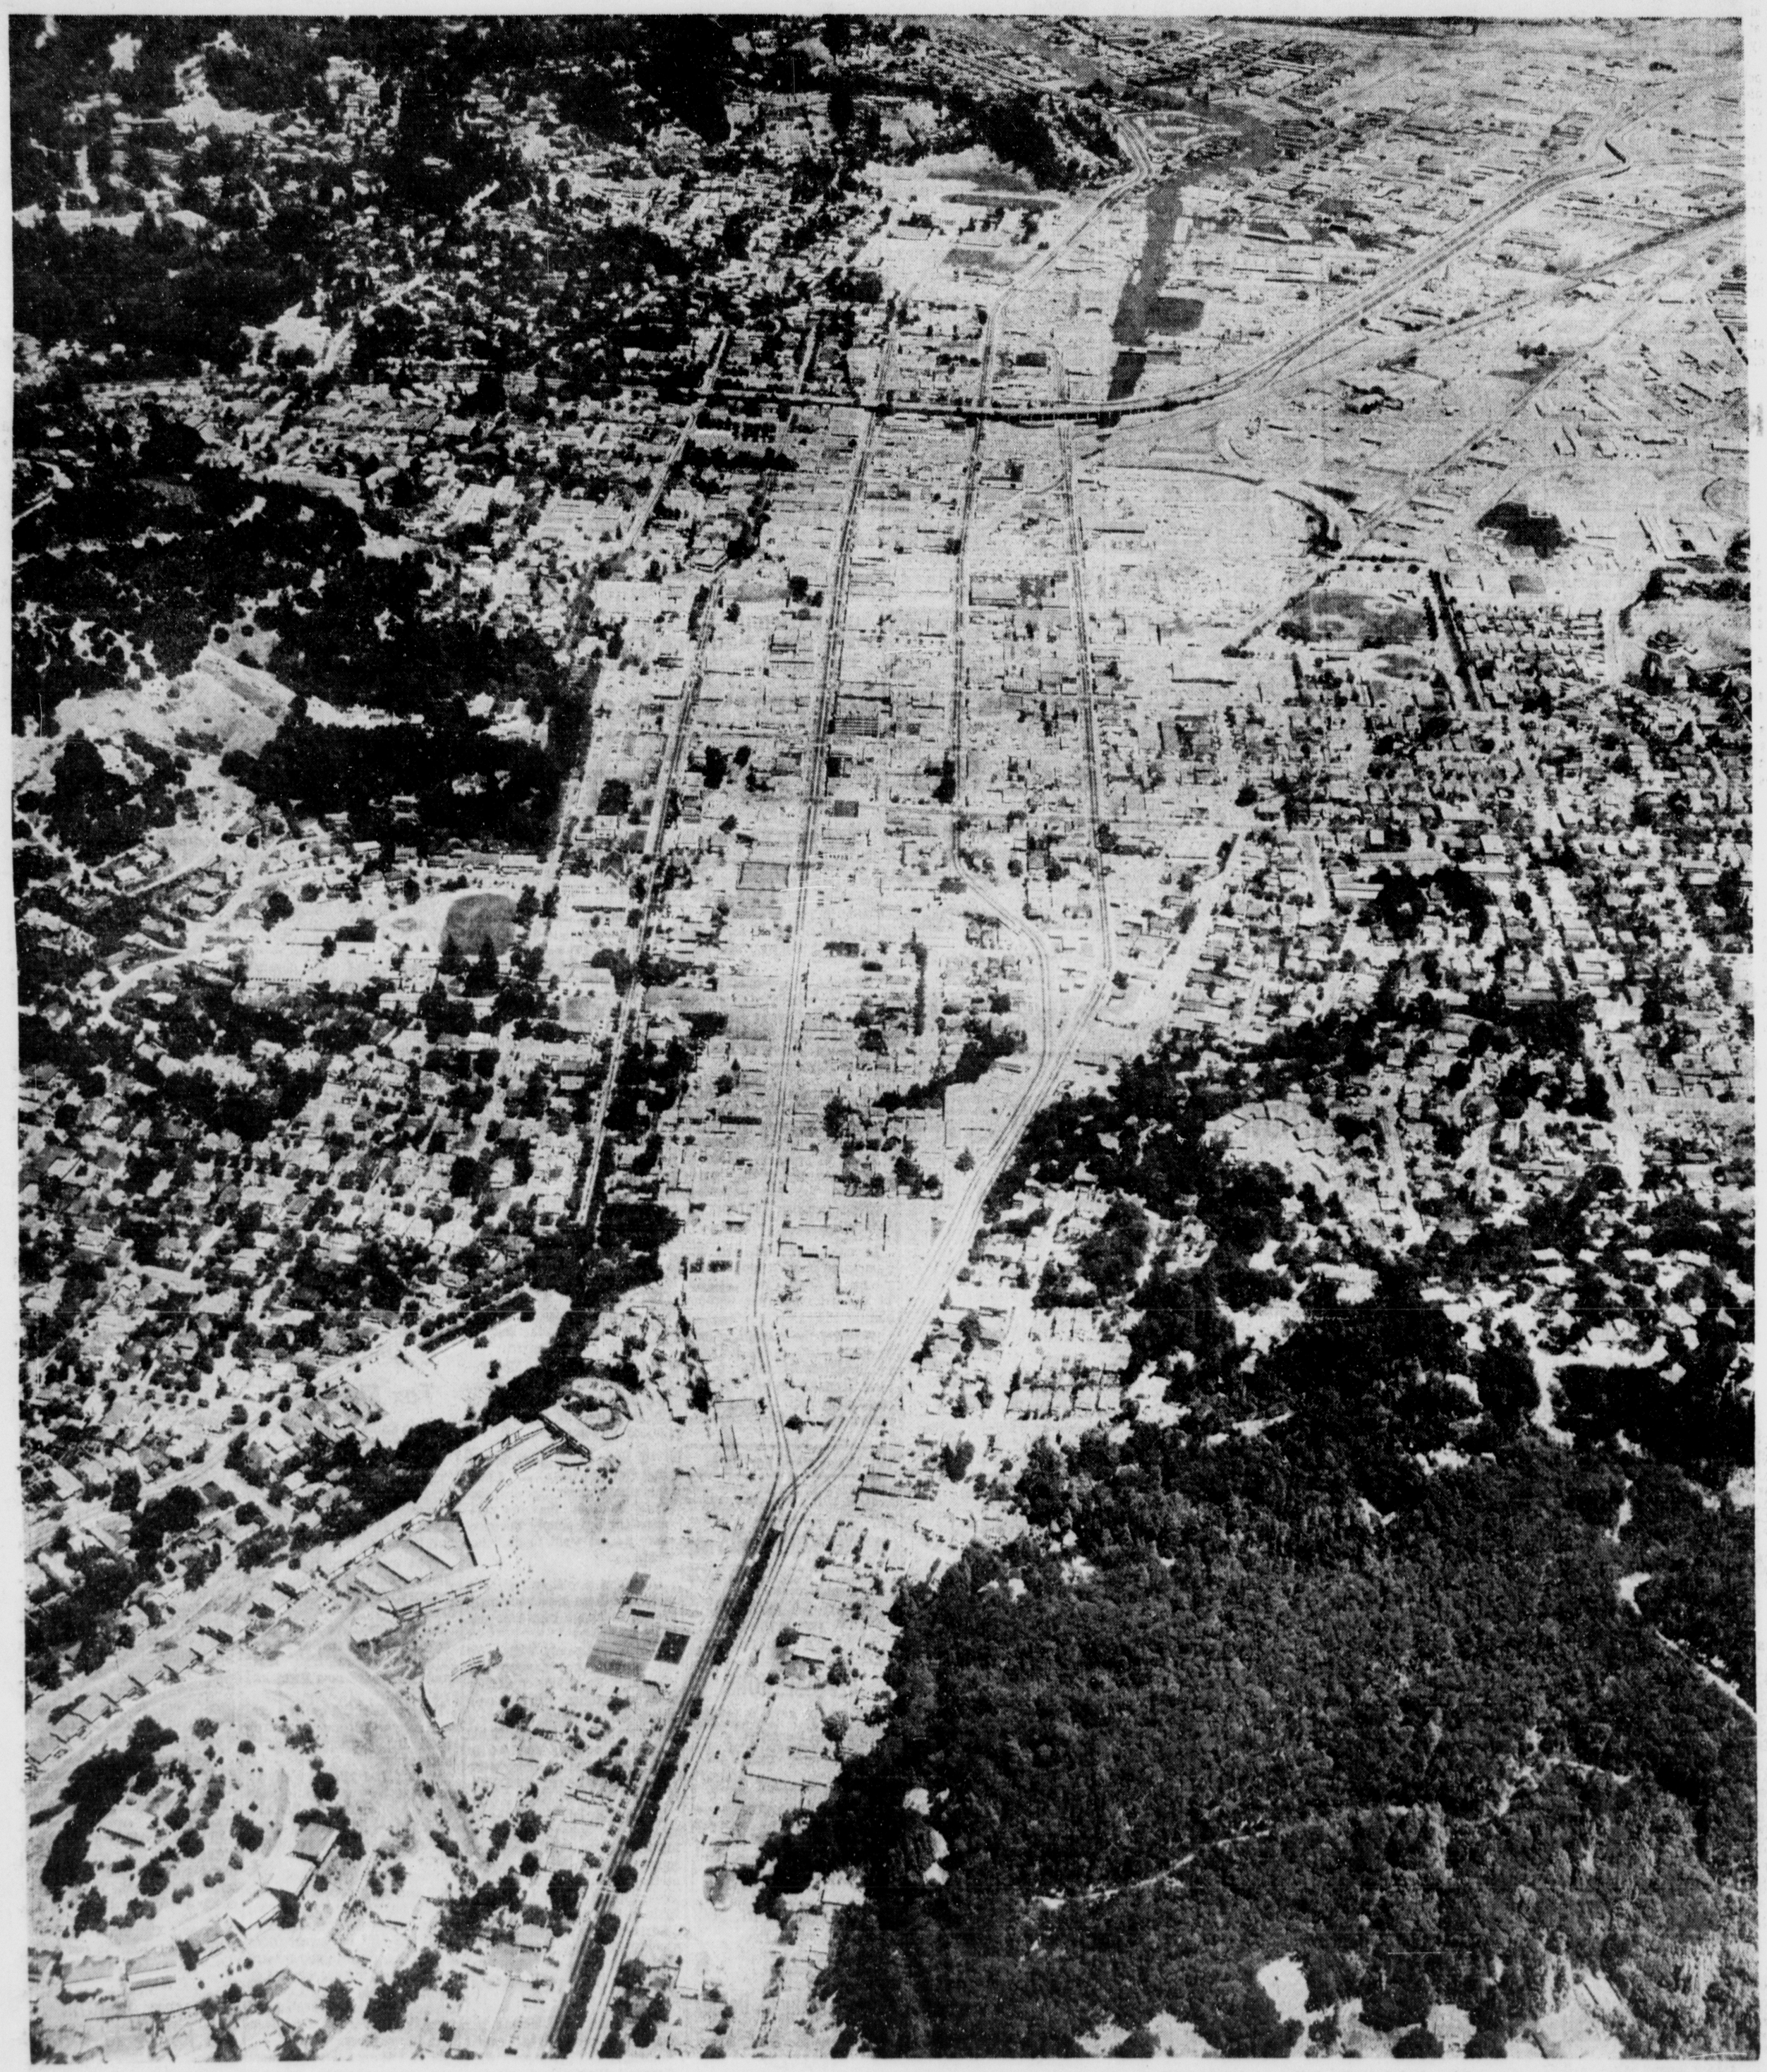
At 8 p.m. the board of adjustments will meet to consider action on a request from Geraldine Meyer to build an additional dwelling on a substandard lot at 1805 Centro West Street, in a duplex zone.

Reduction of a side setback for Dr. George Sugarman at Tamalpais Avenue and Main Street and of 26 variances for front and side yard setbacks on lots in Tiburon Knolls subdivision for Triangle Builders Inc. are also on the agenda.

Circus Dates Set By Sheriff's Group

A circus, including elephants, poodles, clowns, high-wire acts and seals, will be sponsored by the Marin County Deputy Sheriff's Association May 25 and May 26 on the Marin Catholic High School grounds.

Proceeds will benefit the Marin Aid to Retarded Children and will help provide special child training.



Marin County's Bustling Heartland

This view from high above the Miracle Mile (bottom of picture) as it flows into Second, Third and Fourth streets in San Rafael shows one route suggested for Highway 17. Already commuter-clogged from San Rafael to the Ross Valley, this is now one of the busiest arterials in the county. Downtown San Rafael appears in the center of the picture, with Highway 101 toward the top. Beyond the highway in the center is San Rafael High School, and, to its right, San Rafael Canal dotted with boat docks as well as homes and apartments. This aerial picture also shows clearly how the hills of even the heavily populated sections of Marin County have remained verdantly tree covered. (Photo by Aero Photographers)

Hub Officials Talk Of Traffic

San Anselmo city officials and citizens gave two traffic consultants the benefit of their ideas for solving street problems at a special meeting called in city hall Thursday.

Charles R. Leitzell, director of public works, said the meeting discussed short and long range projects with possible sollutions to traffic probelms city-wide.

Present were two representatives from Peat, Marwick, Livingston and Co., traffic consultants retained by the city to present recommendations.

"There will be several workshop sessions before the consultants come up with their overall suggestions in about three months," said Leitzell.

Lloyd Tunik is president of the Marin Mental Health Foundation.

Hospital To Be Session Topic

Reorganization of the rehabilitation program and plans for expansion of Center Medical Hospital will be discussed by the Marin County Health Facilities Planning Commission at 8 p.m. Monday at the hospital.

New officers of the commission, which is organized under the Marin County Social Planning Commission, are Alfred C. Bangert, chairman; Donald Barksdale, vice chairman, and Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, secretary.

Other members of the commission are Dr. Joseph J. Alderson, Albert Bianchi, Edward W. Bullard Jr., Peter Ferrarese, E. L. Griffith, Mrs. Roy A. Ibach, Dr. Carroll Russell, Dr. Michael School and Carroll A. Snyker.

NEW CITIZENS

From Dutch Underground To Marin; Couple Feels 'Lucky'

A Dutch couple who spent World War II working for the underground in Amsterdam are among the newest American citizens in Marin County.

Abram and Jacoba Wahl of 29 Seamast Passage, Corte Madera, took the naturalization oath together last month in ceremonies in San Francisco.

"We were lucky," is the way Mrs. Wahl describes their wartime experiences, saying that they were never arrested. She said he and her husband, riding bicycles through the Dutch capital, distributed newspapers printed by the underground.

After the war, Wahl spent 16 years in the Netherlands army. Seven years ago he decided to join his brother, Adolph, who had already come to California and was living in Tiburon at the time.

Through his brother, who is employed by Bob Ostrow Co. in San Francisco, Wahl also got a job there. He is a shipping clerk for the packaged meat firm.

The Wahls now own their own home in Corte Madera, where Mrs. Wahl enjoys gardening and baking. They have no children, and Mrs. Wahl works occasionally as a baby sitter.

"We will make our first visit to the Netherlands as American citizens this spring," she said proudly. This will be the second time the Wahls have returned to their homeland to visit relatives.

Other new citizens in Marin during February were:

SAN ANSELMO — Patrick James Bell, 191 Butterfield Road; and Mrs. Anna Elisabeth Pesl, 31 Woodruff Road.

SAUSALITO — Mrs. Margarete Luise Hays, Fort Baker.

MILL VALLEY — Elio Banducci, 30 Meadow Drive; Ian Currie MacFarlane, 354 Panoramic Highway, and Mrs. Keiko Tidwell, 626 Glenwood Court.

NOVATO — Charles Edward Day, 778 Sun Lane, and Mrs. Esme Graham, 2296 Vineyard Road.

Marinites Told Gold Impact Light

The gold crisis will have only a short-term effect on the United States, whose real problem is a deficit in balance of payments, a British diplomat and economist said in Marin last night.

David Hildyard, alternate delegate from the United Kingdom to the United Nations, spoke at College of Marin last night, replacing Lord Caradon, Britain's permanent U.N. representative, who had to cancel a speaking tour.

DEVALUATION

Devaluation of the dollar due to the gold situation would bring only short-term differences to our economy, Hildyard explained, because other countries' currency would be devalued, too —Hildyard said that the deficit in the balance of payments — caused because the United States does not export enough goods to balance with American currency spent abroad — cannot go on, however, and must be corrected. (See story, page 1.)

Hildyard, a former head of the Economic Relations Department at the British Foreign Office, said that the U.S. could solve its balance of payment problems through tax increases, credit restriction, or restriction on private investment abroad.

PEACE WOULD HELP

Hildyard said ending the Vietnam war would certainly help the deficit picture. He reiterated Britain's opposition to escalation of the war and use of nuclear weapons.

Hildyard predicted that "we can look forward to short periods of stability and peace."

"Things have been much worse at other periods than they are now," Hildyard said, adding that we now have the power to eliminate famine and disease and even solve political difficulties through the United Nations.

Hildyard spoke of England's descent from world power, saying that his country now is tied to Europe. He predicted some form of a united Europe.

Hildyard's appearance here was part of the concert-lecture series at College of Marin. He was entertained at a dinner before the lecture by the Marin Chapter, United Nations Association.

Presbyterian Church Moderator To Address Marin Gatherings

DR. EUGENE SMATHERS
To speak in Marin

Dr. Eugene Smathers, moderator of the 179th General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., will speak in Marin County during a March 25-28 tour of the Synod of the Golden Gate.

On March 26 at 6:30 p.m. Dr. Smathers will address leaders of the Redwood Presbytery at a dinner on the San Francisco Theological Seminary campus in San Anselmo.

Following dinner, he will speak at an open meeting at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church 72 Kensington Road, San Anselmo.

Dr. Smathers was elected to the church's top honorary position at the General Assembly session last year. He has served for 35 years as pastor of the Big Lick Calvary Church, located in the Tennessee hills.

He will also speak in Eureka, Burlingame, Berkeley, San Jose and Monterey during the four-day tour.

GUEST SPEAKER — Gideon Saguy, Israeli consul general in San Francisco, will speak at 11 a.m. tomorrow to the Men's Club of Congregation Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro, San Rafael. His topic will be "The Aftermath of June 1967."

Congregation Not Upset By Jet Noise

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A church abandoned because buzzing planes at the nation's busiest airport drowned out the prayers and sermons has become home base for a jet age circuit preacher's silent ministry.

Only the deaf worship now in Rev. Walter Busby's 40-member parish, unique in Florida.

They aren't disturbed by noise from landings and takeoffs at suburban Opa-Locka Airport, busiest in the nation with 596,949 landings or takeoffs last year. The planes' approach takes them directly over the weathered white cross on the Spanish tile roof of the church.

The Lutheran pastor has all five senses but gives his sermons, the liturgy of the service and leads prayer and hymns with the hand language of the deaf.

Behind the free-standing altar —turned so he can face his parishioners as they read his fingers — Pastor Busby folds his hands to say, "Let us pray."

Another Lutheran congregation built and used the adobe-colored building in which Trinity Deaf Zion now worships. But Harry F. Laduke, president of the earlier congregation, said "Our church body decided in 1960 that, with the airfield flight pattern being right over the roof, and our fronting on busy Northwest 27th Avenue, the noise Sunday after Sunday was affecting our attendance."

Laduke advertised in local newspapers and the first inquiry was from a representative of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

"I explained to him the noise and confusion that caused us to want to sell," Laduke said. "He want away and never came back."

Eventually, an ad led to purchase of the building for more than $40,000 by the National Deaf Zion of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Services at Trinity Deaf Zion are in the evenings, Sunday and Wednesday, because Pastor Busby ministers each Sunday morning to other deaf congregations — in Tampa, 200 flying miles away, and Pensacola, about 500 miles away.

In his official church role as missionary to the deaf in Florida since 1966, Pastor Busby also goes to north Florida for visits to five children at Sunland Training Center for the retarded in Marianna, services for 35 deaf patients at Chattahoochee State Mental Hospital, and to hold service and Monday Bible classes for 95 children at the Florida School for the Deaf.

NEW CHURCH COUNCIL EXECUTIVE

Rev. Clifford Crummey (second from left), a former pastor of the Mill Valley Methodist Church, was installed last week as executive director of the Northern California Council of Churches which encompasses Marin. Installation services were held last Saturday at Glide Memorial Church in San Francisco. With Reverend Crummey after installation, Dr. Russell S. Orr, (left), executive minister of the American Baptist Churches of Northern California; Rev. Anthony Wilhelm, council director of adult education and an observer-consultant for the Archdiocese of San Francisco, and Rt. Rev. Richard Millard, president of the council and Suffragan Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California. (UPI Telephoto)

A LENTEN THOUGHT

Pietists Of Church Get Gentle Rebuke

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. International

Joost de Blank is a Christian leader who cannot be accused of slighting the social applications of the gospel.

As Anglican Archbishop of South Africa from 1957 to 1964, he fought a courageous and uncompromising battle against apartheid.

A massive coronary attack in 1964 forced him to give up his stormy post at Capetown for a quieter assignment as canon of Westminster Abbey in London.

There, until his death last month, he found time for constructive brooding over the social action controversy which has brought many denominations, and local churches to the brink of schism.

His conclusions are expressed in a little book entitled "The Return of the Sacred" (Morehouse-Barlow), which would be excellent material for Lenten discussion groups.

Archbishop de Blank gently rebukes both "Christian pietists" who are entirely preoccupied with traditional aspects of worship and evangelism, and "Christian secularists" who think of the Church's mission solely in terms of social service.

The pietists, he says, need to remember the central affirmation of the Christian faith—"that God became man in Jesus Christ." The deepest meaning of the Incarnation is that "God has set His seal on the whole of life . . . Nothing lies outside His concern.

"Jesus, at the beginning of His public life, came preaching that the Kingdom of Heaven was at hand. Now whatever else the Kingdom means, it is certainly not limited to a person's private spiritual development.

"It must include man's life in society, with all that this means in terms of race, nation, politics, economic well-being and educational opportunity."

He then warns secularists that the Church cannot save itself from irrelevance by becoming so immersed in the ordinary life of mankind that it loses all sense of the sacred.

"A Church which thinks of itself exclusively as an instrument in the hands of those who have a conscience about the present state of the world is inadequate to meet the deepest needs of the human personality," he says.

"Man needs more than to be clothed and housed and fed. There is a famine of the spirit which may well be the major problem of those who live in the affluent society of the West . . . Our Lord came to this world to help people to BE, and not just to DO."

Archbishop de Blank is distressed by suggestions that worship services and other ordinary activities of parish life are of little value compared to social action. One of the most important jobs the Church has, he says, is "to look after the believers."

"Most of us are not strong enough to stand on our own feet without a regular recharging of our spiritual batteries. There must be regular occasions when Christians meet, in order to worship God, to be instructed in the faith, to share in the Eucharist, and to experience the reality of the divine fellowship.

"If any of these is missing, the residue is no true Church at all, and those who belong to it go forward sadly incomplete."

Any young minister who feels that he is "irrelevant" when he's not out marching on picket lines should ponder the Archbishop's observations about what parishioners look for in their pastor.

Basically, he says, they don't want him to be a social worker. "They want him to be their man of God who carries them and all their needs on his heart, who leads their worship whether they themselves are present or not, who offers the Holy Eucharist on their behalf, and who is their 'guide, philosopher and friend.'

National Church Council Literacy Drive Working

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Council of Churches has disclosed that the first three years of its five-year program to increase literacy and the publication of Christian literature around the world have met "with notable success."

The council said the campaign, under the aegis of its Committee on World Literally and Christian Literature (Lit-Lit), is being financed by a $1.5 million advance fund released by 11 Protestant denominations in the United States and Canada.

Lit-Lit has a regular $800,000 annual budget which sets up and sustains numerous publishing projects in many countries.

A spokesman said the impact of the campaign is being felt in Asia, Africa and Central and South America. Among the large projects are a $134,000 publishing house in Jakarta, Indonesia, a book distribution center in Japan, and a motorcycle brigade in Egypt to deliver books, periodicals and literacy materials to scattered Nile villages.

Church Cancels Evening Service

Rev. Wayne S. Jarboe, pastor of the first Baptist Church of Novato, has canceled the evening service tomorrow so that members of his church may attend an evangelism institute being held in Petaluma.

He expects approximately 100 people from his church to attend the institute being held in the Kenilworth High School in Petaluma.

Dr. A. M. Norton of San Francisco and Rev. Harry Williams of Hayward are conducting the institute.

Lesson-Sermon

"Substance" is the subject of this week's lesson-sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches tomorrow. The golden text is from Matthew.

Gives Up Sermons For Lenten Season

NORTH WALSHAM, England (UPI)—St. Nicholas Church has given up sermons for Lent.

The pastor said he replaced sermons with films because he thought they would have more impact on worshippers. After Easter he will return to sermons, he said.

THEOLOGIAN DOUBTS IT

Can Existence Of God Be Proven?

ST. PAULS, Minn., (UPI) — Is there any way of proving the existence of God?

No, says Presbyterian theologian John R. Bodo.

The various rational arguments for the existence of God, put forward by St. Thomas Aquinas, St. Anselm and other medieval scholastics, actually "prove nothing," says Dr. Bodo, who is chaplain at Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn.

On the other hand, the arguments used by those who proclaim the death of God "do not prove anything, either."

Dr. Bodo contends in an article in Presbyterian Life magazine that when it comes to "provable knowledge" of God, everyone is perforce an agnostic. The only choice is whether to be a believing agnostic or an unbelieving agnostic.

The unbelieving agnostic "gambles on the trustworthiness there is no creative will and and purpose behind the universe, no ultimate meaning to human existence.

The believing agnostic "gamles on the trustworthiness of Moses and of Jesus, who had the colossal nerve to say, 'He who has seen me has seen the Father'."

Dr. Bodo says it is senseless to talk about God's being dead. Immature and false concepts of God — as "a bearded granddaddy in the sky or a cosmic replication of Uncle Sam" — can and should die out of human thinking. But the God of Jewish and Christian faith, if He exists at all, is the author and sustainer and ultimate end of life; indeed, He IS life. And "to link this God — repeat, this God — with the adjective dead, is nonsense."

"But if God is not dead, is He perhaps asleep?"

This question, Dr. Bodo believes, haunts all believers at times. "It is a question usually born of pain and perplexity." It can be heard, over and over again in the Bible — in the Psalms, in the puzzled outcries of the stricken Job, and most poignantly of all, in Jesus' cry from the cross:

"My God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

Dr. Bodo says it is interesting to note that the question is raised most bluntly by "the godliest of men" at moments when they are "tasting the most bitter dregs of doubt." It rarely troubles "the peace-of-mind cultists, the super-patriots who never have any doubt that 'God' is on their side — indeed in their pocket."

"Deep anguish about God's silence — His non-intervention in time of need — is not a sign of loss of faith or faithlessness," he says. "More likely, it is the result of our inability to figure out what God is doing when He does not seem to be doing anything, while injustice is rampant and suffering exceeds all bounds."

Dr. Bodo is not the kind of theologian who insults hard questions with pat answers.

"There are no answers," he says. "This, too, can only be endured with a believing agnosticism — a posture of faith without knowledge, trust without proof."

"It has never been easy to believe in God," he concludes.

"But it is no more difficult today than it has ever been. And if I must be wrong about God, I'd rather be wrong with Jesus than with any of those who would have God either dead or asleep."

Lutheran Body Asks Delay On Council Joining

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—The American Lutheran Church's policy-making Church Council has recommended a delay until 1970 in a decision on whether to join the National Council of Churches.

The Church Council asked that American Luthern congregations throughout the country be given time to further inform themselves about the issues involved in the decision. It said more time is needed for the congregations to become adequately informed about the national council and its activities.

Moslem Women's Group Asks Ban On Missionaries

DJAKARTA (UPI) — The Moslem Women's Organization in Northern Sumatra has asked the Indonesian government to ban all religious missionary work except by Moslems.

The request by the organization Alwashlijah, of Atjeh, followed a report that Moslem legislators from Atjeh, in Northern Sumatra, had demanded the ouster of Chinese Christian legislators from the Indonesian parliament "since the number of Christians in Atjeh is too small to be represented." Atjeh has one of the most devout Moslem populations in Indonesia.

Annual Baptist Session Is Set

BOSTON (UPI)—The 61st annual meeting of the American Baptist Convention will be held in the War Memorial Auditorium here May 29-June 2.

More than 8,000 delegates, representing 6,200 American Baptist churches in in 40 states, including Hawaii and Alaska, as well as Puerto Rico, are expected to attend. They will adopt a 1969 budget, elect officers and consider resolutions on the issues of the day.

Today is Saturday, March 16, the 76th day of 1968 with 290 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning star is Venus. The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1882 the U.S. Senate approved a treaty making the United States a member of the Red Cross.

In 1945 Japanese resistance ended on Iwo Jima.

In 1966 astronauts Armstrong and Scott successfully docked their Gemini-8 with an Agena craft, a first in space history.

A thought for the day: British writer Izaak Walton once said, "Look to your health, and if you have it, praise God, and value it next to a good conscience."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

Always Pick The Right Time To Make Your Opponent Lead

In all of the end plays shown this week the basic idea has been the same: you give an opponent a trick at a time when anything he returns will benefit you. South used this principle twice in today's hand to bring home a difficult contract.

WITH DISTASTE

West opened the 10 of diamonds, and South looked at the dummy with distaste. The bidding was right out of the book, but the contract was as shaky as jelly in a hurricane. Declarer could count on winning tricks with the four aces, the king of diamonds, and either the jack or queen of clubs. He needed three other tricks for his contract.

Since there was no hurry about trying a finesse with the jack of diamonds, declarer played low from dummy at the first trick. East put up the queen, obviously a singleton, and South cleverly refused the trick. Any switch would help declarer.

East returned tthe 10 of hearts, which rode to dummy's queen. East's decision to lead from a king convinced South that East held the other king as well.

RUNS DIAMONDS

South ran the three diamonds, and East discarded a spade, a heart and a club. South then won a finesse with the jack of clubs and led out the ace of hearts.

East tried to get out by dropping the king of hearts. This allowed West to win the next heart trick with the jack. West returned the six of spades, but declarer played low from the dummy and won in his hand with the ace. South then cashed the ace of clubs and led his last club, forcing East to win with the king.

END-PLAYED

East was end-played again. He had to lead away from the king of spades, thus giving the game-going trick to dummy's queen of spades.

South would have gone down at least one trick if he had tried to win tricks with dummy's queens by his own efforts. He needed East's unwilling cooperation.

JUNIOR MISS — Oklahoma's Debbie Faubion, 18-year-old brunette crowned America's Junior Miss, has a tear wiped away by mother, Mrs. George Faubion Jr., as proud father looks on. (UPI Telephoto)

Junior Miss Title Goes To Former Judge Of Cows

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—The Southwest claimed its second national beauty title in as many years today following the crowning last night of Oklahoma's Debbie Faubion as 1968 America Junior Miss.

Miss Faubion, an 18-year-old brunette who once judged a beauty contest for cows, succeeded Rosemary Dunaway of Little Rock, Ark. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Faubion Jr. of Norman, Okla.

The Oklahoma titlist won a total of $13.400 in college scholarships and a trip to Europe. She won $3.000 of the scholarship money by winning preliminary events earlier in the week.

Julie Stonecither, Washington's Junior Miss, was first runnerup and received a $6,000 scholarship.

"I couldn't think . . . I couldn't think . . . America, that's a lot," Miss Faubion said shortly after being crowned as the new first lady of America's youth.

Miss Faubion's parents were here for the grand finale and she and her father and mother "turned their nametags upside down for good luck."

"Someone told me if you win the preliminaries you should turn your nametags upside down for good luck," said Miss Faubion, who wants to be a schoolteacher. She enters the University of Oklahoma next fall.

Miss Faubion, who once judged a beauty contest for cows in a project for her Future Farmers of America chapter, praised the outgoing Junior Miss, Rosemary Dunaway.

"If I can do one-one-hundredths of what she's done it'll help me to be a better person," she said. "There are so many places that I'm not very good."

Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court yesterday issued $1,000 bench warrants for Phillip G. Willliams, 40, of Sacramento, and Ronald R. Lopez, 31, of Oakland, operators of Pacific Studios in San Rafael.

The partners, who have pleaded guilty to charges they paid their employees with bad checks, failed to appear in court yesterday for sentencing. A probation officer reported they did not keep their appointments with him.

Committees To Discuss School Needs

Salaries, a budget, and federal grants for educational materials and consultants will be discussed Monday in tree Marin County Board of Education committee meetings at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

At 7:30 p.m., the Administrative Services Committee will work on a revision requested by the board of a salary schedule for administrators.

At the same time, the Special Education Committee will present its budget of approximately $1,079,000 to cover programs for mentally retarded, physically and educationally handicapped pupils, according to Asst. Supt. Stanley H. Friese.

The committee will also consider asking board approval to apply for $25,000 under the State Adult Education Act to expand the literacy training program at San Quentin Prison.

The Educational Services Committee, at 8:30 p.m., will discuss applications for federal grants for social studies and science instructional materials and to provide guidance and counseling experts to work with teachers and pupils in schools districts.

Poverty War Office Gets Offers To Assist Family

The Economic Opportunity Council in Marin said yesterday it has received scores of offers to donate food and clothing to the family of Mrs. Evelyn Allen of San Rafael.

William D. Robinson, an EOC community worker, said the goods would be delivered to the Allen home at 1309 Second Street, and reported the family was very grateful.

Electrictiy in the home, shut off because of non-payment of a bill, has been restored through several cash contributions, Robinson said.

Robinson praised the public response, saying he was busy with telephone calls into the EOC office throughout yesterday. He said the Family Service Agency of Marin and other social service groups also had received offers of help.

A story about Mrs. Allen, broke and recently unable to work steadily, appeared in Thursday's Independent-Journal. There are six children at the house.

Robinson who began helping the family in December, said he was trying to assist other families living under similar conditions in Marin.

Fence Controls Prepared For Council Action

Final adoption by San Rafael City Council is expected Monday of a zoning ordinance that prohibits present, as well as future, fences, hedges and screens over certain heights.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in city hall.

Also on the agenda is first reading of an ordinance adopting 1967 editions of the building and mechanical code.

An encroachment permit is being sought by the Villa Real Homeowners Association to reconstruct and relandscape the entrance to their homes at Balboa and San Pedro Road.

ERIN BOASTS ADOPTIVE SONS APLENTY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wearing shamrocks on their clothes and smiles on their faces, 125.000 real and adopted sons of Ireland marched up Fifth Avenue today in the 206th annual St. Patrick's Day parade.

To honor the day, there was hardly a New Yorker to be seen not "wearing the green." The color dominated everything, from shop windows to bars to nightclubs, offices and factories.

In a display of ecumenism, the marchers included the United Association of American Indians, led by a Coney Island chief named Running Horse and the Loyal League of Yiddish Sons of Erin.

Potatoes were introduced to North America about 1719 but their acceptance was very slow and it wasn't until 1840 that they were included in the U.S. farm census.

Belvedere Planners Get Office Plans

The Belvedere Planning Commission will meet at 8 p.m. Monday in the community center to consider design approval of a real estate office at Mar West Street and Tiburon Boulevard.

The office, now at Lyford Drive and Round Hill Road, Tiburon, was formerly a tract office in Marinero for the Heath Land Co. It will be moved by its new owner, the Home and Land Co., which also has offices in Strawberry and Sausalito.

Village Square Nominates Slate

The Village Square Association of Corte Madera has selected its slate of officers to be presented for election April 11 at 8 a.m. in the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce building.

Special Meeting Set For Hub Councilmen

The San Anselmo City Council will hold a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in city hall to consider modification of the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard traffic signal at Ross Avenue, City Clerk Anita M. Gannon announced today.

The signal is now at Econo-Lite Co. in Los Angeles for repair of fire damage. City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell has proposed that it be modified so that it would turn green for traffic from Barber and Ross avenues only on the approach of vehicles on those streets, thus increasing the free flow of traffic on Drake Boulevard and San Anselmo Avenue.

Fall Victim Fair

Mildred Culver, 72, of 83 Montford Avenue, Mill Valley, was listed in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital, where she was taken after falling on a sidewalk at 96 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, yesterday. She suffered a broken hip, hospital officials said.

Plan For Marin City To Reshape Itself

NOT SO MANY YEARS AGO, if you wished to "wave a red flag" before a dedicated integrationist, all you had to do is say, "Before the Negro can expect to be accepted by the rest of society, he must prove himself worthy. He must demonstrate ability to take responsibility. He must show he can conduct himself properly."

The Rev. Sam Banks of Marin City admittedly sacrificed some of his popularity among more ardent integrationists when he advocated a kind of "do it yourself," or "pull ourselves up by our own bootstraps" approach to improving the plight of black Marin City residents.

Comes now James C. Fleming of San Francisco State College with an imaginative new plan for attacking Marin City's problems.

At the risk of over-simplifying what he proposes, you could say he wants with a minimum of outside white help to have Marin City's black population seek solution to its problems within its own circle.

Before integration can fully succeed, he says, black Americans must prepare fully for it.

FLEMING IS HIS OWN best example of what he is talking about.

He left his segregated Kentucky home to come west "to conquer the world" with only a few dollars in his pockets but with determination and full confidence in himself. He was sure he would succeed and he has. He finished college successfully in California and has gone on to important graduate study.

The ghetto Negro, by contrast, lacks determination and self-confidence. These deficiencies contribute to his oppression. You might say he is in part self-oppressed.

It is easy enough to rationalize that a lifetime of job discrimination, substandard education, poverty, substandard diet and so on have left him with a sense of frustration and a defeatist attitude.

HOW IS IT, THEN, that black men like Jim Fleming come along with ambition, determination, and complete self-confidence?

To repeat, Fleming is his own best example of what he is talking about. The segregated Negro community in which he lived was in a sense a complete community. It included successful Negro business and professional men. Their presence was proof to the young blacks that "it can be done, you can succeed if you work hard enough."

And Fleming himself is his own best proof of this.

AMONG HIS PROPOSALS for Marin City are business enterprises operated by black Americans.

He envisions a restaurant owned and operated by Negroes which would—like a first-rate Chinese restaurant—appeal to all. At the same time, it would provide on-the-job training in a variety of skills. And what is important, it would be by, of and for Negroes.

Fleming's imagination envisions a Marin City development which ultimately would be a visitor attraction like Chinatown.

WHAT IS THE BIGGEST obstacle to realization of such a plan?

It probably is Marin City itself. It is so criss-crossed with factionalism that it is difficult if not impossible to get everybody working toward common goals.

Already Fleming has had meetings with Marin City leaders to attempt to surmount this obstacle by seeking to find things which the factions can agree on, as a beginning.

FLEMING'S IMAGINATIVE PLAN, if successful, could be a landmark in America's history of racial problems.

There is nothing more American than a group of Americans getting together to work out a solution to their own problems.

A counterpart of this would be for the rest of us to jump in and help those who are struggling valiantly to help themselves.

If Marin Citians "buy" Fleming's idea, we expect they'll get unsolicited help from outside.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Call For All-Out War In Vietnam

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Many times in the past, such as in the Berlin Airlift, the Cuban crisis and others, I have heard it said that we really had little to fear from Russia, because her people would not support the government in the event of war. This would give them the opportunity to revolt which they have been waiting for. These thoughts were of comfort to me here in this land of unity, pride and resolve. Let no nation attempt to divert us in our pursuit of liberty and justice for all and in the pursuit of our commitments and honor, else we would rise as one and successfully defend our ideals.

Is the same still true or does not Ho Chi Minh take strength and comfort in the divided image we present? Does he not feel that the people will not continue to back our commitments in Southeast Asia? Does he not therefore press harder and harder while we continue to passively resist and argue among ourselves before the world?

In my opinion we must act decisively and with all of our power and now. I favor using the tools which we have to our best advantage. Destroy North Vietnam's harbors, docks, railyards, roads, dikes, power plant, water supplies and anything and everything useful to them in waging the war. Mobilize our manpower and resources. This is war, nothing less. Let's act like it is. . . .

I say let's get the job done. We all know we can. Let's start now.

The alternative is to get out, but how do we accomplish this without the loss of tens of thousands of American and South Vietnamese lives as we withdraw and after? And after this, Mr. American, how do you propose to walk this earth with yourhead up with pride? with your head up with pride?

Souza Against Fairfax Bond Issue

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I wish to correct an error in your reporting of the vote on the Fairfax Civic Center bond issue. (See March 12, pg. 11). Contrary to your statement, I did not vote to put the Civic Center on the ballot. The vote on this issue was 4-1 (Souza objecting), as the official minutes of our March 11 Council meeting will indicate. I have consistently voted against the Civic Center ballot measure. I feel that bond issues should be placed before the people for critically needed capital improvements only. In my opinion this is not the situation in Fairfax. In good conscience I cannot vote for a bond issue when I oppose the project.

Granted the need for the firehouse is pressing, but I don't go along with the majority of the city council in consenting to dislodge our biggest employer in town, the Fairfax French Laundry, in order to construct a new firehouse. Further, the need for new city hall facilities, sacrificing our beautiful redwoods in the process, is highly questionable.

I would vote for and support a bond issue if a sensible site for a new firehouse were proposed (for example, near its present location on Park Road) and at a reasonalbe cost to the taxpayer. I strongly disagree with Councilman (Peter R.) Arrigoni that this entire proposed Civic Center project can be financed with no increase in taxes.

McCarthy Changes Mind About That Second Bridge

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A statement in January by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, that he would revive his 1957 proposal for a second crossing to Tiburon seems to have gone no further than a few words breathed into the air.

His statement was made at a legislative workshop with county supervisors, who promptly and unanimously condemned the proposal. It envisions a bridge from Tiburon across Angel and Alcatraz islands to Russian Hill in San Francisco.

Nothing more was heard from McCarthy on the subject of getting people across the bay until last week, when he revived his 1959 proposal for a Golden Gate Authority. This would be a regional agency to take over the Golden Gate Bridge and all other bridges. Eventually, it also woud take over ports and airports.

HIS STAFF TERMED the senator's move to revive the authority proposal "a strong shift of direction" from his January statement on a second crossing. It would be small wonder, considering the warm reception given his January proposal.

Besides the condemnation of the supervisors, who want the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District preserved in some form to provide bridge revenue for Marin Transit District, McCarthy's second crossing proposal clearly was unpopular with the voters— judging from his own poll early last year.

The poll showed that 85 per cent of the 9,380 voters who responded want future transportation funds to go to provide rapid transit, not to move more private cars.

The second crossing suggestion also ignored the report on the Golden Gate corridor made last May by the state Division of Bay Toll Crossings. It found that such a crossing would cost $500 million more than all funds that could be dug up for the project.

It seems to have been a case of second thoughts about a second crossing.

AN I-J EXCLUSIVE: Now it can be told for the first time why Gov. Ronald Reagan has such a hard time getting his legislative program through the Senate and Assembly.

It's not because his good looks or remarkable lack of gray hair annoy the legislators.

It's because his staff does not desire to drink and eat at the same restaurant as the one long-favored by legislators and third house members, the lobbyists. These veterans mostly go to Posey's, where a good deal of the state's important business is decided, while Reagan's staff goes to Blum's — in the opposite direction from the capitol.

Legislating is a personal affair, and if the governor's staff fails to drink and eat with the boys, then they can't really expect to be noticed when they come trotting down the legislative aisles with stacks of bills they want passed.

HIPPIES SEEM rare in the Assembly (discounting those members who favor long locks), but the jargon of the new generation has made it in the Assembly lounge. Smack on a bare wall is a bumper sticker: "Marvellous Uptight Marin."

A SENATOR'S NOTEBOOK

Hasty Decisions Fail To Serve Democracy

By EVERETT McKINLEY DIRKSEN

The critics of Congress who are the sharpest and most intolerant are always in a hurry. They want things done quick and now. They bring an imperious touch to their criticisms and that is an attribute of dictatorship.

The attacks against this Congress now appearing throughout the land would have you think it is a lazy, an ineffective, quarrelsome, do-nothing and misguided Congress, or whatever other term of opprobrium may come to mind.

In eight terms in the House of Representatives and three terms in the Senate I have many times heard such criticisms leveled at the work of Congress. I have heard them with interest, of course, and with much concern. Now, I am going to put in my nickel's worth.

OURS IS A FREE democracy in a republic where all the people select those who speak for them — be it the president, legislators, governors, county judges or township commissioners. On election day, all qualified persons are kings and queens who exercise their sovereign power.

What they get to represent them in the state capitals and in Washington is of their own free choosing.

Many people from different walks of life make up the elected representatives of the people and Congress is no exception. Its members either have developed some genuine pride in the house where they serve, or, as in some cases, they merely sit and serve out their time. It is those possessed of that special pride in Congress who help to make our system of law a working system.

YOU CAN'T DO THINGS in a hurry in Congress. The quick-and-now people ought to understand how the Congress must perform in order to give wise and dutiful service.

When the elected representatives of the kings and queens of our land come together they quickly discover that every one of them has brought to his task his own ideas and convictions on public matters. Since the legislative bodies all operate on the principle of majority rule it is necessary that the members harmonize those views sufficiently to meet the challenges of the times. This is done through the technique of committee hearings, testimony on both sides of a proposition, committee consideration and committee report and then consideration before the main body of the Congress.

In a free society, all of those procedures do not move very fast or very far at one time. It is like a waterlogged scow. It moves slow but it doesn't sink.

Democracy is like that.

NOT ONLY DOES the Constitution have built-in safety valves and brakes, but Congress itself has set up a system of restraints that can act effectively upon imperious, impulsive, impossible and irresponsible legislation.

Many people look to the government for the solution of all problems and the very bulk of their requests and demands acts as a slowing down process on legislation. When the demands become too emotional, when the quick-and-now people bring too great pressure on the government, then the two houses of Congress must restore emotional balance. In this respect one can recall how the failure to obtain cloture kept President Franklin D. Roosevelt from packing the Supreme Court. So it has been on other legislation in the past. So it is today and so it will be in the future.

In the United States nobody would want to swap our system for a dictatorship that can get things done quick and now with a simple decree that is a final order.

It may be conceded that Congress may sometimes appear to waste a good deal of time. But time is not really wasted. Congress, whose members are selected by popular vote, acts all of the time as a buffer against hasty, arbitrary action.

Tough Question Faces U.S. In Pueblo Negotiations

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

While North Korean and United States representatives exchange insults at Panmunjom, the 82 surviving crewmen of the U.S.S. Pueblo moulder in captivity somewhere in North Korea.

There has been no suggestion that their release is anywhere near imminent.

On the contrary there have been suggestions that the affair could drag on for months.

THE UNITED STATES position has been difficult from the start. Now it seeks alternatives.

Although real negotiations seem to have progressed little beyond the stage of charge and counter-charge, both sides have indicated some change of position through propaganda broadcasts and other unofficial exchanges.

When the North Koreans seized the Pueblo on Jan. 23 off the North Korean coast near the port of Wonsan, Secretary of State Dean Rusk advised them to "cool it", and said "there can be no satisfactory result short of prompt... release of that ship and its officers and crew."

Among more hawk-like congressmen there was a demand that the United States blast its way into the port to release ship and crew.

On their side, the North Koreans declared "these criminals must be dealt with by law."

BOTH SIDES accused the other of aggression.

The United States declared the North Koreans seized the ship in international waters. The North Koreans, who claim their international waters to extend 12 miles from shore, said they took the vessel 7.6 miles from the coast.

Subsequently, former Secretary of Denfense Robert S. McNamara said "we cannot say beyond a shadow of a doubt" that the Pueblo did not enter North Korean waters. And subsequently, the North Koreans hinted in broadcasts that they might consider leniency for the Pueblo's crew in exchange for a U.S. apology.

The North Koreans have described the Pueblo as a spy ship. The United States has never denied it was an intelligence vessel.

THE ADVANTAGE lies with the North Koreans since they have possession of both ship and crew and since the United States obviously does not wish a war now in both Southeast and Northeast Asia.

When the U.S. U-2 reconnaisance plane piloted by Gary Powers was shot down over Russia in May, 1960, former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev blew up a summit conference in Paris two weeks later with a demand that President Eisenhower apologize. Eisenhower refused, and Powers spent most of the next two years in a Soviet prison.

On the other hand, in recent months, the United States has apologized not only to Red China but also to North Korea for overflights by U.S. aircraft. There were admitted violations.

The question now is, should the United States apologize, for the sake of its 82 men, for something it may not have done?

THE AGED AND THEIR PROBLEMS

Older people face many unforeseen crises, points out a report of the Senate Special Committee on Aging.

Investigators going from home to home found many such persons living in isolation and withdrawal that amazed them. Whether in cold, bare room or a comfortable suburban home, loneliness and helplessness were often found. "No one has knocked on my door for months," was an all-too common comment.

Inability to clean and repair, to shop or cook, to get doctors to keep up with friends were the chief lacks.

The study stresses the need for the elderly to prepare in advance for the years ahead.

It is easy to become so pre-occupied with our own affairs that we forget to show that we truly care for the aged and their problems.

We should make it our business to look for practical ways to be of continuing service to older persons who need us. God wants us to show concern for people who cannot help themselves.

"Be gracious to me; for I am lonely and afflicted. Relieve the troubles of my heart."
(Psalm 25:16)

Lord, help me to show a solicitude for the needs of older persons.

A rumor going the rounds in European diplomatic circles has President Charles de Gaulle about to spring a new French constitution on his somewhat disillusioned countrymen. This constitution will begin: "Article One: General de Gaulle is never wrong. Article Two: In the unthinkable event that he does make a mistake, Article One still applies."

Booming South Korea Sets Example For Asian Nations

SEOUL (UPI) — Yesterday's Vietnam is a boon country today.

South Korea makes bankers smile.

Recently the World Bank, the American-directed lending agency with a heart of gold and the hand of a thrifty Scot, studied the worth of the nation that 15 years ago lay ruined by an anti-Communist war.

The report judged the South Korean economy as in a "state of sustained growth," something of a rave notice in financial circles.

Park Choong-Hoon, deputy prime minister and master economic strategist, told United Press International that South Korea's industry showed a 22.4 per cent rise in 1967.

"We believe that is the highest in the world," he said

The leaders in Seoul are getting used to the joy of rattling off financial figures of success, like the men who made the postwar economic miracles of West Germany and Japan. South Korea's 30 million citizens exported more than $350 million in goods last year compared to $32 million in 1960. Although the Land of the Morning Calm harvested a poor rice crop, South Korea is ahead of schedule in its goal of $500 million in exports this year.

"South Korea," said U.S. AID official, "has taken off."

Last year alone South Korea opened three new fertilizer factories, coming t the aid of a nation of small independent farmers. The little plots crowd together on rolling hills still scarred by old war wounds and must feed one of the world's most crowed lands. The per capita income is still only $120 a year. But the success story has gone down to the farm.

In 1960 the farmers produced 5.2 million metric tons of grain. Last year, despite a drought that undid North Vietnam's communized farms, the South Korean husbandmen produced 7 million metric tons.

Three out of four South Koreans are on the farm. They produce only 40 per cent of the annual treasure the World Bank talks of as "gross national product." It is the booming industry, employing less than a quarter of the population, that produces most of the treasure.

Although South Korea entered the 20th Century economically about the time Elvis Presley was beginning to strum guitars in the 1950's, it now exports more than 200 manufactured items. "Made in Korea" is becoming almost as common as "Made in Japan" to American shoppers.

The United States if the biggest customer for South Korean exports that include plywood, textiles, canned food, chemicals, sewing machines, electrical appliances, rubber products and ceramics. For Americans, it is like buying from one's successful stepson.

The United States has given South Korea more than $4.5 billion in aid. But the aid long ago began trickling to an end, with the American taxpayer today mainly aiding only the 24 South Korean divisions keeping North Korean dictator Kim Il-Sung at bay.

Unlike some nations, the South Koreans freely acknowledge their gratitude to the United States.

"Korea is the shining example of American foreign policy," Park said.

Like the Japanese who snatched the great prizes of shipbuilding from Europe and the West Germans who keep resident salesmen even in Moscow, the South Koreans have gone far beyond recovery from war.

Editor George Chaplin of the Honolulu Advertiser reported he found "a new spirit of confidence" during a lengthy study of South Korea.

"Clearly, the Koreans are in a hurry, so much so that I sensed a concern in some quarters that they may be trying to do too much too fast, over-extending themselves domestically," Chaplin wrote.

"But the overriding 'plus' is that their outlook and actions have changed from those of the mendicant to those of the confident man. This self-esteem has been evolving over six or seven years but has become really noticeable in the last three or four years. And it should be of great satisfaction to the U.S."

In Saigon, where often frustrated American aid officials still must dream of success, they point South Vietnamese eyes to another Asian land as the example of what hard work can do.

"Look at South Korea," is their phrase.

NEW HAMPSHIRE FEVER HITS STATE

Results Of The Tiny State's Tuesday Primary Outcome Cause Stir In High Political Circles

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — New Hampshire is a distant state with a population about the size of Sacramento County, and an area about the size of Kern County but only less than half the size of San Bernardino County.

The state has two congressional districts and the vote in Tuesday's primary election totaled only 143,000 votes, less than the 10 larges counties in California cast in 1966.

But the cote, which found President Lyndon B. Johnson collecting only 48 per cent of the vote, to 42 per cent for Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Wisc., and Richard M. Nixon outdistancing New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefelled by 83,071 to 11.517, has been the talk in California political circles since.

Gov. Ronald Reagan termed it a "hollow victory" for Nixon because of no formal opposition — Rockefeller's votes came via a write-in campaign. Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, one of California's top Democrats, said the vote indicated Johnson's deep troubles with the voters and suggested he not seek re-election.

Instead, Unruh said, it was the duty of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-New York, to seek the presidency. Should Kennedy be a candidate, it is assumed Unruh would play a key role, as he would in the administration, should Kennedy run and be elected.

The California primary took on more significance with the filing of the slate of delegates headed by Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch, which is technically unpledged but which is pro-Johnson.

The 174-member delegation included 17 congressmen, 12 assemblymen and seven senators. Delegates at large included former Governor Edmund G. Brown, San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, actor Gregory Peck, and James Roosevelt, former congressman.

Meanwhile, the slate of delegates for McCarthy became the first to be qualified for the June 4 primary election ballot, meaning it will have top spot.

And in the Oregon primary, Reagan has wired the secretary of state that he will not ask to have his name removed from the ballot because he is a favorite son candidate, but announced again that he is "not and under no circumstances" will become a candidate for the office of vice president.

As the deadline for payment of the new and higher state personal income tax looms, on April 15, Reagan insists his feet still are in concrete on the issue of a withholding tax.

However, the governor admitted a lot of Californians may think it's a good thing, come April 15. He repeated his statement that the only thing which could change his mind would be a showing of the people, in terms he could accept, that they had changed over and would favor the payroll withholding route for state income taxes.

To further his argument against a withholding, Reagan noted the high level of criticism of the tax increase this year and pointed out that, had there been a withholding tax, the boost might have passed without the present outcry. Reagan always has said he feels the taxes should be painful.

THE DEMOCRATS finally have an official entry in the race for the U.S. senate. Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, a dove on the Vietnam war and a subscriber to the Presidential riot commission report, said he will seek the Democratic nomination.

Beilenson, who was an assemblyman from 1962-66 and was elected to the senate that year, was the author of the therapeutic abortion bill last year, one of the most-noted bills of the session. Beilenson is one of only several legislative members of the slate of delegates for McCarthy on the primary election ballot but said his campaign would be conducted separately.

Property tax relief legislation has been introduced in the Assembly by Assemblyman John G. Veneman, R-Modesto, on behalf of Reagan.

The bill provides for the funneling of about $155 million to the counties, who in turn would pass this on in the way of lowered property tax. The bill calls for repeal of the tax on household goods and personal effects, beginning in 1969.

In return for the half-cent in sales tax revenues, which comes to somewhat more than $155 million, the counties would assume complete financing for $36 million in programs for which the state presently pays.

General Fund receipts to the state totaled $1,788 billion during the first eight months of 1967-68, up 47.1 per cent from a year ago but still falling far short of the $2.12 billion in expenditures.

State Controller Houston I. Flournoy said the increase was due primarily to acceleration of income tax payments and increases in the cigarette and sales taxes. Borrowing from internal sources increased by $108 million during February, leaving million during February, leaving a temporary loan balance on Feb. 29 of $498 million.

Behind The News

This Week In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The key words in the presidential campaign became "by March 22" in the wake of a New Hampshire primary that had more effect on the race than any in the history of the state's primary voting.

The results of the vote in which Democratic candidate Sen. Eugene McCarthy showed President Johnson's drop in popularity and Richard Nixon made a strong bid to open an insurmountable lead for the Republican nomination is bringing early commitments from two potentially powerful candidates.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy suddenly announced he was considering getting into the Democratic race and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller announced he was thinking of becoming a declared candidate for the Republican nomination.

Kennedy's reason for having second presidential thoughts was the 22,810 Democratic votes McCarthy drew to Johnson's 26,337, or 42 per cent to 48 per cent.

Rockefeller, an uncampaigning write-in candidate in New Hampshie, drew 11,791 votes to Nixon's 84,005. Aides of the New York Governor said he recognized he must show his votegetting strength.

MANY-SIDED WAR

Moment Of Truth Near In Vietnam?

"It will be either them or us in the next few weeks."—High ranking Marine officer below DMZ.

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The United States is fighting to come from behind in Vietnam were frontline officers believe the war could come to a climax in a matter of weeks.

At the moment, both the military and diplomatic initiative clearly lies with the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong. They will decide when and where to fight and when and where to negotiate.

It is a many sided war whose front lines extend from the besieged Marine fortress at Khe Sahn below the Vietnam Demilitarized Zone to the U.S. home front where debate is carried on in the supercharged atmosphere of a presidential election year.

Here are some unpleasant truths:

The Communists sense victory. The previous low point of the war came in the early spring of 1965. Three years later the situation cannot be said to have deteriorated back to that same low. But last fall's battle of Dak To in the highlands and the New Year offensive against the cities clearly demonstrated that the initiative now lies with the Communists. They have new, sophisticated weapons and are willing to take enormous losses. Their determination has shown no indication of faltering.

With the military and diplomatic initiative in Communist hands, the United States also has only limited influence over its South Vietnamese allies who feel the U.S. commitment is so deep it cannot afford to abandon them.

The pacification program without which there can be no victory in Vietnam is in a shambles and no one will predict when it will get going again. Nor has there been an assessment made of the damage done when South Vietnamese forces abandoned the countryside to fight in the cities. Only a few units have returned to the pacification assignment.

As a result of the Communists' offensive, Gen. William C. Westmoreland has said he will need more troops, above the 525,000 previously authorized. In public these demands have been fairly modest. Other assessments have placed the number he will need at between 200,000 and 300,000 men.

Since August, South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice President Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky have been promising to increase their own 600,000-man army by 60,000. These troops so far have not materialized.

The President and Vice President also have promised to clean up official corruption in South Vietnam's 43 provinces. It has been estimated that up to three-quarters of the province chiefs should be replaced. So far there has been no real action, except for the naming of new commanders for II corps covering central South Vietnam and IV corps in the Mekong Delta.

Former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, in a generally gloomy report to Congress cited last fall's Vietnamese elections as about the only "encouraging progress" of recent months. McNamara's report was written before the outbreak of the Communist offensive. The Saigon government has not been able to set up a popular base and since the offensive has arrested many religious, labor out of an apparent fear of a rise of neutralism.

These reports come from UPI correspondents:

STEWART HENSLEY
UPI State Dept. Reporter

Top administration officials believe the real objective of the Communist winter-spring offensive is to tie the Americans down in defending such outposts as Khe Sanh and various U.S. military installations and to force the South Vietnamese army back into defending provincial capitals. If successful, the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces then could undo the work which the allied pacification teams had accomplished in rural areas.

How much do the South Vietnamese influence the American effort?

When the United States, in 1965, elevated its commitment to Saigon to the same level given Berlin and the NATO alliance, it gave Saigon considerable leverage on U.S. policy.

Saigon's ability to influence U.S. policy was further reinforced in mid-1965 when President Johnson and others declared that the defense of South Vietnam was to the key to all Asia.

Given those conditions, Saigon has assumed that no matter what she does, the United States cannot afford to abandon her and therefore will have to acquiesce in all but the most demonstrably stupid projects.

As for negotiations, Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk never have felt that Hanoi had any intention of negotiating in good faith. Their assumption has been and is that the Communists will agree to talk, if ever, only to buy time or to trap the United States into lowering its guard.

DONALD H. MAY
UPI reporter at the Pentagon

With Soviet and Chinese aid, the Communist force in Vietnam have graduated from a motley collection of obsolescence and often homemade equipment to weapons which in many cases are among the best in the world.

An example is the AK47 assault rifle. This Soviet-designed 7.62 mm automatic rifle has been described by one U.S. military expert as "about as good an individual weapon as exists."

Abut a year ago, the Communists began using 140mm and 122mm rockets against U.S. bases in South Vietnam. The 122mm has a range of 12,000 yards. These are not high accuracy weapons, but when fired into a place such as Da Nang air base or Tan Son Nhut airfield outside Saigon, they are bound to hit something.

The North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong have all the standard mortars and have used them with high effect.

Is bombing of the North really worth it?

Probably the most candid official appraisal of the bombing was McNamara's 200-page testimony to Congress before he left office. He made these points: About 70 per cent of North Vietnam' electric generating capacity has been knocked out and the bulk of its fixed petroleum storage has been destroyed. But imported diesel generators are probably producing sufficient power for essential needs and widely dispersed petroleum reserves are meeting minimum needs.

McNamara said "most, if not all, of the industrial output lost has been replaced by imports from the Soviet Union and China". He noted that military and economic aid from Communist countries is increasing.

He also added that "the agrarian nature of the economy precludes an economic collapse of North Vietnam as a result of the bombing."

Air Force Secretary Harold Brown has said "no informed student of air power has expected the bombing to eliminate infiltration and resupply. But the bombing, by increasing the strain on North Vietnam, has affected its capability to sustain increased infiltration."

The air secretary estimated that the bombing raids had tied up 600,000 men, including a considerable part of the North's leadership.

Is Westmoreland in trouble?

Such stories have done a great disservice to Westmoreland. For more than two years it generally has been assumed that Westmoreland was in line for Chief of Staff of the Army, although there are other jobs which conceivably he might get. I have heard no one in high positions at the Pentagon try to claim that he, or anyone else, coul do Westmoreland's job better within the rules under which this war has been fought."

EUGENE V. RISHER
UPI bureau manager, Saigon

Morale:

This war, like any war, has the usual gripes. The chow is lousy. The doctors are scalpel-happy. But the morale of the American troops is high. It is better in fighting units than in rear service units and usually better when they are fighting.

Morale:

Almost to a man, none of the Marines at Khe Sanh would consider for a moment giving it up, although in the minds of some high level officers in Saigon, Khe Sanh's value is questionable.

Initiative: When the Communists launched their series of attacks throughout South Vietnam on Jan. 29, it amounted to a general offensive. Documents and prisoner interrogations indicate they hoped for a general uprising. There is little doubt that those who carried out the attacks and lower level Communist officials thought there would be massive defections totheir cause. But there were not.

Many experts believe the wide-spread attacks were part of a longer-range plan with a less lofty goal. They see the offensive as an effort to achieve a significant military victory over the Americans and Vietnamese as a prelude to negotiations—a drive to negotiate from a position of power. They foresee a continuation of the attacks throughout the country on a less intensified scale and then a massive push, probably along the Demilitarized Zone where the largest Communist troop concentration is located.

The Communists are paying a terrible price. If official figures are to be believed—and they are probably about 80 per cent accurate—some 40,000 Communists were killed in the first month of the offensive. Allied losses have been about one-eighth of this.

Bombing: Two key targets still are off-limits to American raiders. They are Giu Lam airport, Hanoi's international airport where much of its MIG fleet is kept, and the port of Haiphong. The latter is by far the most important. Estimates six months ago were that more than half of all North Vietnam's war supplies come through Haiphong.

Credibility gap: There is in Vietnam a large organization whose sole purpose is to shape the story of the war. The reports they issue are, in the judgment of most newsmen, overly optimistic.

ROBERT C. MILLER
UPI correspondent who spent time at Pearl Harbor before departing for his fifth reporting tour in South Vietnam.

Senior officers at Army, Navy, Marine and Air Force headquarters in Hawaii concede that the Communists now would command more respect and bargaining power at the conference table than at any time in the Vietnam War.

Most of the top echelon brass feel the January offensive will be followed by an aggressive peace and propaganda campaign.

"This is definitely not the time to negotiate," one senior officer emphasized. "The Communists definitely won a tremendous propaganda victory.

"But," he said, "I suppose we are committed to talk and will probably be forced to sit down with the Reds at a time when they will be bargaining from strength and more demanding than ever."

There is unanimous agreement among the top brass in Hawaii that the climax of the war is near.

But there will be no unhappiness at Pacific headquarters if the Communists continue to turn down American appeals to come to the negotiating table.

"From now on things are going to get progressively tougher for them," a senior Army authority said.

Mays No 'Soapbox' Negro

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Willie Mays fielded a criticism from Jackie Robinson yesterday by observing there are ways other than "the soapbox" to promote good race relations.

Robinson, the first Negro to break into major league baseball, had told a television interviewer in San Francisco that Mays should get himself more involved in the cause of civil rights.

"Jackie has been through a lot and all Negro athletes should be very grateful," replied the San Francisco Giants' great centerfielder.

"I myself admire the guy. But a lot of athletes in other fields are not on the soapbox. They're doing it their own way.

THINGS ARE BETTER

"Things are a whole lot better than they were 10 or 15 years ago back in the era of Robinson's career with the then Brooklyn Dodgers. Today in baseball if you can play they take you for what you are."

Jackie said Mays "especially ought to get involved" because he "was denied housing in San Francisco."

"It was just one contractor," Mays replied.

"Bu you can't blame him either because he has a family and has to make a living on a soapbox and preach."

"Now I live in a better area and a bigger and fancier house. I think I have the respect of the people of San Francisco.

"I play all the golf courses. I'm the first Negro to be a member of the Concordia Club. I belong to the Press Club and that wasn't possible 10 years ago."

Mays pointed out he had promoted better race relations by working for the Job Corps and making speeches to youngsters, then said:

NO DIFFERENCE

"Today's kids don't have the hardships that Jack Robinson and I had. Even when I'm out of baseball, I'm not going to stand

Robinson also had said two other Negroes playing for the Giants, Willie McCovey and Jim Ray Hart, should become more involved.

Mays, in his reply, spoke for all three.

"McCovey and Hart have been treated like kings since they came to this ball club," Mays said.

"Never, not one single time since I came to the Giants more than 16 years ago, have I been made to feel a difference between black and white."

Marin Swim Spree

Marin County Athletic League's swimming powers flexed their muscles impressively over the past two days, with Redwood, San Rafael, Terra Linda and Tamalpais high schools all scoring easy victories over non-league opponents.

After Tam, Terra Linda and San Rafael set the pace on Thursday, Redwood kept it going yesterday with a 64½-30½ romp over visiting Eureka.

Ken James, a double winner, and Eddie Lederman broke school records for Redwood, James in the 100-yard freestyle (51.2 seconds) and Lederman in diving. James also won the 200 free (1:58.4).

Other Redwood winners were John Clinch in the 50 free (24.7), John Malvino in the 200 individual medley (2:18.8), Phil Jonckheer in the 400 free (4:31.5), Cal Broomhead in the 100 breast (1:10.8) and the 400 free relay team of Bob Smith, Mack Black, Jeff Taylor and John Clinch in 3:46.2.

San Rafael crushed St. Ignatius, 65-30, as Eric Sluser won a pair of events and the Bulldogs swept the relays.

Sluser took the 200-yard freestyle and the 100 butterfly while Charlie Collins (50 free), Tom Panages (200 individual medley), Dave Topance (100 free), Bill Carter (100 back), Gary Vogensen (400 free) and Jim Morris (100 back) also won for the Bulldogs.

Terra Linda ripped Richmond, 72-12, winning both relays while Dave Newman (200 I.M. and 100 back) and Tom Guthrie (200 and 400 free) were double winners.

Paul Barr won the 50 free, John Potter took the 100 butterfly, Mark Strange the 100 free and Kevin Sindelar the 100 breast to round out Terra Linda winners.

Tamalpais downed Mira Monte, 56½-38½, with Chris and Bruce Averill getting double wins, Chris in the 50 free and 100 breast and Bruce in the 200 I.M. and the 100 back. The Indians also took both relays and got additional wins from Russ Batt in diving, Chuck Gorrill in the 100 free and Tom Smiley in the 400 free.

Inspired Santa Clara Takes On Mighty UCLA

An All-Cal Showdown In NCAA

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—Mighty UCLA and inspired Santa Clara meet in an all-California showdown in the NCAA Far West Regional basketball title tonight after disposing of a pair of nationally ranked New Mexico teams in the opening round.

Santa Clara upset seventh-ranked University of New Mexico 86-73 last night in a game that was a far cry from the shaky 58-49 win UCLA scored earlier over pesky New Mexico State.

Second-ranked UCLA used a 28 point, 23-rebound performance by 7-1½ Lew Alcindor to overcome the ball-control conscious Aggies.

The two New Mexico teams meet tonight to determine third place.

TOUGH GAME

Coach John Wooden of the defending champion Bruins said the New Mexico State defense was "very good" and also said it was a tough a ball game as UCLA has played in several outings.

The Aggies made the taller Bruins play the NMSU type of game and matched the Alcindor-led Bruins for 35 minutes.

Tonight's NCAA Western Regional finals between UCLA and Santa Clara will be televised by KTVU, Channel 2 at 8 p.m.

The Aggies' dream of an upset finally disappeared when their two tallest men, 6-9 Sam Lacey and 6-6 Richard Collins, fouled out in the final six minutes of the game.

The game was tied 10 times and the lead exchanged hands another 11 times before the Bruins' offense wore down the Aggies.

CONSIDERABLE PRESSURE

Losing coach Lou Henson said he was a "little disappointed" with his team's shooting percentages but "the team was playing under considerable pressure" against the much-feared Bruins.

Santa Clara coach Dick Garibaldi credited the Broncs' physical strength for the upset win.

He said his team was looking forward to meeting UCLA and was planning something special for the Bruins. However, he declined to discuss his plans.

New Mexico, playing before a home town crowd of 15,000 never threatened the Broncs and fell behind 37-17 midway through the initial period.

Hunt Has Wait-And-See Attitude With Giants

PHOENIX—Ron Hunt, new second baseman of the Giants, is adopting a wait-and-see policy about the team's potential in the 1968 pennant race.

"You fellows," said Hunt to a baseball writer, "have been speculating about this club's potential the past several seasons. To realize its full potential will take 25 men, not just one or two.

"It must be done as a group. A team jells only at the right moment. We won't know until it materializes. Then we'll all find out at the same time."

Hunt can't be teased into rash predictions. And he refuses to be flattered by extravagant praise, such as that heaped upon him by his new double play partner, Hal Lanier.

A Mutual Admiration Society

"The praise could or could not be deserved," said Hunt. "Hal and I hit it off right from the start."

That is precisely what Lanier said, too, in extolling Hunt's fast hand action on double play relays to Willie McCovey.

In their first game, an intrasquad affair a week ago at Casa Grande, the new double play combination of the Giants turned over four DPs. Lanier started two of them from the shortstop side of second base. Hunt set the other two in motion.

Willie Mays also praised Hunt's pivot work around second base.

He'll Help If He's Healthy

"He's aggressive," said the captain of the Giants. "He's going to help if we keep him healthy."

Except for his rookie year of 1963 when he played in 143 games for the Mets and won their fans' Most Valuable Player award, Hunt has been the victim of jammed shoulders and fingers which limited his activity. His aggressiveness running the bases, making head first slides, has been the source of several of his injuries.

Hunt reported to the Giants without any aches or pains. When the Mets traded him to the Dodgers following the 1966 season, Hunt didn't hide his displeasure. In fact, he was shocked.

"I guess that's the way it is the first time you're traded," said Hunt. "But it hit me and my wife, Jackie, especially hard. We loved it in New York. We lived in Flushing and made many friends there. And, of course, the Met fans were wonderful to me.

Trades Just Part Of Baseball

"How do I feel about being traded to the Giants? After the first one, you realize it's part of baseball. Now, we'll move again and have to make new friends. It's harder on my wife than me—this moving.

"As for the Giant organization, I know it is a great one that keeps developing young talent."

But the Giants never were able to develop a capable second baseman in their farm system these past years. At least, not since Chuck Hiller who wasn't a flashy glove man but still got the job done in 1962.

So they went into the trading marts and got Hunt.

Beamon Strikes Again

DETROIT (AP) — The indoor track season ends Saturday — too soon for Bob Beamon, world's best long jumper on the boards, and not soon enough for Jim Ryun, the best miler and half-miler on any kind of track.

"Just 11 more laps today and this indoor season ends for me, and I can't wait until it's over," said a slightly lame Ryun, Kansas' super runner who defends his mile title today in the closing season of the NCAA indoor meet at Cobo Arena.

Last night, Ryun uncorked a typical explosive finish in his best two-mile ever to dethrone two-time champion Gerry Lindgren. But Beamon, the Texas-El Paso sophomore, did even better with a sensational 27-2¾ long jump and became the first double winner in NCAA indoor history by adding the triple jump title.

BACK-TO-BACK

Beamon, whose double came on a tiring back-to-back effort, and Villanova's quarter-miler Larry James, also a sophomore, accounted for two all-time best indoor performances in the seven-event program.

James, whizzing to a victory in the 440 in 47 seconds, and Dave Patrick, retaining his 880 crown, paced Villanova's bid to dethrone Southern California as team champion.

Villanova carried a 16-point total into today's closing 10-event program, closely followed by Texas-El Paso with 15.

Washington State was third with 10 and talent-loaded Southern California lagged fourth with 7.

USC sends defending champions Earl McCullouch and Bob Seagren after the 60-yard high hurdles and pole vault titles, backed by another 17-foot vaulter in Paul Wilson and famed footballer O. J. Simpson in the 60-yard dash.

MIGHTY TIRED

Beamon, who broke his own indoor long jump mark of 27-1, was surprised by his stunning 27-2¾ leap, which was followed by an electrifying 27-7¼ jump on which he barely fouled on the takeoff board.

Ryun talked like a mighty tired young man after running Lindgren and Australia's Kerry Pearce into the boards with a modest 8:38.9 clocking.

"I'm having trouble with bad tendons and arches, which hurt my feet, and I took a cortisone shot in my left ankle two weeks ago," said Ryun.

Cokes Gets Unanimous Decision

OAKLAND (AP) — Welterweight champion Curtis Cokes scored an unanimous 10-round nontitle decision over Jimmy Lester last night.

Cokes, 154, of Dallas, dropped Lester, 155, San Francisco, in the third round and shook him on several other occasions.

Lester swarmed over Cokes in the first five rounds and kept the champ from mounting any kind of an offensive and making him rely on counter punches. Lester appeared to have the third round won when Cokes nailed him with a right to the chin and dropped him.

Although Lester never went down again, he was stung in the ninth by two uppercuts and a right to the chin.

Cokes' record is now 49-9-2. Lester is 31-8-1.

Seals Gain A Tie Despite Acrobatics

Glenn Hall's acrobatic act wasn't enough to stop Oakland, thanks to Gary Smith.

Hall, who shut out the Seals three times this season for St. Louis and allowed them only six goals in eight games, had his usual acrobatic display overshadowed by Smith, who stopped 42 shots in helping the Seals, in last place in the Western Division of the National Hockey League, hold on for a 1-1 tie with the Blues.

Houston Only Remaining Unbeaten NCAA Entry

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

Houston is all alone now—and the Cougars act like they're going to stay that way.

The Cougars, who don't play a ranked team very often but seem to be at their best when they do, became the last collegiate team with a perfect record last night when they destroyed Louisville 91-75 in the NCAA Midwest regionals at Wichita.

Louisville was the first team ranked in the top 20 the Cougars have played since they upset UCLA on Jan. 20—but the Cougars proved they haven't lost their touch while they've been running up 100-plus scores on the patsy teams on their weak schedule.

Elvin Hayes, who scored 39 points against UCLA and Lew Alcindor in that dramatic upset, scored 35 points and grabbed 24 rebounds to outduel Louisville's Wes Unseld in the battle of 6-8 All-Americas. Unseld had 23 points and 22 rebounds.

ONLY UNDEFEATED

Houston, now 30-0, became the only unbeaten team when third-ranked St. Bonaventure was blasted by North Carolina 91-72 at Raleigh, N.C. North Carolina will now play Davidson, a 61-59 overtime victor over Columbia, in tonight's East regional finals.

The North Carolina game will be the best of the four regional final tonight since Davidson has been waiting a long time for a shot at North Carolina, which refuses to schedule Davidson during the regular season even though the schools are both located in North Carolina.

The other three final games shouldn't be too close. Houston is heavily favored over TCU, the Southwest Conference champion which upset Kansas State 77-72.

A Houston victory should set up next Friday's rematch at the Los Angeles Sports Arena in the NCAA semi-finals against UCLA. The Bruins topped New Mexico State 58-49 last night in the Far West Regional at Albuquerque and are favored over Santa Clara tonight. Santa Clara stopped New Mexico 86-73.

WILDCATS FAVORED

The Mideast regional at Lexington, Ky. is a Kentucky show with the Wildcats enjoying a homecourt edge. Kentucky beat Marquette 107-89 last night and will be favored over Ohio State. Ohio State topped East Tennessee State 79-72.

Kentucky Wesleyan, the nation's second-ranked small college team, won the NCAA College Division title with a 63-52 victory over Indiana State in the finals at Evansville, Ind. LIU, the top-rated small college team, passed up this tourney to compete in the NIT and will face Bradley today.

In the NAIA finals tonight, Fairmont State will meet Central State of Ohio for the title at Kansas City. Fairmont State beat Oshkosh State 76-74 and Central State whipped Westminster 72-51 in the semi-finals.

Villanova Defense Steals NIT Honors

NEW YORK (UPI)—Villanova gave an impressive lesson in the manly art of defense in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament last night and further instruction is expected to be given today as the opening round concludes with afternoon and evening doubleheaders.

Army, the nation's top-ranked defensive unit, tangled with Notre Dame in a nationally-televised afternoon game after which Long Island University, another rugged defensive unit, meets Bradley. Duquesne takes on Fordham and Dayton meets West Virginia in an evening twinbill that brings to a close the opening round at Madison Square Garden.

Army, which posted a 20-4 record during the regular season, held opponents to 57.8 points per game while utilizing a straight man-to-man defense. Utilizing a quick-moving 1-2-2 zone defense to perfection, Villanova easily ousted Wyoming 77-66 to move into Monday night's quarter-finals against Kansas, an 82-76 victor over Temple in the first game.

Johnny Jones, a 6-4 forward, scored 38 points for Villanova, but it was the Wildcats' pressing zone that upset Wyoming the most.

Nicklaus In, Arnie Way Out

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Jack Nicklaus is still grumbling about the way he's playing golf but he isn't likely to get any sympathy from Arnold Palmer.

Nicklaus, complaining of driving and putting troubles, held a two-stroke lead going into today's third round of the $115,000 Florida Citrus Open. Palmer, well pleased with the way he was playing when the tournament began, didn't even make the cut.

Nicklaus ripped off four consecutive birdies yesterday enroute to a 68 that placed him nine under par at 135 and left him two strokes ahead of New Zealand lefthander Bob Charles who had a 69-137.

Palmer took the other route, making three straight bogies and fired a 76-147 that was two strokes higher than needed to stay in the tournament.

"I don't feel I played as well yesterday as I did Thursday," said Nicklaus who only had a one-stroke difference in the two rounds. "I'm having trouble with this new driver I'm trying. I'll have to fix it or switch again."

The blond bomber, who won a record more than $200,000 in golf gold last year, disclosed that he's tried about 40 different drivers since breaking his favorite three years ago during a tournament in South Africa. "I used that driver for five years," he said.

Palmer had a new eight-passenger jet plane delivered to him here yesterday. It came just in time to whisk him out of town.

He said he would take at least the next week off but might return to the tour at Jacksonville (March 22-25) "if there's nothing else pressing."

As for his round which golfdom's all-time leading money winner called "about as bad as I've had," Palmer said.

"I couldn't get it together. I felt great earlier in the week (he won the Pro-Am with a 66 which no one has equaled in the tournament itself). I'm not tired although it could be a combination of physical and mental. I just didn't have much concentration and played like it was a practice round."

Miller Barber, who shared the first-round lead with Nicklaus, was locked in a three-way tie with Don Massengale and Dan Sikes at 6-under-par 138 going into today's play. Australians Bruce Crampton and Bruce Devlin were another stroke back. Sikes and Crampton shared Friday's low round with 67s.

Gary Player, just back from South Africa after dropping off the tour last summer, had a 68-140 Friday as did Doug Sanders. Also at 140 were Ron Cerrudo, Tom Nieporte, George Archer, Jack Fleck and Ray Floyd.

San Rafael's Ron Cerrudo moved to within five strokes of the lead by firing a sizzling 68 in the second round, same as Nicklaus, after an opening day 72 for a 140 total.

Warriors Lose Tough Battle After Comeback

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Warriors, who end their regular season by hosting the New York Knickerbockers tomorrow and Monday, have lost a tough contest to Detroit.

An 18-foot jump shot by rookie Jimmy Walker with 25 seconds left cut short a rally last night which had seen the Warriors narrow the gap from 19 points to two in the last quarter. The Pistons finally won 118-112.

San Francisco's Jeff Mullins tapped in 29 points. Detroit's Dave DeBusschere came up with 30 points, and the Pistons' Dave Bing, NBA scoring leader, chipped in with 26.

Detroit may have suffered a blow in its battle with Cincinnati for the last playoff spot in the Eastern Division. Guard Eddie Miles received a severe sprained right ankle in the third period, during which he scored 17 points.

THE THIN MAN HOLDS ON — Pittsburgh Pirate Willie Stargill, who has lost some weight recently, holds on to second base while New York Met Phil Linz tries for a tag. (AP Wirephoto)

Stargell Diet Pays Off Big

By United Press International

Willie Stargell's weight-watching diet has begun to pay off.

The Pittsburgh management criticized the Pirate slugger in past training seasons for his failure to trim down to mobile poundage. There were even threats of fines and lineup expulsions if he couldn't conform to prescribed weight limits.

Stargell took the orders seriously this year and lost the unwanted pounds. Some of the missing weight may have affected his power, but the Pirate outfielder apparently corrected his stabilizers as he produced the first results yesterday — a two-run homer that helped beat the New York Mets 8-1.

"For the first time in my baseball career I'm in condition to start a season," Stargell said after running out his homer. He refused to reveal his present weight, or how much he has lost since starting a winter-long conditioning program.

Stargell's homer was his first hit of the exhibition season, coming after 12 futile trips to the plate. No, Stargell is not superstitious.

THREE AND THREE

Horace Clarke got three hits and stole three bases last night as the New York Yankees stopped the Chicago White Sox' 4-2 to break a four-game losing streak. Fritz Peterson went five innings for New York scattering six hits and allowing one earned run.

Dave Johnson drove in two runs with singles that paced the Baltimore Orioles to a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Johnson's second single broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth and brought home Merv Rettenmund, who had walked, stolen second and reached third on ground out in the 14th inning to give the Cleveland Indians a 4-3 win over the Chicago Cubs. Ron Constantino pitched the last five innings and received credit for the victory.

Don Mincher scored one run and drove in another with a single which brought the California Angels a 3-1 triumph over the San Francisco Giants. Jim McGlothlin, Fred Newman and Jim Coates limited the Giants to five hits.

Tenth inning home runs by Sal Bando and Jim Pagliaroni powered the Oakland Athletics to an 8-4 decision over the Washington Senators. Reggie Jackson and Dick Green also homered for the A's, while Paul Casanova connected for the Senators.

TWO AND TWO

Fred Whitfield and Tommy Helms each drove in two runs as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Atlanta Braves 7-5. Each side committed four errors, with Braves second baseman Felix Millan guilty of three miscues. Woody Woodward had three hits for Atlanta.

Dick McAuliffe scored all the way from first base on Lenny Green's seventh inning single to give the Detroit Tigers a 2-1 edge over the Philadelphia Phillies. The Phils' string of 30⅔ scoreless innings was broken in the fourth when Bill Freehan homered.

George Scott's three-run homer in the ninth inning propelled the American League champion Boston Red Sox to a 3-1 verdict over the Houston Astros. Pat House was the victim of Scott's homer after Don Wilson and Danny Coombs combined for eight shutout innings.

The world champion St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Minnesota Twins 5-4 with the help of a homer and two singles by Curt Flood. Eighth innings singles by Flood, Bob Tolan and Ed Spiezio drove in the winning run.

Horsemen, Track Agree On Purse

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALBANY — Horsemen and Golden Gate Fields have reached an agreement on purse money and formal announcement awaits only agreement on phraseology of one paragraph, a track spokesman said yesterday.

The track also has satisfied mutuel clerks, ending strike threats by both groups.

The horsemen asked 43 per cent of the track's share of parimutuels be paid in purses, rather than the existing 40 per cent.

Terms of the settlement were withheld pending signing of a contract.

The mutuel clerks objected to a split week — Sunday and Tuesdays off — and working Mondays and Wednesdays through Saturdays. The accepted the divided week when the track agreed to retain three mutuel calculators scheduled to be dropped because of automation.

Giants' Opening Day Lineup Fumbles Away

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The California Angels defeated the San Francisco Giants' probable opening day lineup yesterday, 3-1.

Juan Marichal, who gave one earned run and one unearned in his five innings, took the defeat as the Giants dropped to 4-4 in the Cactus League. The Angels are 4-3.

Chuck Hinton greeted Marichal with a double to open the game and went to third when the ball rolled through Jim Ray Hart in left. With two out, Don Mincher singled Hinton across.

Tom Egan's single and Willie Mays' error on his hit to center, plus two infield groundouts, scored the winner in the fifth. Mincher's second single and Roger Repoz' triple off Frank Linzy produced the third run in the sixth.

The Giants scored in the first on successive singles by Mays, Willie McCovey and Hart after two were out. Jim McGlothlin, the winning pitcher, yielded the run.

Giants Manager Herman Franks started this batting order, which could start the season against the New York Mets on April 9 at Candlestick Park in San Francisco: Ken Hunt, 2b; Jim Davenport, 3b; Mays, cf ;McCovey, 1b; Hart, lf; Jesus Alou, rf; Bob Barton, c; Hal Lanier, ss, and Marichal, pitcher.

The Giants were futile at the plate and in the field.

Killy's Comeback

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Slalom racing opened the way for downhill winner Nancy Greene of Canada to extend her dominance today and offered a comeback chance for France's Jean-Claude Killy in the Roch Cup ski competition.

Miss Greene, Olympic giant slalom champion, drew the No. 1 starting position in the first of two runs down Ajax Mountain. She wall start No. 15 in the second heat. She won yesterday's downhill by a wide margin over Austria's Olga Pall, the Olympic downhill champion.

Killy, triple gold medal winner in last month's Olympics, drew the same starting assignments in the men's race.

POSITION HURT

The French star, third in yesterday's downhill won by Austria's Gerhard Nenning, said he felt his No. 12 starting position hurt his chances on the course, softened by overnight snowfall. Heini Messner of Austria was second.

After yesterday's racing the course was packed hard. Officials predicted superb conditions for the slalom events matching 69 men racers and 49 women from seven nations.

The downhill victory boosted defending champion Miss Greene into second place in World Cup standings, based on season-long performance in races recognized by the International Ski Federation.

She has 126 points compared to 150 for Isabelle Mir of France, who is not competing here. A slalom victory would boost Miss Greene into first place with 151.

STILL HOLDS LEAD

Killy still holds a commanding lead in the World Cup competition despite his third-place finish yesterday. Killy, the 1967 champion, had 175 points to 117 for Dumeng Giovonali of Switzerland.

American skiers turned in some of their better performances against the Europeans yesterday with Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., finishing fourth and Ken Phelps of Lyons Falls, N.Y., tying for fifth with Austria's Karl Schranz. Spider Sabich of Kyburz, Calif., was seventh, giving the U.S. three places among the top seven.

PRETTY TIGER — They call Nancy Greene of Canada "Tiger" and the Olympics champ was a tiger in the ladies downhill in competition for the Roch Cup at Aspen, Colo., yesterday, when she came in first. (AP Wirephoto)

Karen Budge of Jackson, Wyo., led American women with a seventh in downhill. She was the only U.S. racer in the top 10.

Marin Track Favorites Are Routed

Tamalpais High School's Indians and Redwood's Giants, rated strongest contenders in the Marin County Athletic League track and field wars, ran into East Bay powerhouses yesterday and are still licking their wounds.

Perennially-powerful El Cerrito handed the Indians an 88-38 licking while Castro Valley was disposing of the Giants by a nearly-identical 88-39 margin.

The only Marin success yesterday was enjoyed by Drake's Pirates who opened their season with a 71-56 victory over Analy of Sebastopol.

Tam's Alan Lee continued his winning ways at El Cerrito by winning both sprints — the 100-yard dash in 10.2 seconds and the 220 in 22.7. Other Tam winners were Rick Hewett in the 180 low hurdles (22.6), Leroy Barrow in the long jump (20 feet, 4 inches) and Don Rodak in the shot (45-10¼).

El Cerrito eked out a 69-64 victory in the Class B meet despite mighty performances by Tam's Gerald Robertson, a triple winner in both hurdles events and the high jump, and Gary Soderstrom who won the shot and discus.

Castro Valley displayed balanced power in crushing Redwood. Redwood's only winners were Phil Russell with a 10:20.2 clocking in the two mile, Mike Wurtz with an 11-3½ pole vault and Judd Piller's 132-2 discus throw.

Castro Valley also won Class B action, 63-55, and C-Frosh, 87-35.

Sprinter Norm Biss led Drake to victory over Analy by winning the 100 in 10.4 seconds and the 220 in 23.1.

Other Drake winners were Ron Piombo in the shot (44-3), Dave Friedman in the 180 low hurdles (22.3), Perry Hedin in the discus (120 feet), Rick Earhart in the pole vault (12-0) and Dave Stancliff in the mile (4:44.9).

Drake's freshmen won their division 51-46 but Analy captured Class B honors, 82-47.

Marin Prep Baseballers Sweep Three

Three Marin County Athletic League teams scored non-league baseball victories yesterday afternoon.

San Rafel won in the seventh inning over Petaluma, 2-1; Drake outhit Vallejo, 7-5; and Marin Catholic downed El Molino 6-4. Terra Linda was rained out.

Dave Olbrantz and Rafael Gallardo combined to pitch a two-hitter for the Bulldogs, who won in the last inning when Larry Nelson singled and the Petaluma right fielder threw wild on a subsequent single by Gary Welch. Nelson had two hits for San Rafael.

Drake poured over five runs in the second to beat Vallejo, as Joe Thompson, who came in to extinguish an Apache rally in the sixth, had a double and a single, and Dave Alvarado went two-for-two, with a triple and single.

Harry Mattsinger's two-run single won for the Wildcats of Marin Catholic, as Bill Yetter pitched two perfect innings in relief of winner Mark Carbone.

Line scores:

Vallejo	010 202 0—5	7 1
Drake	150 100 x—7	6 2

Golovich, Parks (5) and Biama; Lillenquist, Thompson (6) and Alvarado.

Petaluma	100 000 0—1	2 1
San Rafael	010 000 1—2	5 2

Members of Marin Council of Lions Clubs and Marin Council of Telephone Pioneers put the finishing touches on the last of four foul weather shelters they have built for Marin Boy Scouts at Camp Tamarancho, near Fairfax. California's Penal Expenses Questioned

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — California spends $17,000 on the average check forger during his criminal career but only an average of $6,000 for the murderer.

This was one of the findings of the State Assembly Research Committee in a study performed for the Assembly Committee on Criminal Procedure on crime and penalties.

"This report raises grave questions as to the cost effectiveness of our correctional system," Assemblyman W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, the chairman of the committee, said. "We do not have unlimited resources in our war against crime.

"We must determine the most effective way to get the best return on our dollars invested," he said. "The conclusion of this report is that we are not."

Biddle said the report also included the following findings:

1. Penalties in California are already more severe than almost any other state, with prisoners serving an average of 10 months longer than the national average but there has been no evidence that the stiffer penalties serve to deter crime.

2. The lengthy and ineffective confinement of non-habitual or non-violent offenders costs California taxpayers at least $20 million a year.

3. Effective and inexpensive alternatives to lengthy imprisonment exist and have been tested in California.

4. The intensive parole program started in 1965 saved California an estimated $1-$2 million in its first two years of operation.

5. Sentencing and parole policies aer neither just nor effective, with sentencing affected by geography and parole by public or legislative moods and financial pressures.

6. All available data indicates the local community resources of crime control most need strengthening.

Ex-Marinite Faces Old Narcotics Charge

William Preston Sullivan, 20, a former San Anselmo resident who spent the last year in Mexican jail for a marijuana offense, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court Thursday on two old charges of selling marijuana.

Sullivan, of San Francisco, is accused of selling marijuana Sept. 9 and 14, 1966 in Marin County. His case was continued until next Friday for entry of plea. Judge Hadden W. Roth released him without bail.

Chairman of the board of directors of Marin Municipal Water District is Robert G. Anderson.

Draft Fighter On Long Trip

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — David Harris, 22, former Stanford student body president, today flew 3,000 miles to get court permission to continue on his tour with singer Joan Baez, campaigning against the draft.

Harris, whose parents live in Fresno, will appear in U.S. District Court April 18 for a plea to a charge of failure to report for induction into the armed services.

U.S. District Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli explained to Harris that although he had been released on his own recognizance, he could not leave Northern California without permission of the court. Permission was then granted and Harris said he would fly back to Montreal this afternoon.

Stereos Removed From Two Autos

Burglars hit two cars parked in the College of Marin parking lot Tuesday, Marin sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Martin J. Katz of 244 Devon Drive, San Rafael, reported his $79 stereophonic tape player stolen.

Don George of 266 Adele Drive, Novato, reported that thieves stole his tape player and 14 tapes, worth $160 in all.

Superior Court Gets Deadly Weapon Case

Clifford Eugene Palmer of 523 D Street, San Rafael, was held to answer on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon after a preliminary hearing Thursday in Marin Municipal Court.

Palmer, who is to be arraigned Monday in Superior Court, allegedly cut the throat and wrist of James Lowell Akers of San Rafael March 6.

Cannery Sale Closes Out A San Francisco Industry

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's once flourishing fish cannery industry ceased this week.

The last plant — the Ocean Beauty Packing Co. — was sold at auction by the Small Business Administration for $350,000. Buyer Albert E. Engel, ship repair operator, said he might convert the building, erected in 1905 as a rice warehouse, into a refrigerator plant.

Ocean Beauty ran into hard times in 1963 when government authorities said its canned tuna caused the botulism death of two Detroit women.

More than 100,000 cans of tuna were recalled.

The company, also suffering from a diminishing tuna catch, received a $1 million product disaster loan from the government. Unable to get back into regular production, the cannery was foreclosed by the Small Business Administration.

Maple syrup is a major spring industry in Vermont.

PART IV

Research Attacking Birth Defects

Fourth of a five part series on prevention and treatment of birth defects.

Jeanie to all outward appearances is a normal 1½-year-old child. But she is something special. First because she has lived all her life inside Stanford Medical Center. Second, she is a living example of the research now going on in certain types of birth defects.

Jeanie suffers from Hurler's disease, which makes her body unable to properly metabolize a certain group of bio-chemicals called mucopolysaccarides. Victims of the disease usually suffer mental retardation and death within a few years after birth. This is what happened to Jeanie's brother. But Jeanie is alive and healthy because she is being denied all Vitamin C in her diet Everything she eats is first rigidly screened by research workers at the National Foundation-March of Dimes birth defects center at Stanford (to which Marin County contributes,) to be sure it contains none of this usually vital substance.

RESEARCH BY Dr. Irwin A. Shafer at Stanford has shown that Vitamin C in victims of Hurler's disease produces abnormal amounts of a chemical called dermatan sulfate. Strangely enough, if adults are denied Vitamin C they quickly develop scurvy. Jeanie, however, has shown no symptoms of scurvy and seems to be able to live without Vitamin C, posing a question as to whether or not it is needed during infancy.

While it is still too early to tell whether Jeanie offers a definitive answer to the problems posed by Hurler's disease, she does offer evidence of one kind of attack on the problems of birth defects — research.

Much of this reasearch is being carried on in the 38 birth defects centers operated in university hospitals by the National Foundation-March of Dimes. Other agencies involved in the attack of medical science on defective children include the National Institutes of Health, the Kennedy Foundation and many of the volunteer health agencies.

The diversity of causes for defective children makes the field a large one where no single solution will be the answer to all defects. Research ranges all the way from Jeanie and problems in the inborn errors of metabolism to a new anti-Rh compound which is to be given to mothers of prospective Rh children in hopes that it will prevent blood incompatibility between mother and child.

Even more basic research in cellular physiology, aimed at learning more about the primary forces which drive the living cell, is going on at places like the Salk Institute in La Jolla.

MUCH OF THE research into birth defects is based on the understanding that prevention is the best cure. While more and more defects are yielding to corrective measures after birth, there will always be some which cannot be corrected.

The researcher must first examine the defect to find its cause. Then, hopefully, he can work backward trying to find out what can be done to prevent it from taking place. In some instances, the only way to prevent defective children is to keep them from being born.

IN JEANIE'S CASE, Dr. Shafer grew cell cultures from patients who had suffered from Hurler's disease. The cells were then analyzed chemically by Dr. William van Robertson. This produced the evidence that the cells had an over-abundance of dermatan sulfate when Vitamin C was added. But this is no indication that Hurler's disease will occur. The combination of genes which produces the defect remains to be identified by chromosomal studies.

The next task of Stanford research is to see if some identification can be made in advance of the possibility of Hurler's disease. This pattern of attack can be used for many birth defects, but it is a costly and expensive one.

ON THE AGENDA

St. Agnes Members Busy Making Friendship Bags For Soldiers

The home of Mrs. Antone Shunk, chairman of World Missions for Court St. Agnes 1428, Catholic Daughters of America, is the scene of activity each week. An urgent request from the state chairman of World Missions, Mrs. Wesley Muzik, has accelerated this activity the past two weeks. She sent out an appeal for friendship bags for men in the field hospitals in Vietnam. Mrs. Schunk immediately got her crew of workers together and they have made 50 bags and filled them with items such as razors, razor blades, tooth brushes and paste, combs, paper, pencils, paper back books, playing cards and puzzle books.

One day a week these women are busy on World Mission projects — old sheets are torn and rolled into bandages; discarded men's shirts are made into hospital gowns; cancer pads are made from the pieces of materials left from cutting baptismal gowns; knee quilts are made from donated scraps and drug samples are collected and packaged for shipment. All are sent to the Catholic Medical Mission Board in New York to be distributed where the need arises.

THE MARIN Juvenile Court Auxiliary will hold a public meeting Wednesday at 10 a.m. at County Juvenile Hall. A film, "The Lonely Child" will be shown. Walter Busher, head of the County Probation Department, will report on changes in handling of delinquent and disturbed children during the past year, and Mel Augustine of the department will report on need for non-detention care for Marin Children.

THE SAN Rafael Jaycettes will present its annual spring fantasy fashion show March 23 at 2 p.m. at the Marinwood Recreation Center. It will feature a wine tasting, and hors d'oeuvres will be served. Mrs. Macy Walsh is ticket chairman. Proceeds will be used for charitable projects.

WANDA RAMEY, television personality, now associated with the educational station, KQED, as West Coast correspondent for the Public Broadcasting Laboratory, will be the speaker at the United Presbyterian Women's program at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Westminster Presbyterian Church, Tiburon. Luncheon will be served at noon.

Miss Ramey's talk is titled, "Aware in Our Society." The program and luncheon are open to women of the community. Mrs. Milton L. Stannard Jr., is program chairman; Mrs. Frank Macdonald, luncheon chairman; Mrs. J. Howard Heginbotham, reservations.

SIXTH IN a series on aspects of "The World of Our Children" will be presented at a public meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday by the Olive School Parent-Teacher Association in the assembly room of the school in Novato. Panelists will be Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer; Novato Police Chief Robert Di Grazia and the Rev. Charles Gompertz of the Church in Ignacio. The topic will be "Guardians of Health, Safety and Morals.

Jeremiah Gleeson and the Sisters of the Holy Ghost will be honored gueasts when Court St. Agnes 1428 initiates its new members on Wednesday 8:30 p.m. at St. Rita's Hall in Fairfax. Women initiated are Mesdames Michael Gannon, George Pelto, Russell White, Miss Helen Whitehurst and Miss Marie Falle.

FOR THE first time in Marin, Dr. Robt. T. Bradley's new film "Natural Childbirth," will be shown at the free public meeting of The Education for Childbirth Associaton on Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Co-Op Center Meeting Room, 71 Tamal Vista, Corte Madera.

Dr. Bradley is a member of The International Childbirth Education Association and an enthusiastic proponent of natural childbirth, husband participation, and family centered maternity care. He is author of the book "Husband Coached Delivery."

"SIP AND SNIP" is the theme for the workshop at 10:30 a.m., Wednesday in the Christiansen room of the Novato Presbyterian Church Women's Association. Members will bring scissors, thimbles, sheets, coupons for silver settings, cancelled by the United Presbyterian postage stamps and magazine pictures for nursery scrapbooks.

The clean sheets are torn into strips, sterilized and distributed to leprosy hospitals overseas. Previously the coupons as a nationwide project were redeemed for an airplane, which is now being used by Supt. Tom Harnish, a missionary at Sangre de Cristo medical unit in Colorado.

A SPAGHETTI dinner will be the annual fund raising event by the Olive School Parent-Teacher Association on Thursday, from 5 to 8 p.m. at the school in Novato. Mrs. John Crowley is reservations chairman.

AN ANTIQUE show and English tea "circa 1890" open to the public will be the next Outdoor Art Club event in Mill Valley to be held Thursday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the clubhouse.

Changing Zipper Placement Depends On Pattern Design

By EUNICE FARMER

I have a jumper pattern that calls for a side zipper opening, and I would much rather have a center back closing. Can I change this myself or will it change the appearance of the jumper?

Mrs. R. B.

DEAR MRS. R. B.:

If the jumper has simple design lines, you may add ⅝-inch seam allowance to the center back fold line of your jumper, skirt, or whatever. Apply the zipper to the center back seam.

Many times you will find dresses with a center back panel instead of a seam. The designer felt a zipper at the center would detract from the fashion design, therefore, you will find many designer patterns with the zipper closing at a side back seam or underarm. In this case, I would follow the pattern since too many seam lines could be detracting.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Wm. Barta, St. Louis, Mo. is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"Here is a suggestion I would like to pass on to other mothers. I had a lightweight wool skirt of unpressed pleats which my little girl had outgrown. It was a lovely plaid, and my daughter wanted a long, luxurious scarf which she couldn't find. I ripped the band off the skirt, cut the seam where the zipper had been attached, fringed the edges. Now everyone compliments her on her attractive and practical scarf."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have lost weight. Therefore, I must try to make my dresses smaller. How would you suggest I go about this? Most of my dresses are shifts with no waistline. The part I'm really interested in is the sleeve and armhole area.

Mrs. O.B.

DEAR Mrs. O. B.:

You haven't told me how much weight you have actually lost. Sometimes it just won't work trying to adjust a great change because of the collar, neckline, sleeves and armhole.

I would suggest you buy the correct size pattern for your new measurements. Take one dress apart and recut it from the new pattern. In this way, you can see exactly where your pattern changes will be and make the changes on your other dresses without taking them completely apart.

P.S. Everyone will want to know how you lost the weight in the first place!

DEAR EUNICE,

Whenever I have a belt made or make one myself, it turns out to be too small. This sounds like a perfectly idiotic question, but how can I be sure the measurement will be accurate?

Mrs. J. McK.

Dear Mrs. J. McK.:

You are undoubtedly taking the measurement so many women do, which is the exact measurement of their waist wearing only undergraments. You must take the measurement over the dress or skirt. You can imagine the extra bulk of a waistline when there is a full woolen skirt and the waistband. There may be a difference of 2 inches.

The same is true of the new dirndl or gathered skirts on dresses. The center hole for the prong of the belt should fit over the waistline of your garment. This way you will have another hole on each side of the center which will allow for any slight change in your measurement for the day.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

It's Normal To Avoid Hurting People If You're A Nice Guy

DEAR HELEN:

I am 16, and have had one problem since I started dating girls. I find I am too cautious when I end a relationship. For instance, I kept on going steady with a girl six months after I stopped liking her, because I was unsure about what might happen next.

I've never been the one to break off, no matter how much I wanted to; I was afraid I might not find another girl and would be left out in the cold. This is silly because when a girl dumps me I've usually done better afterwards.

Is it normal to be this overcautious? —DENNIS

DEAR DENNIS:

It's normal to avoid hurting people if you're a nice guy. Pull out of the steady system, and you won't be troubled with overcautiousness. When a boy dates several girls, he doesn't feel tied to one and he can boot her out of his life without calling himself a heel. —H.

DEAR HELEN:

You mentioned about brothers and sisters borrowing each other's clothes. Well, my brother even borrows my hair spray and powder base! I kept wondering why they disappeared so fast, until I caught him.

He doesn't seem like the type, but do you suppose he's got a problem? —JUNE

DEAR JUNE:

I doubt it. He probably can't afford men's hair spray and figures powder base might double for acne lotion. Why not suggest he pay you back with the loan of his turtleneck sweater? —H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am a match lighter!

It isn't funny. I light matches at the bus stop; I even light them in school. I've had to stay after class four times because teachers caught me lighting matches in class.

My parents accuse me of smoking because they find so many burned matches in my wastebasket. My allowance money goes low because I'm forever buying matches.

Can you get hooked on lighting matches the same way people get hooked on cigarettes? I think I am. —FIRED UP

DEAR F.U.:

You can get hooked on anything if you give in to the urge. Most kids outgrow match-lighting before kindergarten, often with stern parental help. It strikes me your folks haven't been tough enough, so get tough with yourself. Buy five big boxes of matches, sit down and light every one of them without stopping. If this doesn't scratch the habit you need professional help. —H.

DEAR HELEN:

We are a group of girls who wish freedom bells would ring for us. This very conceited girl hangs around us. All she talks about is herself, her wonderful clothes, her fabulous boy friends, her good grades; she's a big bore. Why us?

We had a slumber party last week and didn't invite her. Her mother called up during the party and asked why. Then she called two more mothers and raised the roof because her little girl was left out. She's a horn-tooter too.

She's back trailing us again. How can we ditch her tactfully? —PRISONERS OF WAR

DEAR P.O.W.'s:

The truth is far fram tactful, but this girl and her mother need it. Tell them the usual reaction to horn-tooters is, "Go blow!" —H.

OPERA REVIEW

'Hansel And Gretel' Fun Was Missing

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

The young opera workshop at Dominican College of San Rafael ventured into the realm of a full length light opera last night with a rather lackluster production of Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel."

While there were several good voices in evidence, the opera lacked lightness which has made this vehicle one of the treats for the entire family.

But for the saving grace of Melvyn Poll as Rosina Daintymouth, the Witch, the principals of the cast were more Wagnerian than Humperdinck. Simply stated, the fun was missing.

WELL TRAINED

This does not mean, however, the cast lacked vocal training or projection. Had these two qualities been missing, the evening would have been a near disaster.

Joan Smith of Greenbrae, taking the part of Gretel, is a light soprano with a clear and pleasing voice. This can also be said for Ruth Onstadt in the role of Hansel.

Glenn Brizee, while coming through in great force, made a rather stilted Peter, the father of the two children. And Lorie Kutsko as Gertrude, the mother, sang across the footlights with vigor, but her words were unclear.

POLL DELIGHTS

Where the others tried but failed, Poll made the second act worth the entire evening. In a delightful costume, Poll sparked the cast and brought to the stage the needed ingredient — laughter.

While the dance sequences were a little stilted, fancy steps were played down and only basic movements were used. Here, too, a saving grace.

Staging was simple and void of clutter. This is always a credit to any production.

GALLANT TRY

It was a gallant try that never really got off the ground. Call it experimentation. This is the primary object of a workshop of this nature. The cast may have been down, since it opened with a matinee yesterday.

The production will be presented again at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow in Angelico Hall on the Dominican campus, with Jean Murphy in the role of Gretel and Jacqueline Brown as Hansel.

Santa Venetia Will Ask Funds For Drain Work

The Santa Venetia Flood Control Zone Advisory board of directors will ask county supervisors Tuesday to apply for $110,000 in federal funds to help relieve flood conditions on Meadow Drive, Santa Venetia.

The project calls for installation of a storm drain pipe San Pedro Road to Las Gallinas Creek. County flood control engineer Mogens Ring estimated the cost would be $250,000.

John F. McInnis, supervisor for the San Rafael area including Santa Venetia, suggested that the advisory board seek federal funds.

If a $110,000 grant from the federal Housing and Urban Development Fund is approved, the balance of about $140,000 would be financed by the Santa Venetia Flood Control Zone and by county road funds on a 50-50 basis.

Belveron Garden Directors Named

A board of ten directors was elected last night by Belveron Gardens Homeowners Association.

Elected were Kurtis T. Webb, Charles T. Estudillo, Rodney F. Friedman, Donald K. Loomis, Myron R. Christopherson, Gordon C. Wright, Paul Leroy Brown, Mrs. H. Joe Edgington, Leonard H. Brown Jr. and William Quinan.

A new constitution and bylaws were adopted by the association, which had been dormant for over five years.

Loomis and Freidman, both architects, presented drawings for landscaping the entrances to East and West Belveron Gardens and for construction of a bus shelter at the East Belveron entrance.

Pearl Bailey Steals Show From Princess And Earl

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pearl upstaged the Princess last night at a gala dinner-dance for Britain's visiting Princess Margaret.

The charity event at the Rainbow Room atop the RCA Building was a very understated affair until singer Pearl Bailey took charge.

KISS FROM EARL

Pearl's rendition of "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey" brought down the house and won applause from Princess Margaret and a kiss for the entertainer from the Earl of Snowdon.

Pearl came on strong in a black velvet gown with decolette ermine collar and she wore the only tiara in the room, which was wall-to-wall with celebrities. By contrast Queen Elizabeth's sister wore a demure white cotten lace sheath with an Indian snake bracelet set with tiny emeralds and rubies and her second-best emerald-drop earrings.

Lord Snowdon was all over the room in a tuxedo and white jersey turtleneck sweater, leaving his royal wife to sulk occasionally as she waited to be introduced to his American friends. He found it so difficult to tear himself away shortly before 2 a.m. that the Princess was left waiting with his coat check in the Rainbow Room lobby.

SECOND BEST GALA

The gourment supper and dance to Peter Duchin's music was a compromise for a much more eleborate affair planned to raise funds for actress Patricia Neal's Association for Brain Injured Children. The original plan for a "Gala Evening of Musical Theater" at the 3,800-seat forum of the new Madison Square Garden had to be scrapped when the $30 to $80 seats failed to sell despite Princess Margaret's patronage.

The substitute supper dance with entertainment by Richard Kiley, Shirley Jones and Jack Cassidy, Lisa Kirk, Dionne Warwick, Burt Bacharach and Marilyn Michaels, attracted 400 of the smart set at $80 a ticket.

Miss Neal, who has overcome the effects of a series of near-fatal strokes, attended with the royal couple as her guests.

Among those who greeted Princess Margaret were perennial hostess Perle Mesta, cartoonist Charles Addams, Sybil Burton and Jordan Christopher, pickle king H. J. Heinz II, Tony Randall, best-dressed Mrs. John Barry Ryan III, Newport's James Van Alen, Spanish Ambassador Marques Merry del Val, and Standard Oil of Indiana head John Swearingen.

Vying with Lord Snowdon for fashion attention was British post-deb Tessa Kennedy, who wore a pant suit to Princess Margaret's table, and film star Richard Harris, who acted as master of ceremonies in a red velvet Tartar coat. Woman stockbroker Bonnie Bolding outsparkeled everyone in the bejeweled gown she wore to the Shah of Iran's coronation last fall.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Billy Budd' Staging Delivers Magic To Audience At College

By KARL BARRON

Herman Melville's tragic story of a simple lad whose almost angelic goodness leads him to his death aboard a British man of war in the late 18th Century unfolded before a spellbound audience at College of Marin last night — an audience which at times found it difficult to believe the bits of sheer magic it was witnessing.

"Billy Budd," dramatized by Louis O. Coxe and Robert Chapman, takes place aboard HMS Indemitable, and set designer Alonso Gonzalez has built a ship on the stage of the new theater. Not only the deck, complete with huge cannon that roars, but the forecastle and the officers' quarters below decks, which rise before the eyes of the audience through use of an elevator.

MOVING DRAMA

Harvey J. Susser's lighting design molds the magic of Gonzalez's setting, and the huge cast is expertly sculptured into the set by director James Dunn's special brand of legerdemain to present a strongly anti-was message, and a moving drama — despite some individual flaws in the acting.

On the credit side, Dunn has achieved a remarkably accurate dividing line between his aristocratic officers and the mixture of fine men and gutter dredgings that make up the men before the mast. Thomas Littlefield, William Grace and Robert Phelps as commissioned officers seem to the manor born, while David Haskell as Midshipman Gardiner offers fine comic relief.

Down in the forecastle, Kent Kay's brawling Jenkins; Buck Lacey's wry Irishman; and the rugged seaman of David McCauley, Charles Callister and a host of others lend realism and the touch of brutality the story requires.

DRISCOLL STARS

To the title role, Lawrie Driscoll brings a straightforward simplicity that could not be better. He is never mawkish, his good-natured humor never falters, and his final "God bless Captain Vere" rings with complete sincerity. We have watched Driscoll develop from an awkward youngster to this — his shining hour. It was worth the watching.

Other credits should go to Robert Deckelman for his sniveling Squeak, and Gred von Buchau for a powerful, yet controlled portrayal of the Dansker, a difficult part for a young man.

UNCONVINCING ROLE

The most important role in "Billy Budd," however, is that of Captain Vere, who is torn between the military duty of sentencing Budd to death for his killing of the bully John Claggart, and the knowledge that Budd was justified in the slaying. Richard Matthews fails to make the most of Vere, allowing the master's strength to dissipate in whining, and holding too much to one level of delivery. He has many good moments, but the end result is unconvincing.

John Claggart, the master-at-arms, is written as a portrait of a man driven by devils that turn him into a subhuman, goaded by Billy's goodness to ever more vicious depravities. As played by Greg Norgaard, Claggart never really comes to life, remaining a theatrical character, more petty than vicious. His lack of conviction could have been a disaster in a cast less involved than this. As it is, we accept him because of our sympathy for the very human creatures who surround him.

This exciting, noteworthy production of "Billy Budd" will be repeated tonight and Wednesday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

Filmed Talk On Vietnam Is Set

A filmed speech by Columbia Broadcasting System reporter David Schoenbrun on "How We Got into Vietnam, and How We Can Get Out" will be shown at 1:30 and 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Mill Valley Library.

The film is sponsored by the Jeannette Rankin Brigade, a women's peace organization.

Mrs. Benjamin Dreyfus, who took part in the brigade's March on Congress last month, will report on the group's past and future.

Ike Doubts Americans 'Inspired' Enough To Obtain Vietnam Peace

INDIO (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said yesterday that one of the problems of trying to end the war in Vietnam is, "I don't think the American people really feel inspired to do anything."

He made the remark at a news conference with Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel. The California Republican launched his re-election campaign this week and made a 15-minute courtesy call at Eisenhower's office at a nearby ranch.

Eisenhower's comment about people not feeling inspired came after he was asked if it was true there was an "Eisenhower plan" to end the war, as Kuchel's opponent, Dr. Max Rafferty, has said. Rafferty is state superintendent of public instruction.

"I have no specific plan at all," Eisenhower said. "What I do when called upon for counsel is give my best judgment."

Of the current conduct of the war Eisenhower said, "I would say we are on the right track . . . We are not trying to destroy North Vietnam. What we are trying to do is make it too expensive for North Vietnam to try to dominate South Vietnam."

He also said he believes the commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, Gen. William Westmoreland, should receive additional troops.

Eisenhower said of Democratic Sen. Eugene McCarthy's strong showing in the New Hampshire presidential primary, "The Democrats had to vote for someone or they would not have had anyone to vote for except as a write-in."

Several potential GOP presidential candidates have talked with him, Eisenhower said. He declared no preference, saying he believes it is helpful to have a variety of Republican leadership voices.

Eisenhower advocated taking steps to ease the U.S. balance of payments problem.

"I think we should do this and live a little frugally," he said. Eisenhower said that bringing some American troops back from Germany and cutting down U.S. embassy staffs abroad would buy time to solve the long standing problem.

The former President said that Kuchel's opponent, Rafferty, had asked for a meeting with him and that he had agreed, but no time was set.

Pro-Barham Mailing Stirs GOP Worries

Marin Republican circles were aflutter this week over a hint that GOP volunteer organization had promoted the candidacy of Clay Barham for the Assembly nomination.

The flap erupted when the editor of the Marin Federated Republican Women's March bulletin included in the monthly mailing some campaign material put out by the Barham for Assembly Committee.

The bulletin editor, Mrs. Carl Hepp of Mill Valley, could not be reached for comment.

Adding fuel to the flap was the fact that the women's group uses the mailing permit of the Marin County Republican Central Committee — which cannot endorse any candidate before the June 4 primary election.

The chairman of the central committee, Charles Michals, termed the mailing "a regrettable incident which will not occur again." He told the Independent-Journal yesterday that "the release of campaign material was neither sanctioned nor authorized by the central committee."

Barham, incidentally, will be the speaker at the Marin Federated Republican Women's noon luncheon Tuesday at the Inn Marin at Strawberry Town and Country Village.

Barham is seeking to unseat the incumbent, William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

Three School Districts Get U.S. Grants

Three small Marin County school districts have been given federal grants for "compensatory education programs for children residing in poverty areas."

Bolinas-Stinson, Laguna and Point Reyes School Districts were approved Thursday by the state board of education for the funds which were authorized by Congress under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

The money will be used primarily for "culturally broadening experiences," according to a spokesman for the county schools office. He said that trips to such places as museums, the Portuguese consulate, planetariums and restaurants are among the activities planned.

Amounts received were: Bolinas-Stinson, $1,378; Laguna, $393, and Point Reyes, $535.

Throughout the state $104,407 will be spent for poverty area programs.

Suspect Denies Morals Offenses

John Uniack of 355 Canal Street, San Rafael, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court Thursday to five felony charges of indecent exposure.

His case was continued until March 28 for setting of a preliminary hearing date.

Uniack, who allegedly has a previous conviction for indecent exposure, is accused of committing the offense three times in September, once in October and again on Jan. 24.

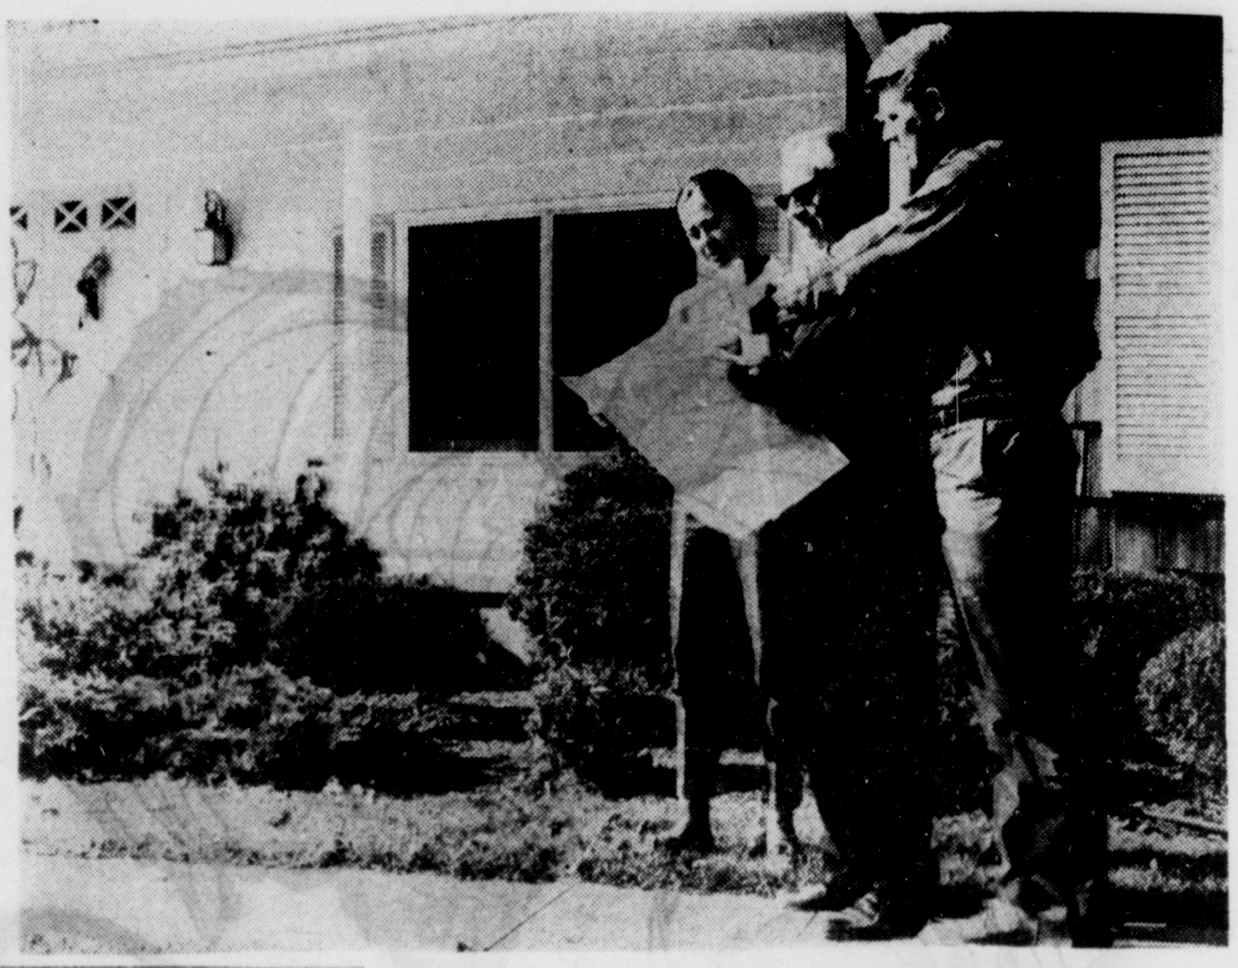
San Rafael, California, Saturday, March 16, 1968



VERY WISELY, the couple at right confer with a trained landscape designer before proceeding with the extensive "remodeling" they are planning of their yard. And an equally wise step is their decision to start out with a master plan in which they have set forth their ultimate landscaping objectives. The work does not all have to be done at once, but can be accomplished step by step. But the overall plan from which they will work will prevent that haphazard, piecemeal look that ruins many a landscaping program.

Good Landscaping Begins With Plan

Your Program Can Then Be Carried Out Step By Step

It seems unfortunate that most of us who landscape our homes start the job after the house is already built and standing.

Ideally, we would want to plan house and garden together, and if you're lucky enough to be building your own home, be sure your architect is garden oriented.

EVEN MORE commonly afflicted is the gardener who moves into an established neighborhood and inherits the landscape design of one or more previous occupants. Here we are influenced and held back by the basic human instinct against undoing something that's already been done.

Flower beds we don't mind uprooting and replanting, but we balk at pulling out established shrubs and usually make do with whatever design we inherit, however difficult it is to work with.

The California Association of Nurserymen reminds us that there is nothing sacred about an inadequate garden design. Certain shrubs are worth having in almost any landscape, but others should be uprooted and the area replanted.

THE ONE THING that the nurserymen urge most strongly when you desire to model or remodel a garden is that you start with a plan. The plan need not be implemented all at once, but it should be drawn up at the start and followed as the job progresses.

The architectural elements of design — walks, patios, walls, steps — should be laid out first and completed before planting or replanting commences. Then trees should be located and planted.

Hopefully, there are already trees on the property which can be utilized, for trees take time to grow and an established one is a priceless commodity.

THEN COME the various areas that make a finished garden work — the foundation plantings, flower beds, borders, hedges and screens, an area for work and another for children's play, and possibly even an area for growing vegetables. These should all be in the plan from the start and each should be given priority with the front foundation planting and borders usually topping the list.

The completed plan may take months or even years, but you know where you're going from the outset.

Gardening—It's Big Business For Marin

Nursery Trade Has An Important Role In The County's Economy

By DON KEOWN

Plant nursery stock is a million-and-a-quarter dollar business in Marin County.

That total is obtained by adding the $508,000 gross worth of nursery stock grown for wholesale in the county to the $767,000 worth of business done by licensed retail plant outlets in Marin.

Both figures are for 1966, the last year for which such statistics are available, and are supplied by Marin County Agricultural Commissioner Richard T. Straw.

AND ACTUALLY, he notes, that total does not begin to denote the actual economic impact that the nursery trade has upon the county's economy.

For instance, the retail total applies only to the 100 licensed outlets that handle outdoor-type plants, and does not reflect the sale of tools or chemicals.

Not required for licensing are florist shops, super markets, etc., that restrict their trade to the indoor decorative plants and to cut flowers.

THE HALF-MILLION dollar price tag fixed for nursery crops grown for wholesale in the county covers such plants as orchids grown for cut sales (the major nursery stock of the county in point of dollar value, with Niven Orchid Co. of Larkspur as a principal grower), carnations, roses, heather, etc.

Sales by retail outlets in 1966 were down from the preceding year when the figure was $852,000.

Straw says that the decline was due in part to loss of a couple of nurseries that went out of business, "plus, no doubt, a little closer figuring on our part."

NURSERY FIGURES for 1967 are currently being compiled by Straw's office, and will be released soon. Straw expects them to be at least on par with 1966, and probably up about 2½ per cent.

There is no doubt about it, Straw says, but that Marin County is a "landscape-minded" area.

"Plants for the home are a sophisticated industry," he says, "and Marin County is a better landscaped area than most. There is more money here for such expenditures. And you have a generally higher caliber of homes. When homes are better built, better styled, there is a corresponding urge for better landscaping to show them off."

NURSERY STOCK sales are tied in closely with construction, Straw notes.

"Thus, when building hits its stride again, nursery sales also will climb. Landscaping is an integral part of new home contruction in Marin."

A sampling of reports from Marin County nurserymen indicate that, in the interim, they are doing very well, with sales to Marinites interested in dressing up and maintaining the appearance of existing homes, as well as to the landscapers of the relatively few new dwellings and public buildings that are going up.

SOME REPORT a landscaping trend away from the Oriental or Japanese design long so popular here to a Mediterranean approach — Spanish or Italian.

This in part, they believe, is traceable to the fact that a considerable portion of the new structures being erected are Spanish in design.

Japanese landscaping, however, still has its ardent advocates.

MARINITES STILL place a major priority on easy maintenance. Thus groundcovers and shrubs continue to gain at the expense of lawns. Aggregate and coverings of fir bark are also on the increase.

Fancy planters are winning growing acceptance in the county, reflecting the artistic interests of many Marinites.

Plant sales trends include more palms and more citrus — and especially azaleas.

Says one nurseryman: "A few years ago, we sold hardly any azaleas. Today they are one of our best sellers."

THIS, HE ADDS, is largely attributable to the spectacular development of the Sun Azaleas, so well suited to our climate.

Old favorites such as the rose continue to maintain their loyal following. In fact, roses are riding the crest of an extended surge in popularity that began with the appearance of the Tropicana.

"It was such a wonderful rose and such a great success," a nurseryman explained, "that it reawakened interest in roses of all kinds and varieties."

THE TROPICANA, today, remains among the fastest selling roses in Marin nursery yards.

Gardening, and particularly planting, is less a seasonal thing in Marin County than in most places, the nurserymen observe.

Thus, there is less of a trend here toward a concentration of planting during the dormant bareroot season than elsewhere.

"Marin gardeners are inclined to plant when they feel the need or urge, and not to worry about the cost," the nurserymen say. 'Thus, our plant sales business is pretty well spread out over the year."

SO, FOR example, shade trees enjoy their briskest sales when there is a hot spell, hardly the ideal time for their planting.

Marinites are blessed with a climate that is ideal for gardening.

Soils in Marin, on the other hand, are another matter. Generally, they rate as poor. But available in the nurseries and other supply stores are the necessary conditioners that convert bad soil to good earth.

AND SO IT is a truism that "you can grow just about everything in Marin."

And from the well-stocked nurseries and nursery departments of floral shops, department stores and super markets, you can purchase just about everything as well.

An Exciting List For Gardeners

Each year brings new annuals and perennials for California gardens, and as usual in 1968 there's enough to excite even the casual gardener.

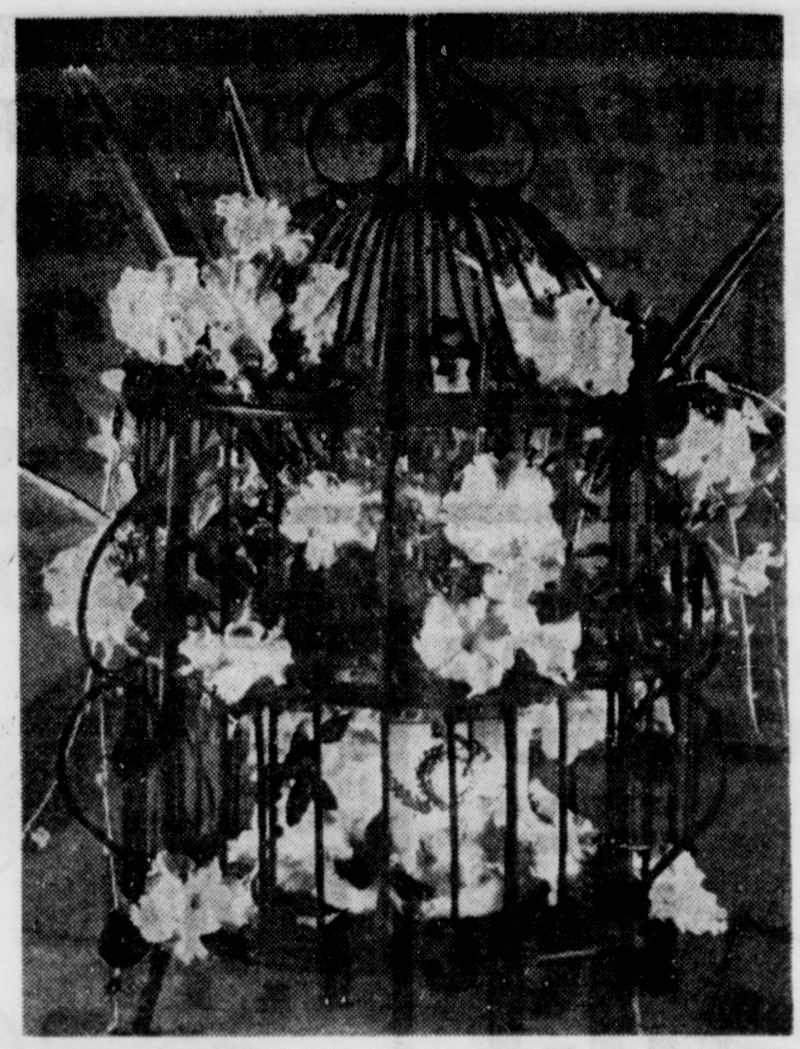
Any new plant variety is news, but these are not just "any" plants. These are the creme de creme, selected from hundreds of competitors and after many years of hybridizing and testing.

Leading the parade are the All America winners and following behind are a variety of other new flowers which will make their debuts for the first time in 1968.

WE'LL LIST those that the California Association of Nurserymen consider most likely to succeed:

First the All America selections, and to show our impartiality, we'll list them alphabetically.

Topping these is the Golden Triumph Celosia, a gorgeous golden yellow, plume-type Celosia with one strong center spike and many lesser plumes which give the whole plant a pyramid effect.



CHERRY BLOSSOM is a new vivid cherry-red and white grandiflora hybrid petunia of the Blossom series.

NEXT ARE three of the new Carefree Geraniums, the varieties Bright Pink, Deep Salmon and Scarlet. These are F-1 hybrids, the first such geraniums produced from seed. They are base-branching and require no pinching to remain compact.

Then come two Marigolds: First Lady, a compact double that glows bright yellow, and Orange Jubilee, a companion to last year's Golden Jubilee. The latter is a rich orange color with three-inch blooms.

Verbena Blaze, a bright scarlet dwarf with excellent potential as a cover, the Zinnia Wild Cherry complete the list of AA flowers. The latter is a giant cactus type Zinnia with blooms five inches across and a unique cherry-rose color.

ONE VEGETABLE made the All America list—Spartan Valor, a cucumber of the long-green "slicer" type. This should be a good one for home gardeners.

Briefly, some other new flowers for 1968 are a grandiflora Petunia named Cherry Blossom, a multiflora Petunia named Orange Bells and five more of the new Carefree Geraniums, a Light Pink, Salmon, Picotee, Red and a White.

All were near miss in the All America competition and all should prove their worth.

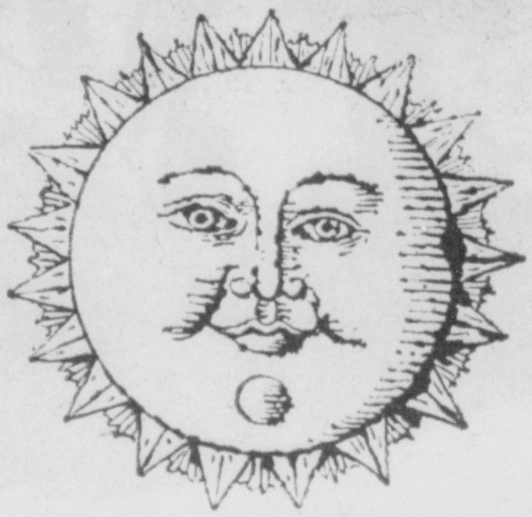
PLAIN TALK FROM YOUR MASTER NURSERYMAN



A select group of independent nurserymen in Northern California have banded together to form the "Master Nurserymen Association." This association is made up of nurserymen with a proven background and knowledge of the nursery business and horticulture. They must have a top reputation for dependability, fairness and service to their own community.

They want people to know that when they go to a master nurseryman them can be sure of the advice and help they get and only the best plants and products to use.

These master nurserymen know what products work best for this area and in line with this they have developed the 49er Gold Strike products which meet the specific growing conditions in Northern California. These products are sold only through Master Nurserymen members. The gardening public can have complete trust and confidence in members of this association.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Cut back lantanas this month to renew plants and keep them from becoming too rangy.
- If you plan to move a camellia from one garden area to another, the best time to do so is when they're in bloom.
- Spring-flowering shrubs such as weigela and spiraea should not be pruned until they have bloomed.
- Geraniums may be cut back now if you haven't already pruned them in late fall or winter.
- Aphids love the tender new growth on roses. Preventive spraying will discourage their showing up.

Perennials Pose Their Special Challenge

In eastern climates, hardy, herbaceous perennials play an important role in landscaping.

In California, however, we are faced with and blessed with a climate that makes the garden year a 12-month affair. There's no blanket of snow to hide the bareness of an herbaceous perennial bed during its dormancy.

Therefore perennial gardening in California becomes a challenge — not so much of keeping color going for 12 months, but of keeping the perennial border presentable during winter months when its herbaceous members die back.

Perennials, of course, need not be relegated to beds of their own for they fit the landscape in numerous capacity — along with shrubs and annuals. For the sake of exposition, however, let's consider a mythical border that includes perennials only—a mixture of herbaceous and evergreen varieties.

For the rear of the border, we suggest tall perennials such as delphinium, poker plants, Pride of Madeira and hollyhock. Here are two herbaceous perennials in combination with two that keep their foliage year-round.

For the middle border your choice is infinite.

Clumps of chrysanthemum are colorful; columbines, English lavendar and blue salvia; foxglove, Transvaal daisy, geraniums and coreopsis; Shasta daisies and marguerites along with anthemis, the golden marguerite, the succulent sedums and penstemon — we could go on and on.

For the border front try Basket of Gold alyssum, candytuft, pinks and violas; and if that doesn't seem enough, add coral bells, English primroses, coreopsis and a low-growing campanula.

As mentioned above, one need not use perennials exclusively in his "perennial border," but if you like a challenge, a good case could be made for doing so. At least you'll have fun in the process.

MARIN NURSERYMEN say the new seed-grown hybrid, the Carefree Geranium, is certain to be one of their hottest sellers this year. Available in eight colors, it is ideal for beds, borders or planters, displaying extra vigor and longer bloom.

The Super Seeds Gain In Popularity

More And More Gardeners Are Turning To Hybrids

Hybrid seeds have been around the farm for some time; but only recently have these super varieties become available in seed racks

Since gardeners are always looking for something better their popularity is growing fantastically.

Hybrids have good reason to be popular. Among these reasons are the higher yields, the more uniform fruit or flowers, and the healthier, more vigorous plants these super seeds produce.

What is a hybrid?

Basically it is the offspring of two related but different, parent lines. The trick in making an outstanding hybrid is finding the right parents. Plant breeders hand cross hundreds of combinations of parent strains. Many offspring join the parade of hybrid drop-outs before the right combination of parents is found.

The spectacular performance of the few hybrids that survive the testing program is well worth the effort and time that goes into producing them.

There is, of course, one disadvantage of hybrids — they can't reproduce themselves. The seeds they make revert to the common types of the hybrid's parents. So each year the hybrid seed must be made again—instant recreation becomes a costly process. That's one reason hybrid seeds cost more than the standard varieties.

They cost more but they are worth more.

Last Call For The Bareroot Planters

Dormant Season Coming To End Offers Opportunity To Save Money

If you plan to plant a shade or orchard tree this year, a new rose or any of several deciduous shrubs and vines, do it now.

Wait another week or two and all dormant plants that have been available in barerooted form during the winter will have been put into containers by nurserymen.

THIS DOESN'T mean that you can't plant any or all of these after they've broken their winter's nap, but it does mean that you might save a little money by saving the nurseryman his trouble of planting bareroot material in containers.

What's still available in bareroot?

At many nurseries, the new roses are, along with fine roses of yesteryear.

This would include the three 1968 All America Rose Selections: Europeana, Scorlet Knight and Miss All America Beauty. It would also include AARS winners from many a previous year, which are just as beautiful as ever they were.

MOST ORCHARD trees are still available in bareroot. Peaches, apricots, apples, pears, nectarines, almonds, walnuts, cherries and plums are all possible.

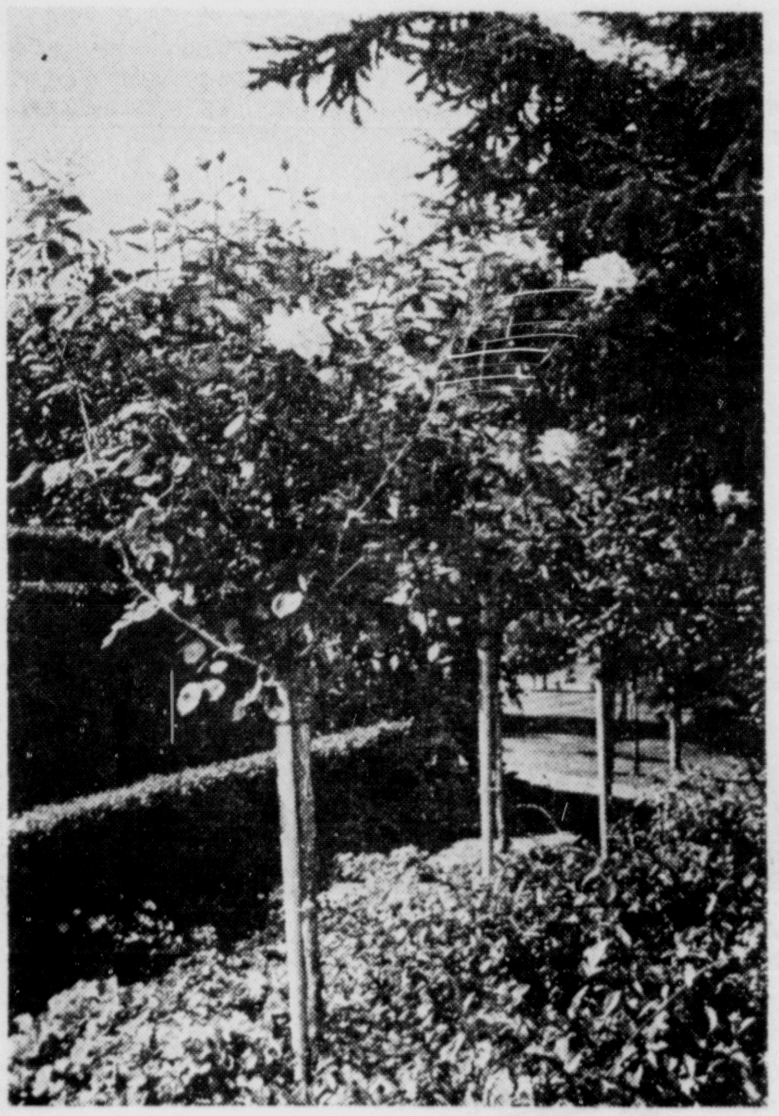
Grapes and berry bushes are also to be found bareroot. Your favorite table grapes, including eastern American varieties such as Concord and Pierce, are available.

And all of your favorite bush berries such as raspberries, boysenberries, youngberries, plus delicacies such as currants and blueberries, are available—variety again depending on your locale.

SHADE AND street trees are still to be found, and in a wide variety.

Liquidamber, pistache, sycamore, Modesto and Arizona ash, fruitless mulberry, maidenhair, elm and others are available as thin "whips" which grow amazingly fast over their first few years.

There are also flowering fruit trees to be found, but some of your favorite flowering shrubs, such as the saucer and star magnolias, are never barerooted, so you can ignore them for the moment and concentrate on trees and shrubs that are.



ROSES ARE still available in bareroot form for planting, but their dormant season is all but over. You can have tree roses like these beauties this summer if you plant now.

Flowering Shrubs Have Won The West

Deciduous flowering shrubs are the backbone of spring gardens in the Midwest and East. But for many years California gardeners and a good many nurserymen either ignored them or treated them indifferently.

In fairness to earlier gardeners it should be admitted that these shrubs were mostly eastern transplants and did only moderately well in our sharply different climate.

Today, however, that is no longer true and we begin to see more lilacs, more Bridal Wreath and Weigela — all of them free flowering and happy under out conditions, where they were almost unknown for a long period.

THE REASON for this?

Nurserymen now offer strains which have been specially selected or bred to produce in the California climate.

Take the Forsythias, for instance.

These "golden bells" were always among the more difficult of deciduous flowering shrubs to grow in California. Today, however, there are no less than four varieties for sale, including two new introductions. And when you see the sprays of vivid gold which Forsythia produces, you'll know why nurserymen worked so hard to develop these beauties.

WEIGELAS have always been one of the best adapted of these "Eastern" shrubs and several excellent forms are offered today. Pink Weigela and the striking red-flowered variety "Bristol Ruby" lead the parade. "Bristol Snowflake" is white-flowered and delicate.

The new varieties "Java Red" and "Floreal" are both red.

Bridal Wreaths, or Spiraea, offer mostly white flowers but the variety "Anthony Waterer" is pink. Both the Persian lilac and Chinese lilac are available in all areas. Each is well worth growing.

Shall It Be Grass Or A Groundcover?

Whether you plant lawn grass or groundcover in a given garden area may depend on a variety of things:

The terrain and what use you intend to make of it; your own temperament; the amount of sunlight available — all these and more will have a bearing on your decision.

Make no mistake about it, a lawn requires more attention from the gardener than do most groundcovers, but ask yourself this:

Can any groundcover offer a more practical or a more beautiful solution to filling garden space? Certainly nothing compares in beauty with a well-groomed lawn.

Some people plant lawns out of habit, however, when, in reality, one of several lawn substitutes might better suit their purposes. Consider the following few situations which might face any one of us:

A busy schedule or simply a lack of interest might dictate the use of English ivy instead of lawn grass for the front garden.

Ivy or prostrate rosemary, among others, might better cover a sloping terrain where mowing and watering a lawn would be difficult.

Carpet bugle or dichondra might better fill a shaded area or an area under a tree where grass does only moderately well.

It might prove more practical to plant creeping thyme or lippia in a poor soil than to take time to improve the soil.

You can come up with other reasons of your own.

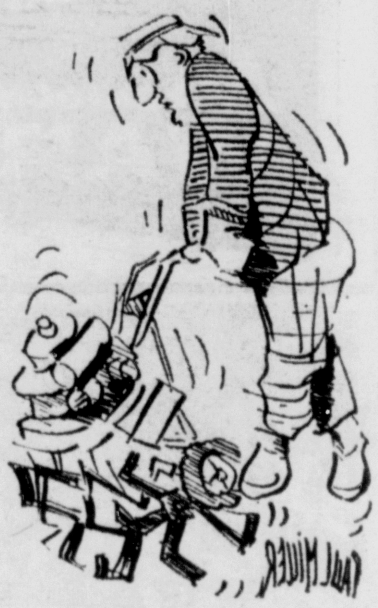
Now let's consider situations where no substitute for lawn is really acceptable:

Where children at play might trample a groundcover underfoot, then nothing can replace a lawn; nor should anything. What better surface than lawn grass is there to tumble and play on?

Where the gardener is willing to groom grass by mowing, feeding and weeding regularly there is no substitute; for what can match the beauty of a lovely carpet of grass?

Where lounging and sunning are a way of life, doesn't a spot of lawn make life more wonderful?

There are pros and cons for each.



When Thatch Accumulates, Your Lawn Is In Danger

Old leaf sheathes that accumulate at the base of grass plants make up much of the debris found in the lawn.

A certain amount is normal, but for a variety of reasons layers an inch or more thick can accumulate, then called thatch. Thatch may prevent fertilizer, even water, from filtering uniformly through to the soil. It can retard catch of the spring overseeding, and harbor pests.

IF YOUR lawn is thatched, spring is a good time to do something about it. The most practical means for most home owners is to remove thatch mechanically with power de-thatching machines.

Types with flexible tines are excellent for combing the thatch out of erect lawn grasses such as Kentucky blue grass and fine fescue, while slicing devices (often termed "vertical mowers") do a better job on surface grasses such as Highland bent grass.

All of these fine turf species are stimulated by spring weather, quickly heal over scars or bruises from the treatment before weeds can gain a toehold.

THERE ARE other means of fighting thatch, too. Usually spent vegetation does not decompose because it is perched above moist soil where the decay organisms abound. Top-dressing with weed-free soil can speed up decomposition. So might fertilization, if there is insufficient nitrogen for both grass and decay "bugs."

Weedless top soil is hard to find and expensive. Generally it is more economical to tear out thatch with a de-thatching machine and follow this by bolster seeding with a fine-textured seed blend and by fertilization. The disturbance cause by thatch removal usually stimulates the grass, partly because it aerates remaining thatch and encourages its decay.

Don't Overlook Flowering Fruit Trees

Their Spring Bloom Show Is A Color Spectacular

Street trees need not be towering shade trees to beautify a neighborhood, though shade is a nice accompaniment to a street planting in hot areas.

Some of the most beautiful street trees in California are nothing more nor less than vehicles for carrying flowers. We speak of the flowering fruit trees that some communities have planted extensively.

Flowering fruit trees are prima donnas of the horticultural world for they serve neither to bear fruit nor to offer shade. Yet during the weeks in late winter and early spring when their blossoms burst forth in a glorious show, one does not question what their purpose in life is.

A street lined with flowering plums or peaches or Japanese flowering cherries can be something you'd drive across half the state just to see. And to live on such a street is pure pleasure.

We don't imply that the flowering fruit trees are unattractive when out of bloom for they are certainly not. The Japanese plums, for instance, grace a neighborhood with their purple-tinged leaves and Japanese cherries, on the other hand, color up beautifully in fall.

Marin's Fair Is Place For Garden Ideas

INTERESTING AND unusual containers, Tom Cagwin says, go far in giving a garden spot character. Shown here is a sun terrace garden, done for the 1967 Marin Art and Garden Fair by Cagwin and Dorward for California Landscape Contractors' Association, and designed by Henry Cole. Cagwin calls attention as "immediate eye catchers" to the simply constructed white-washed, slatted containers in which pots of yellow marigolds were placed. The rather intricately constructed umbrella was in yellow, too. While such construction might be beyond the average handyman's talents, there is no need, he feels, to go into such fancy construction in order to get the same effect. Twelve-inch, pre-cast octagonal paving bricks were laid on a sand base. Sod, from rolls, was laid carpet-like around the outside and trimmed to fit. Next the containers were set around it. Dog, umbrella and furniture completed the picture.

HERE IS THE Dolinsek Begonia Gardens of Cotati version of last year's "specialist garden." The flowers used were fuchsias and begonias. Dolinsek suggests that such a garden might be planned in front of a toolhouse, woodshed or even a greenhouse and, that by using mossy, old lumber, and a suggestion of a mission-style arch, you come up with the feel of an Early California garden. For this door, Dolinsek used one from an old chicken house. On the other hand, if you are stuck with an unsightly old wall, you can disguise it by hanging enough fuchsia baskets on it until you give the impression of a solid wall of blooms. Fuchsias, Dolinsek cautions, want light from above and will take morning sun. It is further suggested that the home gardener, using begonias or fuchsias in containers, plant them with no dirt. Use only leaf mold, sand and manure, and water well. (Additional Ken Molino photos from 1967 Marin Art and Garden Fair on pages M18 and M19).

DENNIS UNTERMANN of West End Nursery, San Rafael, designed this terrace garden for the 1967 Marin Art and Garden Fair in Ross and pointed out that an easy way to beautify a flat "eyesore" in your yard is to make a terrrace or patio from it. A trick in achieving a broad and expansive feeling, is to make pathways as broad and wide as possible. Note the irregular steps leading to the terrace. They, too, add interest. The average home gardener, Untermann says, often has a problem, financial and otherwise, when he tries to come up with a mass blooming area. Shown here are chrysanthemums, which Untermann admits are expensive. However, several flats of petunias, marigolds or any other summer annual can achieve the same mass effect for around $10 or less. Note the interesting container — an old barbecue turned upside down and made into a conversation piece by adding a pot of flowers. This whole garden, Untermann declares, could easily be transferred into someone's backyard. it is typical of the rich source of ideas which the fair provides for discerning home owners.

Remember Those Ideas At '67 Fair?

While there may be "fairies at the bottom of your garden," like those the poetess Rose Fyleman wrote about back in the early 1900s, closer to the truth probably is that, at this time of year, you are more apt to find weeds, poison oak and a rusty can of barbecue lighter fluid left over from last fall.

Another conjecture to question is the one claiming that, with spring erupting, one hears the "Voice of the Turtle" or the "Cry of the Wilderness."

Closer to the truth here is that it is our mate, armed with trowels and snail bait, bellowing the news that the time is now. Gardening must begin!

At this point, we are reminded of how, at last year's Marin Art and Garden Fair in Ross, we boasted: "That's simple, Mable. We don't need Thomas Church. I'll do it myself. It's just the answer for that area back where . . ."

"Now what was that good idea? Last July was a long time ago. The notes I took, I put in my . . . Oh, I don't even remember what I was wearing."

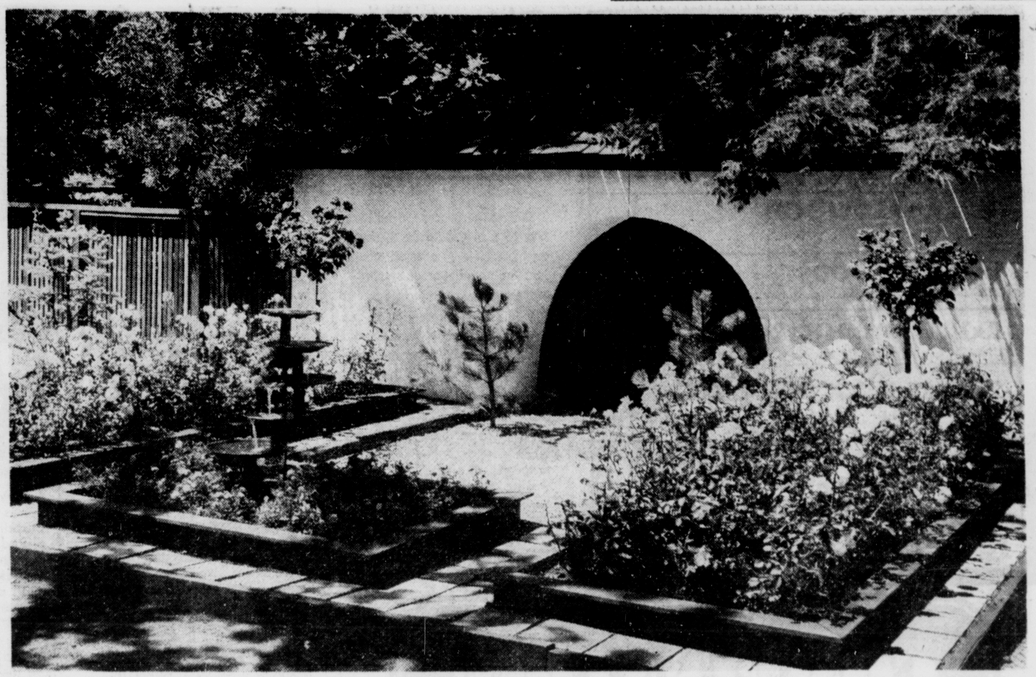
Take heart, Gentle Gardener, help is on the way! Pictured here are some of the gardens in last year's "Fiesta del Verano" with ideas from the designers themselves.

But, a word to the wise: when the 1968 fair opens in Ross, July 3, through July 7, you'd better be on hand, take notes and file them away.

There will only be 10 more days of the county fair at the Marin Art and Garden Center — five in 1968 and five in 1969. The fair will move the following year to its new location — at the Frank Lloyd Wright-designed Marin County Civic Center at Santa Venetia, and, splendid as it is expected to be, the character is bound to change, for the setting will be quite different.

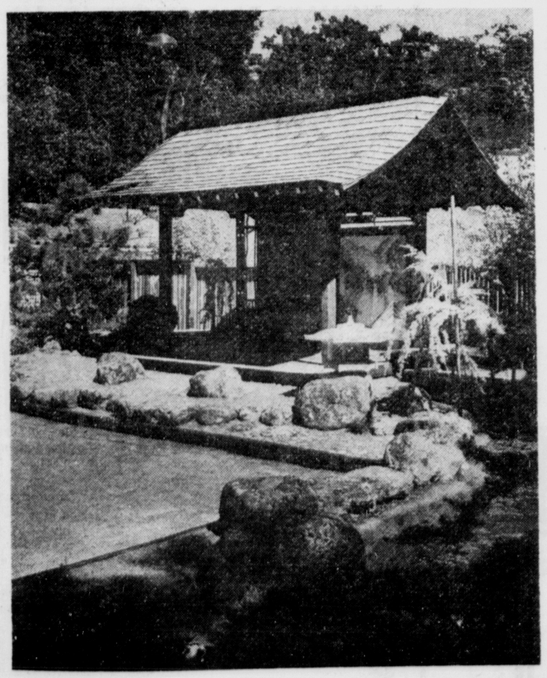
This year's fair, the next to the last at the present wooded site, will be designed by the nationally know Japanese garden designer George Murata.

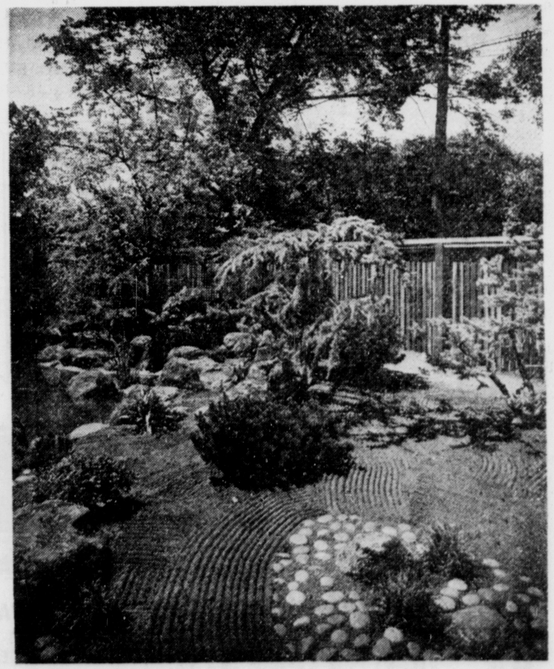
It's theme: "Bridge to Kyoto."



GENGO TAJII of the Country Gardens Nursery in Santa Rosa, who designed this rose garden for last year's Fiesta del Verano, says that roses in themselves, if properly grown and displayed, provide nearly year-round blooms with low maintenance. He points to the easily constructed raised beds. These, he says, not only display roses more effectively, but confine them, allowing the mass bloom effect. Designed with the mission theme in mind, this garden was constructed to suggest the back door of an early California house. In front of the door is low maintenance gravel — or what might have been there at the start. The two pine trees break up the harshness without adding to the care. The same idea can be adopted to fixing up a pre-existing trouble spot such as a woodshed, toolhouse or even a garage door. Given this sort of simple decorative treatment, the area assumes a character of its own.

HERE YOU HAVE both exterior, at left, and interior, above, views of the teahouse George Murata designed for the Marin Gardeners Association at last year's Art and Garden Fair. An interesting feature the home gardener might adopt is the suggestion of a railing. It discourages visitors from straying too near the edge, and is attractive, whereas a full rail would be unsightly. A bonsai on far left serves the same purpose. Murata regards attractively tubbed trees, bonsai or not, while sometimes expensive, an essential to the well-planned garden because of their versatility and unfailing good taste. The structure combines contemporary architecture with a Japanese feeling, and can be built in any garden on any scale. A moat, here filled with water, can be merely suggested by the home gardener or used to span a fault or hard-pan ravine. The interior view focuses on the sunken sitting area with circular seating that can be done simply with thin, pliable, laminated redwood. The sunken area provides protection for sitters and for barbecue, as does the simple, portable windscreen that can be shifted to control both wind and smoke. And the brazier could be used for leg warming when not needed for cooking. Japanese favor low seating because they feel gardens look better either from below or above, not at eye-level. (Photos by Ken Molino)





KIMIO KIMURA of San Rafael capped his Japanese garden at the 1967 fair with the teahouse above. He noted that such structures need not be elaborate. A gardener handy with hammer and nails can put together a small deck with simple roof for shade that will suffice. If he likes the idea of the mural-type backdrop, he need not become involved in the complicated wood-burning scene shown here, but can use room dividers or weatherproofed paneled wallpaper with an appropriate scene. At right is a view of Kimura's garden area, demonstrating how a weed patch can be converted into a clean, beautiful, easily maintained Japanese landscape if the ground is first prepared carefully. First, he advises, plant your junipers or azaleas and place your major rocks, burying at least a third of the stone and leaving the moss or lichen encrusted side up to achieve a natural effect. Cover the whole area with polyethelyene, cutting holes large enough for air and water for the plants. Spread sand over cover, then wet it and rake into forms and designs you desire. For instance, the simulated tides and water shown here. Kimura used a hand-made wooden rake 18 inches wide with teeth an inch apart and cut on a 45-degree angle. A conventional or grass rake won't do, if you want good, definite marks, he says.

IVES: ORCHESTRAL WORKS — Robert Browning Overture; The Unanswered Question; Set for Theater Orchestra; The Circus Band March — Royal Philharmonic Orchestra/Harold Farberman — Vanguard Cardinal Series VCS-10013:

Cardinal is Vanguard's new $3.50 classical series which will offer new recordings too expensive to produce at the $2.50 price of its Everyman label. Most offer the new Dolby system of recording for lower background noise.

This Ives LP provides an interesting program of short works combined with the more lengthy overture, which is devoid of the usual quotations found in Ives and therefore somewhat more difficult to approach than most of his music. It is powerfully polyphonic. While there are other better performances available, this one is not bad, and the "Set for Theater Orchestra" and the march are here on disc for the first time. Ives himself marked the latter "no good," and, while it's fun to hear, one can sympathize with the composer's feeling.

"The Unanswered Question," short as it is, is probably the composer's finest piece. This is far from its most successful interpretation, however.

BLOCH: Schelemo — Zara Nelsova, cello; Israel Symphony-Christensen / Fraenkel / Politis-/Heder/Watts/Utah Symphony Orchestra/Maurice Abravanel — Vanguard Cardinal Series VCS-10007:

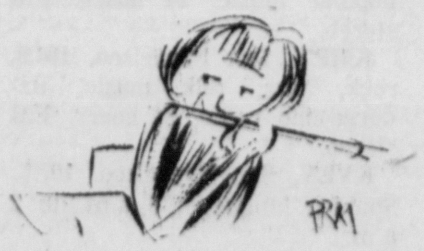
Nelsova, one of the world's greatest cellists, performed the familiar "Schelomo" under the direction of the composer himself on a long-ago-deleted London LP.

The "Israel Symphony" is a stereo first — the only other version being an old mono one, also on Vanguard. It is deeply-felt rhapsodic work linking the Hebrew Biblical past with the conflicts of the World War I period when both works were composed.

Finally, the Dolby system sound is clear and its usual stress on groove echo unnoticeable here.

THE ROMANTIC FLUTE — DANZI: Concerto in D Minor; REINECKE: Concerto for Flute and Orchestra; WIDOR: Romance for Flute and Orchestra — Raymond Meylan, flute/Vienna State Opera Orchestra/Felix Prohaska — Vanguard Cardinal Series VCS-10010:

A wonderful package spotlighting the outstanding Swiss flutist in a program of soaring and sweeping melody against a background of full orchestra in fine stereophonics. More over, all three selections are catalog firsts!



TELEMANN: Musique de Table, Volume I — Vanguard Cardinal Seies VCS-10008; TELEMANN: Musique de Table, Volume II — Played on Baroque Instruments by The Concentus Musicus/Nikolau Harnoncourt — Vanguard Cardinal Series VCS-10009:

Some wag has referred to certain works of Baroque instrumental music as "the Muzak of the period." Telemann's "Table Music" was really written for just that purpose — backgrounds to banquets and similar festivities.

He wrote three volumes or "productions" of this instrumental chamber music, ranging in scope from a single instrument to a small orchestra. The above is Production III.

The first disc contains an overture and suite featuring two oboes and orchestra plus a concerto featuring two horns. The second has a sonata for oboe and continuo, a trio for two flutes and harpsichord, and a quartet for flute, violin, cello and harpsichord. There is quite a bit of variety and although authentic instruments are used the intonation doesn't seem to make one want to climb the wall as is frequently the case. Sound is good.

The complete set of all three productions is available on six Archive stereo-discs in somewhat better performances if you are a nut on complete sets of everything.

DELIUS: Prelude to Iremelin; On Hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring; Intermezzo from "Fennimore and Gerda"; The Walk to Paradise Garden; Idyll: I Once Passed Through a Populous City — Sylvia Fisher/Jess Walters/The Halle Orchestra /Sir John Barbirolli — Vanguard Everyman SRV-246 SD:

As a dyed-in-the-wool Delius nut, this re-release will have a treasured place in my library even though it duplicates many selections I already have performed by the great Beecham.

"Cuckoo" and "The Walk to Paradise Garden" should be in every library, even if you have no other Delius pieces. The latter is a wondrous tonal achievement that is best described by the seemingly contradictory words, "powerfully tender." But of the major interest on this LP is the very first recording of "Idyll," composed in 1932 shortly before the composer's death. It is a Deliusian vision, a love poem featuring soprano and baritone soloists with orchestra.

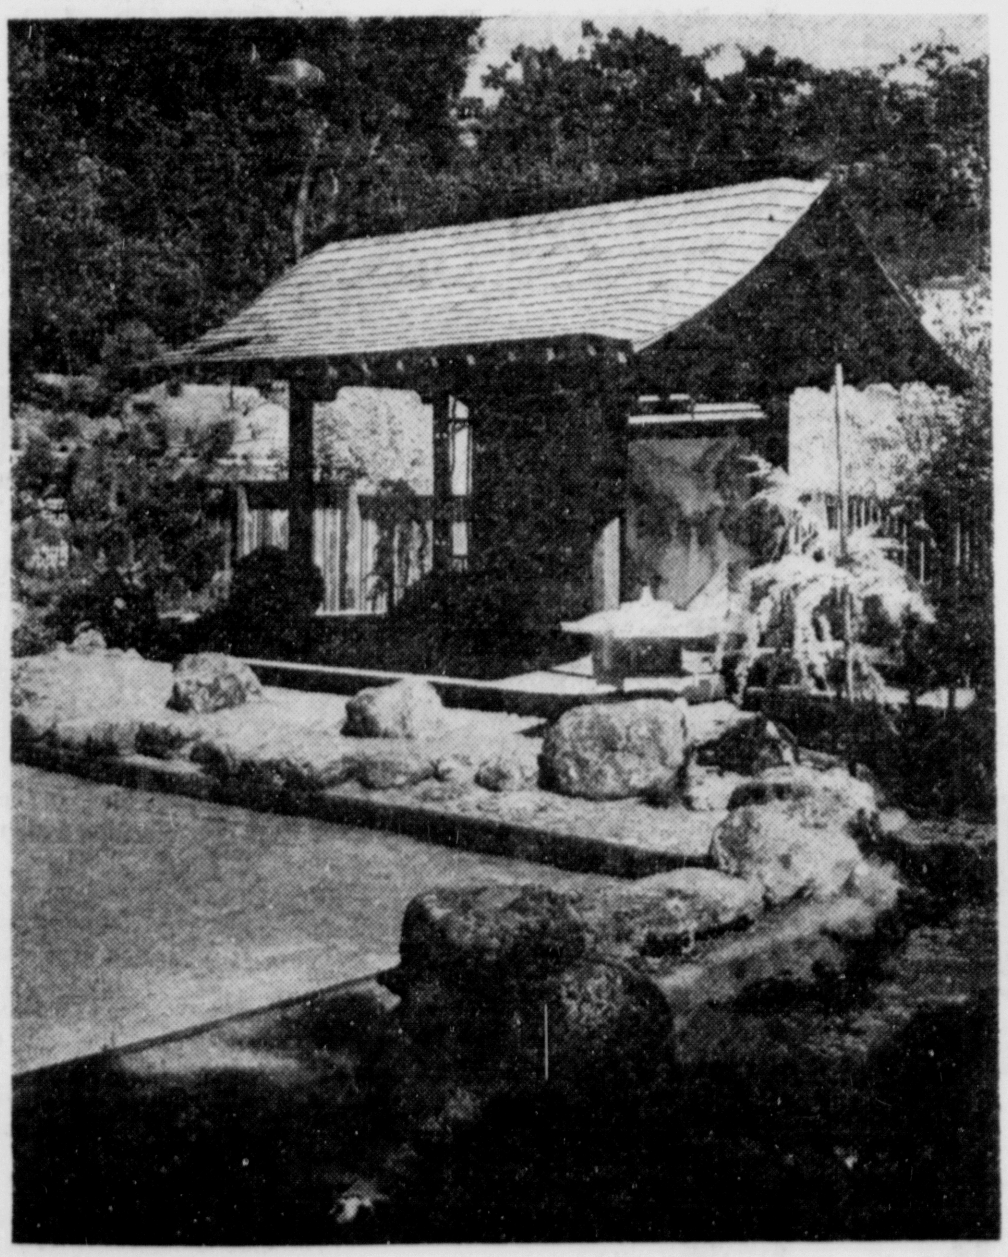
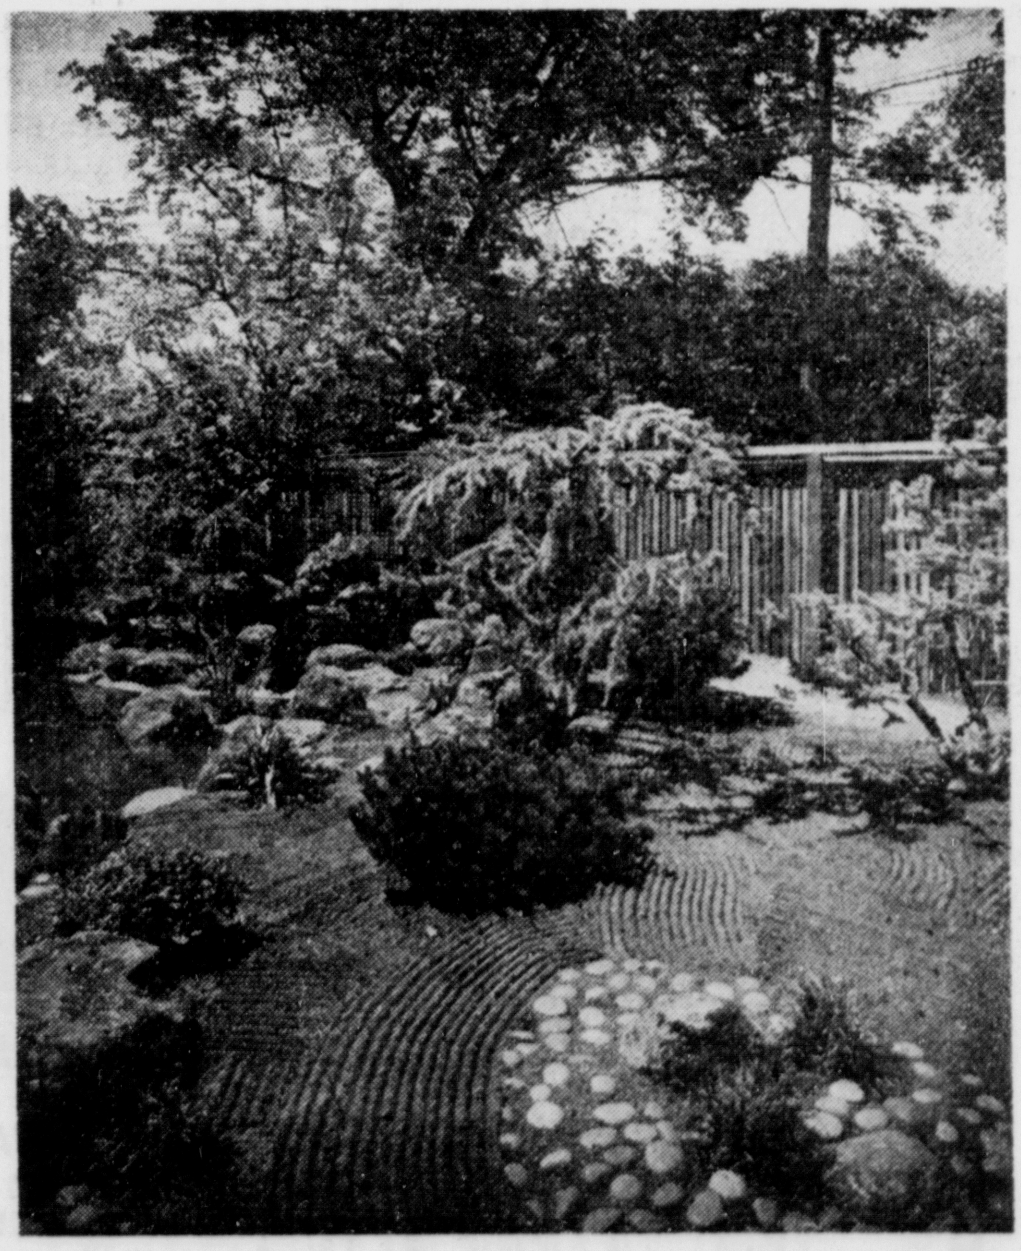
GENGO TAJII of the Country Gardens Nursery in Santa Rosa, who designed this rose garden for last year's Fiesta del Verano, says that roses in themselves, if properly grown and displayed, provide nearly year-round blooms with low maintenance. He points to the easily constructed raised beds. These, he says, not only display roses more effectively, but confine them, allowing the mass bloom effect. Designed with the mission theme in mind, this garden was constructed to suggest the back door of an early California house. In front of the door is low maintenance gravel — or what might have been there at the start. The two pine trees break up the harshness without adding to the care. The same idea can be adopted to fixing up a pre-existing trouble spot such as a woodshed, toolhouse or even a garage door. Given this sort of simple decorative treatment, the area assumes a character of its own.





KIMIO KIMURA of San Rafael capped his Japanese garden at the 1967 fair with the teahouse above. He noted that such structures need not be elaborate. A gardener handy with hammer and nails can put together a small deck with simple roof for shade that will suffice. If he likes the idea of the mural-type backdrop, he need not become involved in the complicated wood-burning scene shown here, but can use room dividers or weatherproofed paneled wallpaper with an appropriate scene. At right is a view of Kimura's garden area, demonstrating how a weed patch can be converted into a clean, beautiful, easily maintained Japanese landscape if the ground is first prepared carefully. First, he advises, plant your junipers or azaleas and place your major rocks, burying at least a third of the stone and leaving the moss or lichen encrusted side up to achieve a natural effect. Cover the whole area with polyethelyene, cutting holes large enough for air and water for the plants. Spread sand over cover, then wet it and rake into forms and designs you desire. For instance, the simulated tides and water shown here. Kimura used a hand-made wooden rake 18 inches wide with teeth an inch apart and cut on a 45-degree angle. A conventional or grass rake won't do, if you want good, definite marks, he says.

Plants To Cover A Barren Bank

You Can Borrow Some Ideas From The Freeway Landscapers

During the process of building freeways in California, highway engineers have created countless miles of barren embankments.

It has been interesting to see how the highway landscapers have followed them with a variety of plants to cover the bareness. Home gardeners might well profit by the examples.

THE MOST popular covering has been the soil-binding Mesybranthemum or Ice Plant, which excels in the home garden where that garden is on a steep hillside with many square yards to cover.

A more suitable landscape plant to do the same job is English Ivy, which the highway people have also put to good use. It is slower to cover but more satisfactory when it finally takes hold.

The home gardener can cover a barren embankment or any bare spot of ground, sloping or not, with English Ivy or Algerian Ivy. These take to any soil, though where summer sun is extremely hot, you may get scorching on the foliage.

ONE OF THE freeway shrubs we'd like to see more of is the Rockrose. This durable low-grower, Mediterranean, seems willing to grow in any soil, however meager and is sure to make any sun-drenched bank more pleasant to live with. Though it grows wild on the Riviera, and on many Mediterranean isles, it has a refined, domestic look about it which will enhance any garden, large or small.

Nurserymen offer various hybrids, including varieties with white or rose-colored flowers. These dislike moisture, require less water.

A NOVELTY for your garden is the open-throated snapdragons, as exemplified by the Bellflowers and the Bright Butterflies that look more like pestemons than snapdragons.

Everything Grows In Containers

And The Technique Offers Grower Many Advantages

Almost any plant, shrub or tree can be grown in a container for varying lengths of time.

A Coast redwood will outgrow a tub in relatively short order, but a camellia will live to old age in a box.

And whether a plant can be permanently grown in a tub is not the question. Ask instead, how well does it look during the years before we have to put it in the ground?

CONTAINERS are used for many reasons, but principally we use them to set certain plants aside — to feature them in the garden setting. Primarily we use them on decks and patios, but occasionally they can be used to good effect right in the garden among other plants that are grown in the ground.

A bamboo in a cast concrete container enhances a poolside or hides a water faucet.

Some plants seem almost to prefer the container life because good drainage is asured. Azaleas and camellias are thus happily grown in this manner provided they are watered regularly. Bulbs are ideally suited to either potting or tubbing for the same reason.

SOME OF THE most attractive of all plants in tubs are the various dwarf citrus.

Most of your favorite citrus varieties are available on dwarfing rootstock and what a show they put on when they come into bearing. The fruit is standard size, giving the small trees an ornamental effect which is unavailable on the scale of an orchard-grown tree.

The fruit is usually earlier to ripen, too, and often matures in a container where it might not in the ground, thanks to warmer soil conditions.

CERTAIN ACCENT shrubs are given more impact when grown in a tub, as witness the New Zealand Flax with its dramatic, sword-like leaves, or Yew Pine, with its columnar habit and decorative leaves, which are often lost among more dominant foliage when the Yew Pine is grown in the open ground.

Tubbing is good for cultural reasons and for decorative reasons, but it is also good for personal reason, too.

The gardener who features his favorite shrubs in containers can give them more intimate and personal attention than he usually does in the open landscape. And this is reason enough for growing anything this way.

BEGONIAS are among the many plants that thrive in containers. And the imaginative and ingenious gardener can often come up with an unusual container, such as this one, that shows off his plants to their very best advantage. The result is a real eye-catcher that can lift a garden section out of the ordinary into the special category.

Expert Advice on all "Do-It-Yourself" Projects

A Raised Planter Bed Will Show Off Your Finest Plants

A raised planting bed is often the natural result of an earth cut, supported by a retaining wall.

Or, on level lots, it can be a specially constructed affair, designed simply and purely to show off certain plants. In this case we consider it something in the line of a huge planter and treat it accordingly.

Whatever its reason for being the raised bed offers a wonderful opportunity to gardeners.

BY RAISING plants above-normal ground level, it seems to say: "Look at these plants; they're something special."

It permits the use of pendulous or spreading rock-type plants for creating showy displays of color.

Overall, it stimulates the gardener to new levels of interest in his work.

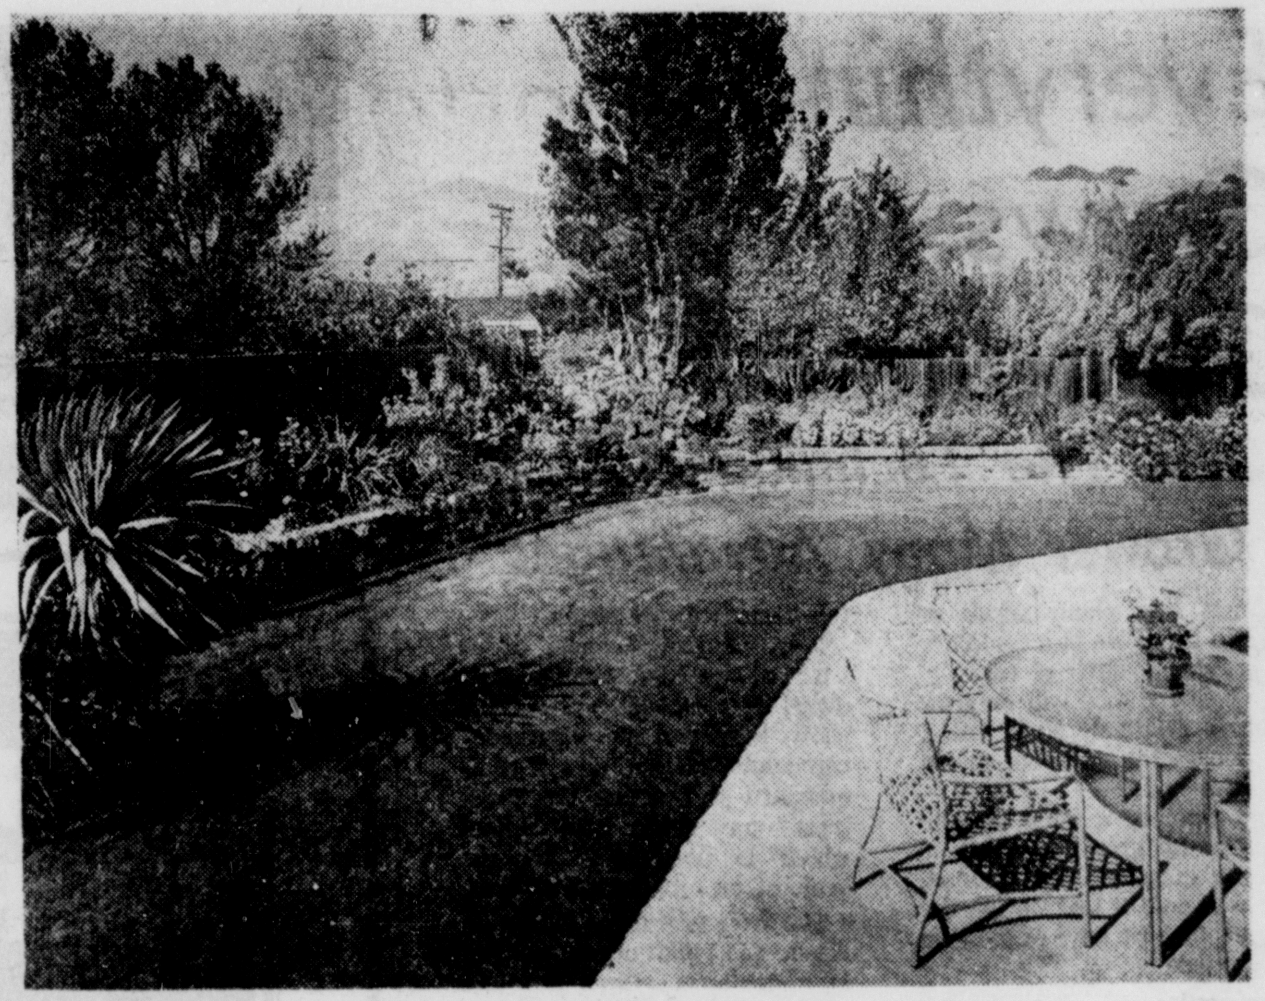
If you need any other excuse for constructing a raised bed in your level garden, consider its use as an adjunct to outdoor living.

AROUND THE patio it can serve as a bench to sit on; and more than one raised bed has started out as a sand box for kiddies and served such a function until they tired of such play. There are practical, as well as aesthetic reasons for the raised bed.

The selection of material for planting a raised bed is nearly unlimited. Free-flowering annuals can fill it on a year-round basis, or a combination of annuals, perennials, shrubs and bulbs might be more to your liking.

By its very nature, the raised bed provides perfect drainage and is ideally suited to all but a relatively few bog plants.

ONE GARDENER might fill his raised bed with the lovely Star Jasmine; another with dwarf Junipers and still another with Ivy Geraniums. Most of us, however, will combine one with the other and add a few touches of strictly personal pleasure to the planting.



THE RAISED brick planter which Katy and Paul Steinmetz, landscape designers, designed for the Howard Arneson yard in San Rafael gives striking evidence of how this technique can spotlight and show to best advantage the plantings. (Photo by Ken Molino)

Pendulous plants that cascade color as they tumble over the raised bed wall can be highly appealing. Try Ground Morning Glory, trailing Campanula, Lotus, Chrysanthemums, Petunias and any other tumble plants of your choice.

It may take time to get just the effect you want, but that's the fun of it.

Soil Is All-Important In The Garden

The soil on which one builds his garden has more to do with its success than almost any other thing.

Prized plants can struggle and decline in a poor soil. Not-so-prized plants might grow in a good soil.

If your soil does need improving, there is no better time to do it than now. Rains have usually penetrated enough to make digging easy, and digging is the only way to soil improvement. But choose a day when the ground is not too soggy from recent rains.

THE ILLS YOU look for and set out to improve are as follows:

Clay or adobe soil too compacted. Plants have trouble "breathing" in such soil and nutrients are so locked in that they aren't available to the roots.

Soil poorly drained. This goes hand-in-hand with compaction, as water settles in low places and stays there.

Soil too sandy and loose. Here is the opposite of the above. Soil is like a sieve and won't hold water or food.

And finally there is soil which is worn out and in need of trace elements and/or nutrients.

THE REMEDY for compacted or loose soil is the same — humus. Humus can be any organic matter that leavens compacted soil or bulks up a sandy soil. The most commonly used humus is peat moss, followed by leaf mold, wood shavings, bark, rotted manure.

Various commercial preparations such as decomposed granite and commercially prepared soil conditioners may be used in conjunction with humus to help clay soils retain their new structure.

These should be worked in well and all clods should be broken to insure a thorough mixture of humus and soil.

IMPROVING A poorly drained soil can be done by digging down and breaking up hard pan that prevents the water from draining properly. The simplest method, however, if you are not planting trees and deep-rooted shrubs, is to raise the bed with header boards, bricks or rocks and fill in with new soil and humus to the new 12 level.

When using this method be sure to work new and old soil together.

You may not have been a green thumber in the past, but with an improved soil your chances of becoming one are good.

ART IN YOUR garden can be a reality this year with the new Paintbrush Zinnia. Inspired by the colorful palette, Paintbrush Zinnia is sure to add an artistic touch to your home and garden. In your home: striking, colorful arrangements. In your garden: masses of lively color. This new semi-dwarf zinnia, originally developed in Switzerland, is an extra early blooming variety. With normal care and season its medium-sized blooms last until frost.

Deciduous Magnolia Has Won Following Among Californians

They Are Even Showier Than The Evergreens When In Bloom

There are still Californians who think all magnolias are towering evergreen trees, but their number is diminishing.

Over the past two decades there has been an increasing trend toward planting the fine deciduous flowering members of the family — a trend which started here in Northern California, spreading southward as climatic adaptability was proved by "avant gardeners."

IF THE evergreen members of the family are magnificent—and they truly deserve the designation — the deciduous magnolias are showier in bloom.

In late winter, and often as early as January, they reward us with a shower of flowers unmatched by any competitors. Bare branches suddenly are hidden from sight by a burst of bloom that smothers the plant.

Mature Saucer Magnolia are often 15 feet high, so the show is considerable.

THERE ARE several deciduous magnolias.

The most widely planted in all areas is the Saucer Magnolia, a medium sized shrub or, eventually, a small multiple-trunked tree. Flower color of this hybrid ranges from white through pink and rose to a vivid red-purple. Mature specimens are remarkably beautiful when in full bloom.

The next most widely planted variety is the dainty Star Magnolia, smaller in over-all stature, more delicate in bloom. The name derives from the split or pinwheel nature of the flowers.

SIMILAR IN appearance, but larger is a variety which nurserymen offer as Merrill's Magnolia. As with most magnolias, the flowers are quite fragrant and a joy to encounter on a late winter day.

The Lily Magnolia or Lily Tree has slightly more tubular blooms, white on the inside, purple outside. The hybrid Veitchi Magnolia is a better choice, however, if you want purplish bloom. It has become increasingly popular over the past decade.

Chairside Planter

An attractive chairside planter may be made by gluing together the bottoms of two 10 or 12-inch clay pots and running a dowel through both drainage holes. The top of one pot will sit solidly on the ground and the other will hold the plant.

The Right Tools Ease Your Work

Pick For Their Quality, And For Specific Uses

The kind of tools a gardener uses determines, to a large extent, how efficient and how enjoyable your garden will be.

Without the right tools gardening is an uphill fight — nothing goes easily and you waste a lot of time you could spend on the more enjoyable phases of gardening.

WITH ALL of them, of course, a good quality product is necessary. Inferior grades bend, break and dull quickly, making it impossible or difficult to finisn one's job.

But, what are the right tools? First, one needs something to dig with and to turn over the soil.

Best for all-around use is the round-point shovel. It makes a good tool not only for turning the soil but also for digging holes and scooping. For deep holes, prying or taking the backache out of the job the long-handled form is best.

And, where digging is difficult because of roots or stones and it is necessary to maintain a firm grip at all times the shorter D-handle comes into its own.

FOR DEEP, especially non-stony soils in the garden the sturdy spade is best. It, too, comes with a D-handle and is excellent for cutting roots and root pruning. Its long, straight blade makes it particularly satisfactory for digging plants and it readily doubles as a sod cutter and turf edger — unlike the curved blade of a shovel, it cuts a straight line.

Another fine digging tool is the spading fork, particularly adapted to hard or stony soils which its narrow tines penetrate much better than a spade or shovel. It is also lighter and, thus, enables one to dig up the garden much faster.

Every green thumber knows the regular hoe for both loosening and hilling up soils but for small spaces there are special narrow ones and small triangular ones that slide through the soil with ease in any direction cutting weeds off just below the surface. For weed control the push-pull motion of the scuffle hoe also covers a lot of ground quickly, while for just loosening the soil nothing beats the long-handled, toothed cultivator.

EQUALLY USEFUL are the rakes.

For working soil smooth a sturdy-fingered steel garden rake is unsurpassed, while on lawn the spring steel fingers of the broom rake are ideal, particularly the adjustable-width models.

Hard or root-infested soils, on the other hand, call for a mattock while small, close jobs like planting or weeding in small beds require the use of narrow or standard-width trowels and weeders.

Finally, there are turf edgers, sod lifters, tall and short bulb planters, hedge trimmers, and weed cutters such as grass whips, sickles, etc. to round out the stable of helpful tools.

Let them help you, too.

THIS PARTICULAR section of the citrus garden designed by Dennis Untermann of West End Nursery for the 1967 Marin Art and Garden Fair brings out several points which the Marin home gardener might adapt. First, Untermann points out how the judicial use of just a bit of sod, used over a man-made mound, can create interest in an otherwise flat, dull space. Secondly, he points out that the base of any tree is a fine place to put a bench and it doesn't have to be complicated or circular. It can be just as simple as this one which was constructed in a few minutes. The foreground is a mass of marigolds, inexpensive and easy to grow. Lastly, he calls attention to the use of the pea gravel. Added interest is given by setting some of it in frames. Paths are wide and off-set, giving an expansive feeling. (Photo by Ken Molino)

Fertilizing Is Fundamental To A Healthy Lawn

Nitrogen Is Most Essential Among The Needed Elements

One of the four fundamentals for an acceptable lawn is fertilization (the other three are fine-textured grass, watering and proper mowing).

Recent years have seen remarkable progress towards providing fertilizers especially designed for lawn grass.

Modern fertilizers seldom burn if directions are followed. They heft easily, flow freely, are neither dusty nor smelly. In a good spreader they distribute uniformly.

Nitrogen is especially needed for a leaf crop such as lawn grass. Nitrogen stimulates growth and deep color so admired in a lawn. Lawn fertilizers thus carry ample nitrogen.

Nitrogen is usually at least double the percentage of either of the other major nutrients, phosphorus and potassium.

Research has taken a second look at the latter two nutrients.

A series of reports at the national meeting of the Agronomy Society centered upon potassium. It was shown that sufficient potassium (the exact percentage would vary with soil) increases the hardiness of grasses tender to cold. It also helps prevent disease, and makes the leaf less flabby.

With research of this sort under way, home owners can anticipate tailor-made lawn fertilizers that are not only convenient, but essentially just what fine turf grass needs.

MEMORIES

Think not on her gentle ways that graced each day with gifts of love,
Her whispering eyes with wondrous gaze
in watching seeds send life above.
Dwell less upon the way she stood,
soft wind awhistle in her hair,
With Bluebird cap upon her head,
a hand-wrought kiss blown to the air.
Be quiet, thoughts of hug-clenched arms that thrust unto your heart a knife,
And rest awhile those golden charms,
a bracelet fashioned from her life.
So, still for now, let embers die,
'is yet too soon to touch the coal.
Let time with blurring fog-drenched rain pour mist upon your pain-seared soul.
When years renew the crumbling ash
in tender charcoal memory,
Then view the fire in beauteous glow, your heart warmed by what used to be.

MORE ABOUT FM RECEPTION — As covered in last week's article, distortion caused by multi-path reception can be eliminated or reduced by the use of a quality FM antenna with directional characteristics installed on the roof. The antenna can be orientated toward the stations so that those signals are picked up easily and the side signals are reduced in intensity.

The indoor type antenna made up from twin lead television line (looks like a T) that usually comes with a set is effective in good signal areas; that is, locations that have a clear path without mountains in the direction of the FM stations. These antennas work best if the top of the T is broadside to the direction of the stations. Ordinary wire such as lamp cord does not make a good FM antenna or lead-in wire. Television antennas, unless they are the newer type that includes the FM elements, do not make good FM antennas. If connections are made to the TV antenna, a set coupler must be used or both the TV and the FM will be affected. In good signal areas as described above, rabbit ear type antennas located indoors sometimes gives acceptable results if it is rotated for best signal. The all-direction type of FM antenna is not very useful in Marin County since it can pick up bounces, reflections, from mountains and thus introduce multi-path distortion.

In some areas of Mill Valley severe distortion is caused by a signal overload (too much signal). In these critical areas, the signal received from the two FM transmitters located over Waldo Grade just floods the receivers and causes them to produce a buzzing sound. One or more stations appear in several places across the dial. One method that is helpful in reducing this overload type of distortion is to cut the antenna lead-in wire near the set and overlap the two cut pieces for a few inches and tape them together without making actual electrical contact. This reduces the signal and in many cases reduces the buzz and clears up the program material. The amount of overlap should be such that the buzzing is reduced or eliminated without losing too much signal from the more distant stations.

To sum up, good FM Stereo reception usually requires a quality directional FM antenna mounted on the roof away from surrounding wires and metalic objects.

Disneyland Prepares For Biggest Season

The Travel Pages

Disneyland this year continues its growth with new entertainment and experiences for its guests.

Completed in the past few months is a three-year, 50-million-dollar expansion program providing 12 major new adventures and a whole new look for major areas of the Park.

More than a million dollars will be spent this year on special entertainment — big name swing bands, teen-age rock music, Dixieland favorites and star-studded variety shows.

THROUGHOUT the summer, Disneyland will feature daily parades by all the famous characters created by Walt Disney and his artists during the 40 years since the birth of Mickey Mouse, including the newest "Jungle Book" stars.

Since its opening in 1955, Disneyland has entertained more than 68 million guests from every corner of the world — nearly eight million last year.

But the "Magic Kingdom" offers far more than it did, even a year ago.

ITS NEWEST attractions include seven major adventures in an all-new 23-million-dollar Tomorrowland, a new fleet of monorail trains, plus the newest of Disney adventures, "Pirates of the Caribbean."

In this "Blood-curdling" voyage with famous pirates of the past, Disneyland introduces a cast of 66 "audio-animatronic" pirates looting and burning a Caribbean port city while visitors sail by in open-mouthed wonder.

New Tomorrowland is filled with a different kind of excitement, capturing the space-age world of the future.

FILLED WITH movement and scientific advancement, the seven new attractions of Tomorrowland include "Flight to the Moon" with its mission control center and super-realistic space vehicle, plus an equally memorable "Adventure Thru Inner Space" where guests enter a molecule aboard "man-shrinking" automobiles.

An all-new "Circle-Vision 360" production of "America the Beautiful" visits scenic wonders across the United States, while the unique transport of the future, "People Mover," tours the entire area "People Mover," currently undergoing final refinement, allows continuous operation while passengers board and disembark.

The "People Mover" station, with its rotating loading area, provides a circular theme structure for all of Tomorrowland with a giant spacecraft and a base for the new high-flying "rocket jets."

AUDIENCES are carried around huge stages on the "Carousel of Progress" which stars 32 audio-animatronic performers in a four-act play, portraying electricity's growth in modern living. Guests also see the world's largest animated model city.

"Tomorrowland Terrace" combines live entertainment with newest techniques in rapid food service and outdoor "climate control." Six major corporations sponsoring Tomorrowland's new attractions include the Bell System, Coca-Cola, General Electric, Goodyear, McDonnel-Douglas and Monsanto.

Disneyland is also adding this year a new fleet of four trains for the popular Disneyland-Alweg monorail system.

A SUPER-SOFT suspension system, advance-engineered electric power units, re-arranged seating with panoramic windows and foam rubber seats will provide a more comfortable and entertaining trip.

Other new attractions completed in the last three years include "Great Moments with Mr. Lincoln," romantic New Orleans Square "It's a Small World," and the gigantic "Primeval World."

With 52 major adventures, Disneyland's current investment is now more than 100 million dollars.

During the Spring, Disneyland is open five days a week, Wednesday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. — with extended hours for all holidays.

Daily operation begins May 30 with a three-night big band festival. Harry James and Wayne King will be among five big-name bands for the event.

THE FULL summer season begins June 15 (following five all-night graduation parties for California high schools). The park will be open daily from 9 a.m. to midnight and until 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights through mid-September.

ROCKETS AND fireworks will provide additional excitement in the new Tomorrowland project at Disneyland. The mighty rocket at right forms a hub for spinning jets that leave light trails in the sky, while even more spectacular fireworks burst high over Matterhorn Mountain.

West Indies Have Their Emerald Isle

Begorra, and to be sure, as St. Patrick's Day approaches, you'll be glad to learn that there is, indeed, an "Emerald Isle of the West Indies."

Its name is Montserrat, and it was first settled by the Irish in 1632.

Montserrat's history begins much earlier, when Columbus discovered it in 1493 and named it after the "saw-toothed mountain" in Spain famed for the monastery where Ignatius Loyola conceived the idea of the Society of Jesus.

THE GAELIC colonists arrive from nearby St. Kitts, where they had lived side by side with the English for eight long years after leaving their native Ireland under pressure from Oliver Cromwell.

But the "new Ireland" of the Caribbean was short-lived. In 1664 it was seized by the French for four years, and again by them in 1782 for a year before the British finally regained possession, which they still retain.

Thus named by an Italian explorer for a Spanish mountain, settled by the Irish, conquered by the French twice and repossessed by the British each time—what is Montserrat like today?

ASK ANY resident, perhaps your taxi driver. Likely as not he'll tell you a wordy story in an Afro-Irish brogue which guidebooks describe as English. And chances are he'll not be Irish, but of African descent as are most inhabitants.

He'll tell you that Montserrat has an area of 32 square miles and a population of 14,000, of whom 3,000 live in Plymouth, the capital, port and shopping center. Also, that the island rises to a scenic green-clad height of 3,002 feet at Chance Mountain, and that there are several fine beaches and a number of hot springs and waterfalls.

According to the Caribbean Travel Association, hotels in Montserrat are quite reasonable.

THERE ARE six: the Canadiana with self-contained efficiency units that rent at $85 weekly per couple; the 10-room Coconut Hill, $10 daily per person, double occupancy, including all meals; the 16-room beachfront Emerald Isle, $15 daily per person, double, all meals; the Macleod guest House $12.50 daily per person, double, all meals; the beachfront Vue Pointe, with 15 rooms and 24 cottages, $18 daily per person, double, with breakfast and dinner; and the 10-room Wade Inn, $12.50 daily per person, double, with breakfast and dinner.

The island offers a peaceful, unspoiled tropical atmosphere where you'll enjoy water sports — swimming, fishing, snorkeling, power and sail boating —, and a variety of land sports — golf, tennis, horseback riding, hiking and mountain climbing.

RATES AT Montserrat, served by Pan American and British West Indies Airways, and throughout most of the Caribbean will drop as much as 20 per cent for the long summer season from April 15 through mid December.

Weather in the Caribbean is delightful during spring and summer months, with sun-filled days and minimum of rain.

Spring Is The Time Of Year For Touring Beautiful Normandy

Season Comes Early To Province With Its Mild, Maritime Climate

Spring comes early to Normandy.

The flowering of the apple trees in April puts the final stamp on winter, but in Normandy's mild maritime climate blossom time really begins even earlier.

March starts the round with the cherries of Gaillon, the pear trees of Domfront, and it swings on through May in a cloud of flowers. For weeks the country roads, particularly round Ango, Jumieges, Lisieux and the Valleys of the Seine and the Pays d'Auge wind through veritable forests of blooms.

FOR VISITORS in search of sheer beauty, spring is probably the ideal time for exploring Norman countryside, and Rouen, capital of upper Normandy, is one of the best stepping-off points.

This ancient city has old cobbled streets, and a very famous Place du Vieux-Marche. In this square, a mosaic flagstone marks the spot where Joan of Arc was burned alive on May 30, 1431.

From here, the bustling Rue de la Grosse Horloge runs to the Cathedral, passing under the arch of the great one-handed clock which still strikes the hours. A particular point of interest for Americans in the Cathedral is the plaque commemorating Robert de la Salle, who in 1681 discovered the mouth of the Mississippi, and took possession of Louisiana in the name of King Louis XIV.

ONE OF THE most intriguing pieces of architecture in Rouen is the 15th Century Butter Tower, built with taxes paid by butter-loving Normans who obtained special dispensations to eat butter during the Lenten fast.

The old part of town offers the pleasant and inexpensive Hotel de la Cathedrale, where bed and breakfast can cost a mere $7 or $8.

Leaving Rouen's Gothic spires behind, and heading north along the banks of the River Seine, the road leads to Croisset, where Flaubert worked for many years. His villa is now a museum.

THE 7TH CENTURY Abbey of Jumieges, destroyed and rebuilt in succeeding centuries, lies half way between Rouen and the bride crossing the Seine at Tancarville. Europe's longest suspension bridge, opened in 1959, it is both beautiful and a triumph of French engineering.

Away to the northeast lies Dieppe, battered by war but extensively rebuilt. It is a historic port and agreeable town, with tennis and golfing facilities, and a shining new casino among its visitor attractions.

Scooping southwest around the bay, one comes to Honfluer. Its old port was the starting point for Samuel de Champlain, founder of Quebec and explorer of the Great Lakes.

QUAINTEST OF structures in Honfleur is the little wooden church of Ste-Catherine, constructed by local ships' carpenters as a thank-offering for the withdrawal of English troops after the Hundred Years' War.

Near Honfleur is a worthy stopping place called the Ferme St-Simeon — an old country inn, once the farm of La Mere Toutain, who ministered to countless famous partners, including America's James McNeill Whistler. Today's American visitor can still eat here, as well as copiously as the artists did, revelling in the fresh air and hearty fare of one of the richest gastronomic areas in France.

A short drive further west lies glamorous Deauville. Deluxe hotels, such as the Normandy, the Royal, and just outside town the Golf, combine with elegant shops, casinos, lavish restaurants, private villas and yachts riding at anchor, to give Deauville a well-earned reputation as one of the smartest vacation resorts in northern Europe.

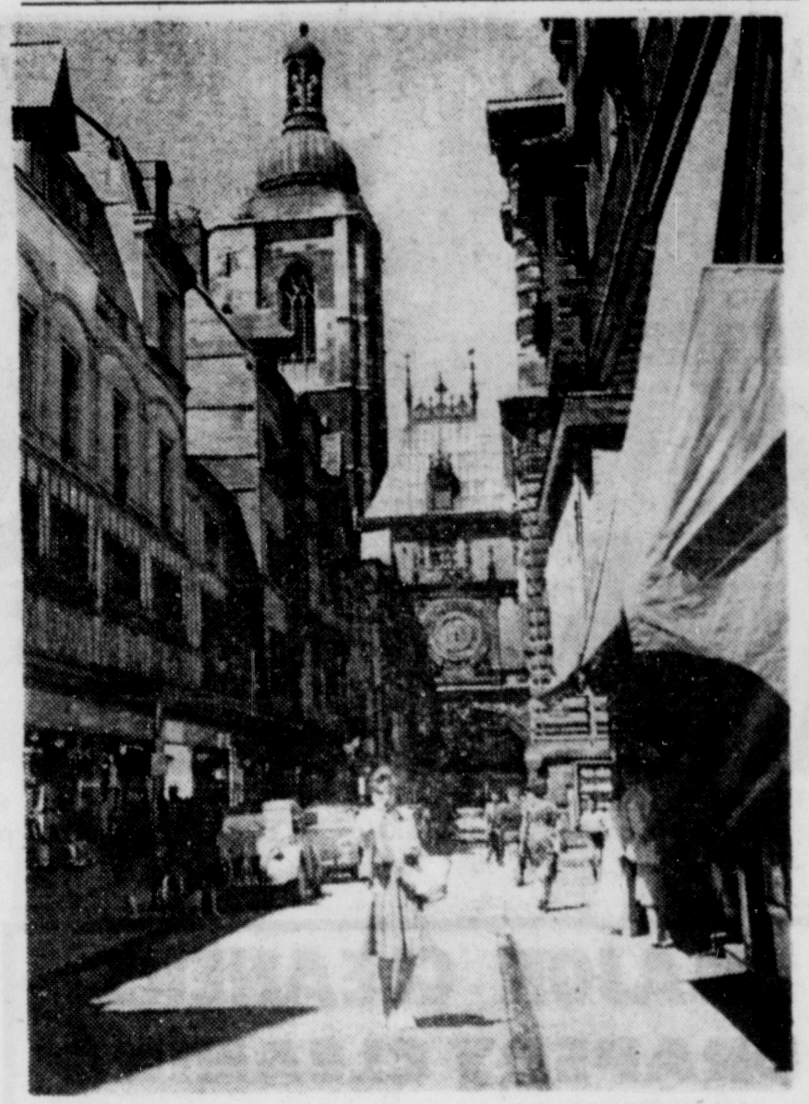
FOR ALL ITS expensive chic, there are several modest but comfortable establishments in Deauville, or in her sister town of Trouville, just across the River Touques, for those who want to spend less on accommodations and more on enjoying the fun.

Not far to the west again are those historic French beaches with the American names — Omaha, Utah — reminders of desperate days in June 1944. They are not forgotten.

Yet it is difficult to conjure memories of war when crossing Normandy, so rich in gentle beauty and the good things of life; a setting rather for eternal peace and plenty.

FORESTS GIVE way to fields, and fields to farmyards. Market towns team with life, and rumble under the wheels of farm carts piled high with local produce. Some of the best fresh butter, cream and cheese in France come from Normandy. Anyone who has dined at Mont-St-Michel's Mere Poulard could never doubt it.

The Norman's drink is cider. Quite different from the North American "breed," Norman cider is deliciously intoxicating. Calvados, the local applejack, is a potent distillation of the cider.



THE ANCIENT CITY of Rouen is an ideal starting point for a spring-time tour of France's colorful Normandy countryside.

THE LATE, then aging Mack Sennett was recalling the golden era of his Keystone comedies and the bathing beauties of that time when this photograph was taken.

THE BOOK PAGES

Mack Sennett, And His Madcaps

By DON KEOWN

The name Mack Sennett immediately conjures a picture of crazily costumed cops engaged in a frantic, farcical chase of crooks, careening their "tin lizzies" down a railroad track where, inevitably, they encountered an oncoming locomotive.

And at some point in the film, of course, the custard pies begin to fly.

Cinema historian Kalton C. Lahue, collaborating with educational television writer Terry Brewer, has written the story of what was the dominant American screen comedy in the second decade of the 20th Century under the title "Kops and Custards: The Legend of Keystone Films."

It is a most entertaining book. Among senior citizens it will bring back nostalgic recollections of side-splitting hours spent in movie palaces enjoying the pandemonium Sennett and his stable of comics created on the silent screen. For others, it will represent one of the more lighthearted, frothier, happy chapters of Americana, a time of relative innocence and simplicity.

For serious students of the film as a medium of entertainment, art and communication, it will also provide insight into one of the major links between past and present.

But if you care not about viewing movies, and especially old comedies, from such a serious stance, then simply sit back, relax, and enjoy the sheer madness of it all.

Names such as Ben Turpin, Chester Conklin, Roscoe Arbuckle, Louise Fazenda, Mabel Normand, Harold Lloyd, Ford Sterling, Fred Mace, Slim Summerville, Edgar Kennedy, Charles Chase, Hank Mann, Alice Davenport, Al St. John, Mack Swain, Marie Dressler, Charles Murray, Minta Durfee, Syd Chaplin, Nick Cogley, Polly Moran, yes Charlie Chaplin and Gloria Swanson, all play their roles in the story, along with the key player of them all, Mack Sennett, the man who so keenly sensed and catered to America's entertainment tastes of the time.

Along with the making of the films, there was a lot of involved business and financial maneuvering and manipulating that Lahue and his collaborator also detail.

Lahue credits Sennett and his co-workers with creating not only a major advance from the earliest, crude silent flickers toward a more polished entertainment, but with also providing filmdom's first real satirical commentary upon the social scene, and thus offering America a much needed opportunity to laugh at itself and to puncture its own pomposities.

One might not agree fully with Lahue that such opportunities have been lost. American movies, it is true, no longer provide them. But British films sometimes do. And something close to Keystone slapstick can still be seen on a smaller screen, television, in the wilder antics of Lucille Ball, Red Skelton, Carol Burnett, Milton Berle, Eve Arden and other uninhibited comics. Our taste has not become as sophisticated, as distant from the 1910-20 level, as we sometimes think.

Along with a readable and enlightening book, Lahue and Brewer also provide a complete listing with casts of the Keystone comedies.

Their contribution in evaluating and perpetuating the spirit of the Keystone Kops and their colleagues with their wacky, frenzied action and abandon is a considerable one, both toward the understanding of that era and to the better comprehension of the roots of our present day culture and humor.

KOPS AND CUSTARD by Kalton C. Lahue and Terry Brewer; University of Oklahoma Press, 177 pages, $4.95.

THELWELL'S COMPLEAT TANGLER by Norman Thelwell, Dutton, 128 pages, $3.50.

HUMOR OF another time and land, contemporary Britain, is to be found in "Thelwell's Compleat Tangler."

Norman Thelwell, the English cartoonist and satirist who has won American applause previously with his jibes at gardening, equitation and dogs, pokes fun at the sports fisherman in this collection of drawings.

Generally, they come off fairly well, as Thelwell pairs captions that parrot some of the most oft-heard bromides abou the piscatorial pursuit with illustrations that exaggerate and misinterpret.

As is often the case, however, in these international exchanges, the satire is not always apparent to the American viewer, since peculiarly British terms, mannerisms, habits may be involved. This is especially true of the section entitled "Some Technical Terms Explained." Many fishing enthusiasts on this side of the Atlantic will never have encountered a good many of the terms.

Still, it is a book for light enjoyment for the angler who can laugh at himself and his fellow addicts of the rod and fly.

CONTINUING the precedent set by Rev. Malcolm Boyd and by his own "God Is For Real, Man," Rev. Carl Burke, the Erie County, N.Y., jail chaplain, has now put together "Treat Me Cool, Lord."

It is offered as a collection of prayers by the city street kids in their own language. Sample: "We're glad we can think/ You are a father/Maybe like we wish we got."

The chaplain says he has recorded the prayers exactly as spoken. Association Press is the publisher of the $1.75 original paperback, also available in hardcover for $3.50.

Sleuths & Suspense

A LIGHT IN THE WINDOW by Margaret Lynn, Doubleday, 214 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

". . . You really are rather naive, Rosanne," he said with musing indulgence. "Though oddly enough, that has been your greatest attraction to me. Your naivete and the fact that you are just a little—scatterbrained . . ."

The Rosanne being spoken to here is Mrs. Rosanne Grayson, and the speaker is a character named Colonel. He sums up Rosanne, the heroine, neatly. In fact, one might say she's psycho and stupid. But if it weren't for Rosanne there wouldn't be any "A Light In the Window," and author Lynn would have to build a stronger character and a different story.

In short it's a Crime Club selection laid in England, about spies, an over-adoring wife whose husband skips, murder (naturally), and, to offset Rosanne, a beautiful woman spy, who, unfortunately, dies. Altogether it's not a very strong cup of tea.

Slices Of One Another

SHADOW OF ME by Paul Olsen; Holt, Rinehart & Winston, 212 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Norman Moser.

In his third novel Paul Olsen deals capably with the familiar theme that falling shadows often cross and reveal us all to be slices of one another. He also takes sidewise slaps at such themes as the conflict between generations, races, classes, all this with a somewhat contemporary dash and flair.

He can seem to more or less get away with all this ingenuity because he does not pursue one character long enough to explore a lot of the loose ends. We do not see the characters in a great deal of depth, but Olsen does manage to handle with a certain scope and clarity the situations he does treat.

Olsen's characters are at once deeply mired in the slush of their religious and/or ethnic backgrounds and struggling vainly to transcend them.

A middle-aged, traditionally ambitious doctor wishes so deeply to be Jewish that he imitates his friend Arnold Goldbman's limp when he dies.

PAUL OLSEN
His third novel

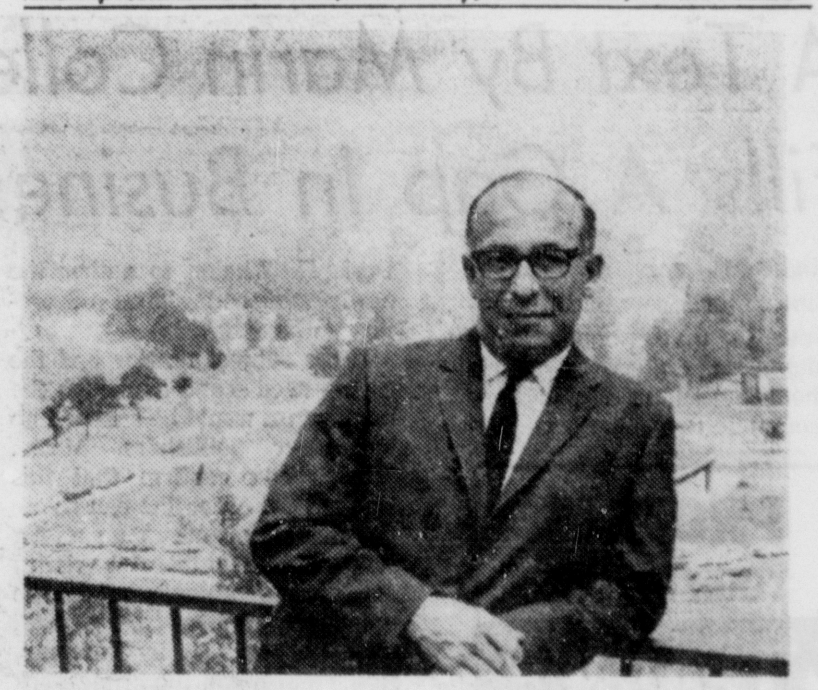
On the other hand Arnold, perhaps, cares more for the fallen revolutionaries of the Spanish uprising of his youth than he does for the six million Jews who died later in Europe.

Arnold finally realizes that he had not cared enough to fight this war, however. But being an inquisitive, tough old bird, he does, before he dies, come to terms with this, as does Walter (a young artist) his Negro heritage. Dr. Adam Gregory's failures are not fortified by the knowledge that his childhood sweetheart died unloved, unappreciated, and probably a victim of exactly the kind of stifling fear and clutching possessiveness practiced in his own family circles.

The one character in the book who is difficult to resist is Arnold, who does not die until he trudges with the aid of a cane and a wooden leg, down Fifth Avenue in a peace demonstration. In this man there is a certain grit, a refusal to be overwhelmed by life so completely that he has left not a whit of insight or compassion.

But Adam, in an ending which treads the edge of cop-out, is paired off with another lonely soul tied irretrievably to her Christian Anglo-Saxon upbringing, and engaging young medical student.

Paul Olsen has mastered the sketch, though not with anything like the subtlety, the delicacy, or the insight of a Chekhov.



PHILIP KLASS, aviation and space magazine editor and writer, gives his interpretation of what the "flying saucers" are in "UFOs — Identified."

Little Green Men, Or Just Hot Gas?

UFOs—IDENTIFIED by Philip J. Klass; Random House, 292 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

Anyone who thinks more than twice about the mystery of 'unidentified flying objects" apparently becomes infected with a strongly polarized virus.

John G. Fuller, whose "Incident At Exeter" and "Interrupted Journey" I reviewed earlier, became convinced by his research that flying saucers were the creations of intelligent extra-terrestials.

Author Klass takes nearly 300 pages to tell the reader that UFOs are either frauds or what might be paraphrased as "a lot of hot gas."

"Plasma" is the magic word by which exercises nearly any UFO sighting he cannot otherwise prove to be a fraud. That maybe, but I found myself doubting his objectivity because of a pun that cropped up in his introduction to the book, when he characterized the state of belief in saucer intelligence as "UFO-ria."

Klass is a university-trained electrical engineer who worked in the aviation electronics industry for a decade before gravitating to the avionics editor's chair at Aviation Week and Space Technology Magazine.

His technical background should make him able to convince a reader of his argument that most UFOs really are plasmas—glowing, highly ionized, probably fiercely hot masses of gas similar to the controversial ball lightning.

Perhaps he's afraid getting too scientific might scare off a lay reader. He seems to shun any technical discussion, giving no details of the forces required to create plasma in a laboratory, nor of any real scientific findings in natural plasmas.

The figures he quotes — and they're rare — are unimpressive at second sight. For example, he speaks of jet plane wingtip vortices with velocities of 103 feet per second, which my rusty slide rule tells me is about 68 miles per hour. If such vortices create plasmas, why is not every young hot rodder followed by at least one or two little flying saucers?

Klass speaks of twisters creating electrical stresses of several hundred volts per meter in the air, but neglects to mention the thousands of volts per centimeter associated with lightning bolts. I'd like to buy his plasma argument, but find myself put off by his claims that plasma are so mysterious in themselves.

He thoroughly reviews a number of famous saucer sightings, and his book's pictures are excellent.

He either should have said what he has to say in far less space, or used the pages better to substantiate his argument.

Perhaps I'm just disappointed at the thought of never being able to meet any Little Green Men.

Humanizing A National Hero

GEORGE WASHINGTON IN THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION by James Thomas Flexner; Little, Brown, 552 pages, $10. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

For all that his birthday is a national holiday and that he is revered as the Father of Our Country, George Washington remains to most of us a cold, impersonal man on a white horse.

James Thomas Flexner has found the man, and without bringing him down from the white horse, has shown him as a warm-hearted human, a man of many moods, sometimes impetuous but always steadfast.

"George Washington in the American Revolution," the second volume on our first President by Flexner (the first treated Washington's youth and his military career in the French and Indians wars), takes not a cubit from the stature of its hero. Instead, it goes far to explain what must have puzzled many people in generations since Washington's time: what made him "first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Those who seek to equate Washington with the great military leaders of history may be disappointed in Flexner's book. For the Washington he depicts was ever a civilian in uniform. He learned to command an army that fought British and German professionals to a standstill; but his thoughts and high strategy were based more on considerations of the good of the emerging nation than on winning battles.

In this devotion to the national good, rather than to military glory or his own advancement, lay the answer to the question with which Flexner closes his introduction:

"As the war with England abated and the central government seemed about to fall apart, the horses of absolutism — military coercion of the civil government — were saddled and mounted by leaders as important as Robert Morris and Alexander Hamilton. Had Washington been willing to leap onto the lead horse, which had been subtly prepared for him, America would inevitably have thundered down the road to a new, more bloody civil war. The end might have been a monarchy or a dictatorship or, more probably, a scramble of mutually hostile separate states.

"Almost every other world leader when faced with such temptation has succumbed. Why did George Washington stay his hand?"

It was because he did stay it that the leaders of the United States, after drawing up a constitution in which the fear of a hereditary monarchy played heavy part, had no fear in electing Washington unanimously as the first President.

At that, they left the door open for dictatorship, by failing to place a limit on the number of terms a President could serve. But Washington took care of that, too, by refusing a third term — thus establishing a precedent that lasted until broken in 1940 by Franklin D. Roosevelt, only to be written into the constitution at last so it could not be broken again.

Flexner's volume makes Washington understandable as well as admirable. And it does so with sound historical scholarship, coupled with genuine literary quality. I trust he is at work now on a third volume — of Washington's years as President.

A Guide Worth Hard Cash To The Collegians

HOW TO EARN (A LOT OF) MONEY IN COLLEGE prepared and published by Harvard Student Agencies, 238 pages, softcover, $1.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This guide represents a new venture on the part of the Harvard collegians who have set a high standard with their highly successful travel manuals for students.

It covers the field well, detailing the job opportunities and approaches open to college students both during terms and in the summer. It discusses the increasingly popular concept of the student-operated business, as well as working for others. Scholarship and loan opportunities also receive major attention.

Edward Schwartz, president of the National Student Association, has said: "I would bet that a typical student could raise his income by at least 25 per cent with this book," and has described it as "as essential as a scholarship to the student who needs financial aid."

Other student leaders and educators have expressed enthusiasm for the book which does, indeed, look like a solid, practical guide — the product of three years of work, say its young publishers.

A Delicate Art

JAPANESE STENCIL DESIGNS by Andrew W. Tuer; Dover, 104 pages, paperback, $2.25. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

In the 1890s, Andrew W. Tuer assembled 100 examples of the delicate work of those unique Japanese artisans, the stencil-cutters, for publication under the long-winded title: "The Book of Delightful and Strange Designs, Being One Hundred Facsimile Illustrations of the Art of the Japanese Stencil-Cutter, to Which the Gentle Reader is Introduced by One Andrew W. Tuer, F.S.A., Who Knows Nothing At All About it."

Now, with, thank heavens, an abbreviated title, Dover has republished the collection, along with Tuer's introduction (only slightly longer than his title).

The designs from fragile, hand-cut stencils intended to decorate fabrics reflect almost perfectly the exquisite nature of Japanese creativity. Those who appreciate Oriental art, or beautiful things of any origin, for that matter, will enjoy the book and thank Dover for rescuing the collection from oblivion.

Reviews Of New Reading

A Text By Marin College Teacher Fills A Gap In Business Courses

Eighteen years of teaching business and secretarial programs to many hundreds of students at College of Marin without the help of a really new or complete text have prompted Doris H. Whalen to author the newly-published "The Secretary's Handbook."

If the subject matter and the crying need sound as though the manuscript would be snapped up by eager publishers, Mrs. Whalen can confirm that this was not the case. She can relate the usual candle burning sessions and authors' anxieties and disappointments before the manuscript was accepted, almost a year ago, by Harcourt, Brace and World Inc., New York book publishers.

SHE HAS since devoted every spare minute to the task of revising and rewriting, and, most recently, to proofreading galleys prior to publication.

The book is intended for use primarily as a reference manual, says its author. It is meant to be a ready source of information to aid students taking shorthand, typing, office practices and other secretarial information.

She says that, for those already on the job in business, the book will serve to bring their knowledge up-to-date.

AS A TEXT, the author recommends that it be used in connection with the practice exercises which she has included.

Innovations in business communications and the secretarial duties are numerous. Zip codes, for example, can make existing handbooks and office manuals incomplete and outdated.

Mrs. Whalen notes that she has referred to "Webster's Third New International Dictionary," and the 1967 edition of the "United States Government Style Manual" for many of the changes she has indicated in the book.

Not many secretaries would have access to either of these volumes, she believes, nor the time to check the libraries for references.

THE REAL value of her book, she adds, lies in the fact that not only is it a new reference, but its compact size, five and a half by eight and a half inches, make it a desk drawer handbook.

Other techniques covered in the book include hyphenating words.

Such words as percent and airmail were hyphenated a few years ago, but are now favored as one word. Too, hyphens, have been dropped from words beginning with "co", as in "cooperation" and "coordinate."

Sample styles of proper letter forms, charts, examples, and warnings have been included. She also deals with troublesome verbs, words frequently misspelled, and expressions to avoid.

According to the author, she has "spelled out" all the information which she would expect her 1968 graduates to have learned in the classroom at College of Marin in Kentfield.

DORIS H. WHALEN, College of Marin business instructor, and author of a new reference manual and text for secretaries, goes over final galleys of the publication. The Secretary's Handbook," published by Harcourt, Brace & World, was released in February.

A Little Remodeling Has A Big Impact

For A Small Outlay Of Cash, You Can Give Home A Fresh Look

Mini-rejuvenation of the home can pay off in maxi-dividends.

The beauty of a little decorating plan is in its small cash outlay, and the cheerful outlook it can provide. Now is the season when you can usually devote time to little projects and enjoy it.

Here are some ideas:

KITCHEN: One woman put a shot of color in a dreary blue and white kitchen by painting an enormous bright red tomato, 14 by 14 on a white canvas. If you can't hang your own amateur art, cut out pictures of fruits and vegetables from the seed catalogs (now in the mail) and paste over board. Paint the board a vivid color — yellow, orange, red, blue or white and paste colored vegetables and fruits over it. Leave a border of color or white paint around the paste-ups.

Shellac over the whole thing for a very pretty effect.

Another kitchen idea is to make a wall hanging of dried beans. Outline the design, fill in with various size beans, and then color to suit the motif.

Hallways seem particularly dreary. Paint one wall in a lettuce-leaf green or vivid pink as one decorater did in her own apartment. She then put brackets on the wall to hold pots of trailing ivy, dark green and variegated. (Be sure the pots are safely anchored to the wall fixture.)

LIVING ROOM: Design a new coffee table. How about a small wagon wheel with glass embedded within the spokes? Paint or shine the wheel and put a finial in the hub area. What do you have in the garage, attic or cellar that can be refurbished? A small old trunk with a glass over it is not too farfetched an idea. Or how about a captain's chest?

Cubes continue to be news as tables. These are made of wood or plywood and covered in vinyl, fabric, paper or made of glass-like plastic, the newest cube look. For a contemporary room, lacquer the wood cubes in vivid colors or pastels. It can be covered with glass if you like that look.

A striking screen can perk up a living room. It is a way to use colors or fabric that one hesitates to use on walls or furniture. If you decide that you don't like the colorful side, turn it around to a neutral one. Buy a natural unpainted screen and put your imagination to work. Use the screen in the corner of a room or behind a sofa.

DINING ROOM: A mobile of flowers over the dining table can provide a cheerful effect for a minimum outlay of money.

It wouldn't be wise to drill a hole in a good ceiling but you might make a light-weight mobile of thin wire from which flowers may be suspended and then fasten it to the ceiling with sturdy tape through which you will put some thumb tacks or similar fasteners.

Ask at a local hardware store for fasteners that might secure such a fixture without injuring the ceiling. Attach the artificial (silk or cotton type) lightweight flowers to small pieces of wire and then attach the small lengths to larger ones.

CHILDREN'S ROOMS: Boys like colorful window shades — bright stripes and solid colors. Attach a pull of felt to horse brasses or other motif that you can locate in department stores or horsey shops.

In a girl's room, you might attach ruffles to her window shade. A fabric that matches her draperies is a good idea for the ruffles.

This is a ruffle-ruffle year in fashion so three or four rows of ruffles on her window shade might perk up her room and her disposition.

BATHROOM: If you have a glass shower stall, do as one decorator suggests: paste fabric flowers over the outside glass. She used pale pink flowers on her own shower glass, matching the color to the wall paint.

Other ways to freshen up bathroom decor include a fresh coat of paint — wild, wild, wild, maybe a smidgen or more of wallpaper, bright carpet on the floor. One of the least expensive ways to inject a new look in a bathroom is with a new shower sheet but don't overdo the matching accessories.

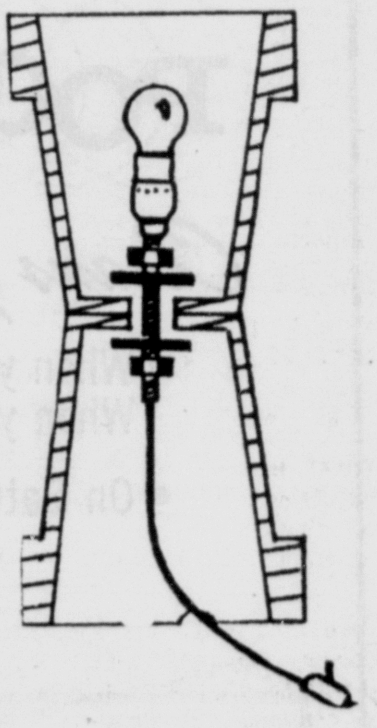
And one actress advises that you can go all-out in decorating your own psychedelic closet, if your husband happens to be the conservative type, and you can't bathe the house in color. There is no reason at all, she says, why a person shouldn't have the zaniest color scheme imaginable in a personal closet.

Build Your Barbecue

IF YOU LONG for a picnic out of doors, but find no pleasure in bumper-to-bumper traffic, a happy solution to your problem can be found in the pattern offered below. It tells how to build a barbecue fireplace in your own backyard. This permits "dining out" whenever the mood stimulates the desire. Simplified directions assume you have never built a barbecue pit and explain every step in language everyone can understand. Illustrations show exact location of all bricks in each course, while directions explain how to mix concrete. Send 75 cents in coin, check or money order for Pattern No. 73 to Independent-Journal, Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. 10510. Be sure to include your zip code number for prompt delivery.

Bright Ideas

TWO ORDINARY red clay flower pots can develop into the niftiest indirect lamp ever. Nothing to it. Put them bottom to bottom. A threaded hollow rod goes through the drainage holes. Washers and threaded nuts, top and bottom, hold the unit together. Thread the wire through the hollow rod and attach a screw-on socket. To make an outlet for the cord, sandpaper or file a semi-circle on the rim of the bottom pot. It's best to install a switch on the cord outside the lamp for ease in turning on and off. Clay pots come in sizes from four inches to 16 inches deep, and they are cheap. The natural clay has a real elegance, but paint them if you wish. These lamps are great for TV-watching, stereo-listening or just plain dreaming.



The Ready-Made Accessory Will Simplify Your Project

Do you find remodeling projects easy to start and hard to finish?

It's probably because the "finishing" process is often as complicated and time-consuming as the basic work.

ONE WAY to end finishing problems is with ready-made accessories.

For instance, if you're installing prefinished hardboard wall paneling, you don't have to worry about countersinking and puttying nails so they won't show or trying to stain moldings and trim the right shade.

Color-matched nails are available for use with prefinished hardboard paneling. Or, you can eliminate nailing and install the panels with a special cartridge-type adhesive.

MATCHING or color-coordinated prefinished wood, metal and vinyl moldings are also obtainable for use over joints, as baseboards, and for inside and outside corner trim and ceiling trim.

They simplify the paneling job and give the walls an attractive "professional" look.

A folder of remodeling ideas that include the use of hardboard can be obtained for 10 cents from SR&A, Dept. HP, Box 3498, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

A Fence Provides Storage, Privacy

One of the slickest tricks to come along recently is the storage fence, a great two-in-one structure that gracefully marks property lines while providing a garage for the rake and lawn mower.

It's literally a fence with an attached tool house that functions and appears as part of the fence. They're built in all shapes, sizes and styles, limited only by the homeowner's imagination.

ALTHOUGH size is determined largely by available space, it's smart to stretch for every inch possible because a storage fence quickly becomes a favorite stashing spot for all manner of things. Even spare tires and paint supplies may sneak in.

Try for a minimum three-foot depth and 12-foot length, and there'll be room for virtually every piece of garden gear, wheelbarrow to sacks of fertilizer.

Inside, hooks care for the small implements and shelves take packaged pesticides and weed killers. One shelf, made of two-inch-thick planks can be built at a 30-inch height, 18 inches wide and three feet long to serve as a work bench.

SEVERAL features are basic to construction of the storage unit, including double doors that let heavy equipment roll through easily.

Standard stud walls are the best choice, sheathed then covered with solid lumber siding to give contents full weather protection. A finished interior helps, too, not only adding another layer of protection but also presenting a clean, neat appearance that inspires orderly use and care of equipment.

For a quick interior treatment, nail up rough boards — cedar, fir or pine. No finish is needed, but a coat of semi-transparent stain in a golden beige shade pleases the eye and keeps the unit's interior sunny looking.

A SLOPED, shingled roof with gutter and downspouts helps insure a tight, dry interior. For the floor, concrete should be poured over a vapor barrier.

Where to locate a storage fence? Think first of ready accessibility but also consider its use as privacy screening along side yards or near the patio.

Style-wise, clean contemporary lines are easiest to handle and are entirely complementary to any type of house. A semi-transparent stain on resawn cedar siding and fence boards mean top appearance with minimal maintenance.

NEARLY ANY pattern works well for a storage fence. Just be sure that both storage unit and fence are either a horizontal or vertical pattern.

A good one combines vertical tongue-and-groove siding with a vertical board fence that alternates one-by-sixes with one-by-twos.

STORAGE space and privacy for the yard were attained when this storage fence was built. Structure has one-by-four-inch knotty western red cedar siding, with one-by-sixes and one-by-twos alternating for fence pattern. Stain is charcoal. Shelving and hooks inside keep equipment, supplies neat and accessible.

When The Flush Tanks Acts Up, Here Is What To Do About It

The flush tank in the very large majority of residential bathrooms differs very little from that used in the days when plumbing first moved inside.

It fills with water, which is sent rushing into the toilet bowl when a handle is pressed. And each of these tanks has a loose cover on top, so that it can be easily removed whenever a repair is needed, which seems to be more often than anything else in a house.

Most common of the annoyances resulting from trouble within the tank is the continuous dripping of water into the bowl.

AFTER TAKING off the tank cover, see whether the water level is higher than the overflow, vertical tube you'll see there. If it is, water is going down that tube into the bowl.

The metal or plastic float at the end of a horizontal rod may have lost its buoyancy because it has spring a leak. Unscrew it from the rod and shake it to see whether there is water in it. If so, a new float is in order.

If it appears to be in sound condition, bed the rod to which the float was attached. Bend it downwards, using both hand and working very carefully so as not to throw the entire tank mechanism out of alignment.

Replace the float, flush the tank and the trouble may have disappeared.

ANOTHER cause of this dripping is a defective valve at the top of the supply pipe, by which water enters the tank. It may only need a new washer.

Before you attempt to replace it, shut off the water at the valve under the tank or — if it doesn't have one — at the main shut-off valve of the house.

If, when you took off the tank cover, the water level was not above the overflow tube, but below it, the chances are that water is leaking under the rubber ball or pear-shape object at the bottom of the tank. You will find that it screws off the vertical rod to which it is attached.

THE LEAK is caused when that ball fails to drop perfectly onto the valve seat — or the valve seat has rust or grit on it — or the ball needs replacement. The valve seat can be cleaned by rubbing it with steel wool.

If the ball needs a replacement, you can get it at any hardware store. While you're there, you should consider the possibility of getting one of the new gadgets designed to guide the rubber ball so that it drops exactly on the va've.

"What Happened to the Velvet Trim On My Dress?"

The "velvet" trim on your dress wasn't actually velvet. It was an imitation made up of velvet-like fibers attached to a ribbon by a rubber-based adhesive. The adhesive dissolves in drycleaning and the velvet-like fibers disappear leaving you with a plain ribbon trim.

The fact is, your dress is not drycleanable and should be so labeled by the manufacturer. The National Institute of Drycleaning is attempting to acquaint fashion designers and manufacturers with the unserviceable quality of imitation "velvet" trim, but until they refrain from using it, there is serious risk in drycleaning such garments.
